LONDON, Oct. 1.—Premier Baldwin opened the Imperial Conference today at the Prime Minister's residence, 10 Downing Street, by an address of welcome to the Dominion representatives.

He gave them a review of foreign affairs, emphasizing the British Government's belief in the entente with France, but without entering into details. He laid stress on the Greco-Italian incident and on the "very useful and in my opinion effective, part played in this crisis by the League of Nations."

He outlined the debt settlement with America and the results of the Washington Treaty, and then passing to British domestic concerns he spoke gravely of the growth of unemployment and suggested that Great Britain must look to her Dominions to replace the commerce she had lost through the chaos in Europe. He expressed the hope that the conference would take the first steps in creating, in the not too distant future, an ample supply of those raw materials on which the trade of the world depends, but he did not actually mention imperial preference.

A large crowd assembled to see the Colonial Ministers and the Dominion Premiers arrive. Mr. Baldwin was supported by Lord Salisbury, Lord Curzon, the Duke of Devonshire and Sir Philip Lloyd Greame, and the overseas Dominions were represented by the Prime Ministers of Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and Newfoundland, while the Irish Free State sent W. T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council (a post corresponding to that of a Dominion Premier) and Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister of External Affairs. India was represented by Viscount Peel, Secretary of State for India, and the Maharajah of Alwar and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru.

Messrs. Cosgrave and Fitzgerald, Ireland's representatives, appearing for the first time in an imperial conference, received a special welcome. They drove up in a taxi, but were recognized at once, and the workmen engaged in renovating No. 10's dingy face leaned from their scaffolding to give them a cheer.

W. F. Massey of New Zealand was noted as the only war-time Premier still in office, but it was the Maharajah of Alwar who was the most picturesque figure. Attended by two turbaned servants he appeared in a gorgeous Oriental garb. Jewels blazed on his headdress and long coat, and he completely outshone General Smuts of South Africa in his gray lounge suit and brown felt hat.

Baldwin Reviews Allied Troubles.

Premier Baldwin opened the proceedings with a few words of personal welcome to each delegate, beginning with Mr. Cosgrave. He then went on to recall the review of the state of the world made by Premier Lloyd George at the last imperial conference in 1921. Mr. Baldwin said it struck a "moderately hopeful note." The problems of German disarmament and reparation seemed at that time in a fair way of settlement, but "as is well known, it proved impossible to hold Germany to the fulfillment of her reparation obligations under the scheme evolved in May, 1921. The Allies at various times granted alleviations and postponements, but German payments grew ever less, until at the end of last year we were faced with the possibility of a total default.

"Definite proposals for a complete and final settlement were made in January last by Premier Bonar Law," the Prime Minister continued. "These proposals involved a heavy sacrifice by the British taxpayer in the direction of writing off debts for which we hold the unconditional obligations of our allies. Our proposals would involve writing off the greater part of the allied obligations, amounting to more than £1,200,000,000, and leaving the British taxpayer to face the resulting burden without himself receiving payment. We deeply regret that so generous an offer to effect a final settlement did not receive more favorable consideration.

"This difficult problem of reparation was complicated by a difference of opinion among the Allies as to the measures to be taken to secure payment of what was due to them. It need scarcely be emphasized that there was no difference of opinion whatever on the principle that Germany should be made to pay to the utmost limit of her ability.

"The French and Belgian Governments decided to seize and exploit the Ruhr Valley, and they claimed that Germany had been reported in 'Reparation Default' by the Reparation Commission, they were entitled to do this under the Treaty of Versailles. His Majesty's Government could not share this view, and we, moreover, considered that such action could not but prejudice the prospects of the Allies ultimately securing the bulk of reparations. The French and Belgian Governments, however, with the acquiescence though not very active support of the Italian Gov-

Policeman Kills Himself Accidentally With Pistol

Patrolman William Phillips of the Beach Street Station accidentally shot and fatally wounded himself last night in his home at 183 Spring Street. The patrolman, according to the police, was handling his service revolver in his room when it was discharged and the bullet struck him in the left temple.

Phillips's mother and sister, with whom he lived, were home at the time and found him unconscious. They summoned an ambulance and he was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he soon died.

Phillips had been on the police force three years and nine months. He was 31 years old and unmarried. He had been on sick leave for four days.

ROYALISTS BATTLE FOR GERMAN FORT

Twice Repulsed by Kuestrin Garrison, They Still Held Arsenal at Midnight.

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—The first restorationist outbreak occurred this morning when 800 Monarchist troops attacked and captured the fortress at Kustrin, fifty miles east of Berlin on the main line of the Konigsberg railway. After a battle lasting three hours the Reichswehr troops recaptured the fortress, but the Monarchist soldiers held the arsenal.

The commander of the fortress telephoned for reinforcements and Berlin ordered two regiments of Reichswehr garrisoned at Frankfort on the Oder, twenty miles south of Kuestrin, to rush to the support of the regular troops and win back the fortress regardless of the loss of life.

The Reichswehr regiments, which left by a special train were instructed to send an ultimatum to the Monarchists under a white flag, and if the rebels refused to evacuate the fort and arsenal to storm the place. Machine guns and a battery of field pieces were taken to shell the Monarchists if they refused to capitulate.

According to latest reports 800 monarchists, chiefly elements of veterans of Ehrhardt's brigade, assembled in small group overnight in Kuestrin, which before the war was a powerful fortress, but now is half dismantled and the guns removed by the Allied Control Commission. At 6 o'clock this morning, armed with rifles, pistols and machine guns, they stormed the fortress, which is a couple of miles out of town, at the confluence of the Oder and Warthe Rivers.

Two regiments of regular pioneer troops were garrisoned at the fortress and only a couple of sentinels were on guard, who were speedily overpowered.

The monarchists rushed at the fort while many of the regulars were still sleeping in their bunks, ejecting them, and then seized the arsenal and began dealing out standard army rifles, grenades and other munitions.

Meanwhile, a few detachments of pioneers former under the orders of the commander of the fort, Colonel Cudovius, and made a counter-attack, taking the monarchists by surprise and driving them out.

Colonel Cudovius ordered the leader of the monarchists to surrender, which was refused. From the arsenal the monarchists continued to snipe at the regulars whenever they appeared, so the pioneers starting sniping back when a monarchist appeared in a window of the arsenal.

The Government today issued a statement saying that Nationalist and Communist troops attacked the fortress. The wording of the statement mystifies every one, as it is regarded as meaning that the Communists and Monarchists are allied against the republic and democratic Government.

The communique adds that order has been restored, which is belied by fragmentary telephonic communications from Kuestrin.

The Government has clapped down the tightest censorship everywhere, not only on cable and wireless dispatches addressed abroad, but on internal communications—telegraph and telephone connections from the Kuestrin region. Newspaper dispatches sent to the telegraph office were returned to the correspondents this afternoon marked "Must conform with the official communique."

During the day 300 of the invaders were taken prisoners. Tonight the Monarchists in the arsenal attacked with machine guns in order to free the 300 prisoners.

A big battle followed, with scores of invaders being killed and wounded by machine gun fire until the courtyard of the fortress ran with blood; but the sortie was crushed by regular army troops. The invaders were forced to

Total and $840,629,525 in Personalty Three-Fourths of the State's Wealth.

NEW HOLDER OF FIRST PLACE

Eli Joseph, Scrap Iron Dealer, Heads Personalty List, Assessed on $3,000,000.

EQUITABLE TOPS BUILDINGS

Records Show 32,992 New Structures—Plaza the Most Valuable Hotel Property.

The assessed value of real and personal property of New York City for 1924 totals $12,116,155,725, an increase of $1,153,669,747 over the assessment of 1923, according to figures made public yesterday by Henry M. Goldfogle, President of the Department of Taxes and Assessments. The rolls indicate that New York City has approximately three-fourths of the wealth of the entire State which, in round numbers, is $16,000,000,000.

Total assessment of real estate, exclusive of special franchises of corporations which will not be made up until early next year, is $11,275,526,200, an increase over 1923 of $1,109,090,622. The total personal estate assessed within the greater city is $840,629,525, an increase of $44,579,125.

John D. Rockefeller no longer ranks first on the personal property assessment lists. His personal property was assessed at $2,000,000 for 1923, but the assessment dropped to $1,000,000 for 1924, so Mr. Rockefeller takes third place with Eli Joseph, $3,000,000, and Mary D. Biddle, $2,000,000, ahead of him.

The Equitable, assessed at $30,000,000, still ranks as the most valuable building, while the American Telephone and Telegraph Building, assessed at $17,800,000, holds second place. The building controlled by E. Altman & Co., with an assessed value of $13,000,000, is just ahead of the New York Stock Exchange Building, assessed at $13,000,000.

32,992 New Buildings.

There are 32,992 new buildings listed, and the assessment districts, according to President Goldfogle, have grown to proportions so enormous that it is impossible for them to be handled by Deputy Tax Commissioners. The total number of parcels to be separately assessed is 642,576.

"As a result of legislation at Albany from time to time the city has been deprived of authority to tax much of the personality which receives protection through the varied agencies of municipal government," said Mr. Goldfogle.

"The city receives a proportionate share of the State income and corporation tax, which last year netted the city $15,000,718.34. In 1921 our share of the State income and corporation tax was $20,520,367.17. For the first six months of this year the city received as its share of State income and corporation tax $16,073,007.18. What the city may receive for the last six months of this year is problematical.

"The total exemption to be allowed for new buildings for 1924 under the tax exemption ordinance is not ascertainable at this time, but it is roughly estimated that it will reach $425,000,000. In other words, it may be anticipated that in addition to the $244,000,000 exemption for 1923 there will be $180,000,000 for additional new buildings.

"Our tax laws are a tangled mass of legislative patchwork. New York City needs a code of tax laws adapted to the needs of our metropolis and fitted to the city's conditions. The city is deprived of large revenue that ought to flow into the municipal treasury. The assessed value of real and personal property of the entire State, including this city, is in round figures about $16,000,000,000, while that of New York City now reaches about $12,000,000,000. In other words, so far as tax assessment figures go, New York City has three-fourths of all the assessed wealth of the State. Yet our city is under up-State domination, and pays direct State tax based on this stupendous assessment approximating $12,000,000,000, operating to the great financial benefit and advantage of up-State towns and rural communities."

The following is a table comparing the value of real property, including real estate of corporations by boroughs, as shown by the tentative assessments for 1924 and the final assessments for 1923:

Borough.	1924.	1923.
Manhattan	$6,224,720,618	$5,909,999,720
Bronx	1,085,590,526	992,420,904
Brooklyn	2,798,307,906	2,449,288,970
Queens	1,007,783,165	771,482,816
Richmond	177,144,495	146,178,155
Total	$11,275,526,200	$10,120,438,576

Glasgow Court Grants 40 Irish Deportees Damages for Imprisonment in Ireland

GLASGOW, Oct. 1.—The Glasgow courts have awarded £800 to each of thirty-eight claimants for loss and damage due to "wrongful arrest, deportation and detention in Mountjoy Prison, Dublin, for ten weeks." Two other claimants get £1,534 and £750 respectively, with expenses.

The claimants were all members of the group of Irish republicans seized by British agents in the raids last March by order of Home Secretary Bridgeman and sent to Ireland for internment. The deportees numbered more than one hundred, and among them were Art O'Brien, Sean McGrath, Sean O'Mahony and Michael Galvin, who upon their return to England were found guilty of seditious conspiracy and sentenced to short jail terms.

The deportations aroused a storm of criticism, directed mainly against Secretary Bridgeman, and he offered to resign, but was asked by the Government to continue in office. A special indemnity bill to protect him against damage suits from the deportees was later passed by Parliament.

Turks Order Our Warships From Straits, Holding That Vessels 'Profane' Those Waters

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The American destroyers anchored in the Sea of Marmora have been peremptorily ordered by the Angora Government to depart, according to a Constantinople dispatch. So far the demand has not been complied with. The Americans say they are not in the same category as the Allies, but are present as friends and guests. The fact that the Turks have let them know that they are unwelcome guests apparently has not affected their intentions.

The Turkish press, which is still making the most of Turkey's diplomatic victory at Lausanne, declares that the waters of the Sea of Marmora have been purified by the Turkish triumph and must not be profaned by the continued presence of foreign warships.

On Sept. 24 an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople quoted an Angora message as stating that the Turkish Government had decided to press for the withdrawal of the American destroyers from Constantinople. At that time the State Department was without information of any such intimation from the Turkish Government.

SLATED CANDIDATES FOR COURT NAMED

Republicans and Tammany Nominate Ten Each, Picked by Party Leaders.

BIDS FOR HEARST SUPPORT

Justices Cavegan and Bijur on Both Tickets—Cotillo and Hatting Surprises.

After many days of slate making, both Tammany Hall and the Republicans last night nominated candidates for the ten places on the Supreme Court in the First Judicial District, which are to be filled at the coming election.

Tammany held its convention for the district which takes in New York and Bronx Counties at Tammany Hall. The Republican Judicial Convention, adjourned from Saturday night, reassembled at Bryant Hall, Sixth Avenue, near Forty-second Street, shortly before 10 o'clock last night.

The Republican nominees were:

Justice Edward J. Gavegan, renominated.
Justice Nathan Bijur, renominated.
Robert McCurdy Marsh.
Municipal Court Justice Frederick W. Spiegelberg of the Fifth Municipal Court District.
Justice Gustav Hartman of the City Court.
Herbert R. Limburg.
Michael J. Horan.
Justice John J. Freschi, of the Court of Special Sessions.
William J. Millard, Assistant United States Attorney.
Charles E. Buchner, former Deputy Attorney General.

Mr. Millard and Mr. Buchner were both named at the request of the Republican organization in the Bronx. The former recently has been active in the prosecution of Fuller and McGee, convicted of Wall Street frauds. Both are Republicans.

The Democratic candidates nominated were:

Justice Joseph M. Proskauer.
Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney.
Justice Nathan Bijur.
Justice Edward J. Gavegan.
Charles D. Donohue.
Aaron J. Levy.
Peter A. Hatting.
Salvatore A. Cotillo.
E. Phoenix Ingraham.
Edward J. Glennon.

Both Tammany and the Republicans made a bid for the support of William R. Hearst, but if anything the Republicans went the furthest in that direction, giving two places on their slate to Hearst men while Tammany awarded only one. On the Republican slate there is in addition one Independent Democrat, whose name had been proposed by the Democratic Union.

Approved by Bar Members.

In a general way, the Republicans, whose candidates are understood to have the approval of the New York City Bar Association and the New York County Lawyers' Association, have made up their ticket with a view to having it appeal to other anti-Tammany groups and to independent voters generally. All the names on the Republican slate had been submitted to the two bar associations at conferences held during the last fortnight. At the outset of those conferences Tammany broke away on the plea that it would be impracticable to have these bodies pass on all the names of candidates aspiring to places on the Supreme Court bench.

The names of Supreme Court Justices Edward J. Gavegan and Nathan Bijur, the former a Democrat, the latter a Republican, and both candidates for renomination, will appear on both tickets. Herbert R. Limburg, for many years prominent in political ventures fostered by William R. Hearst, especially during the early years of the latter's political activities, was nominated by the Republicans. Michael J. Horan, a lawyer of 258 Broadway, is the independent Democrat the Republicans named.

Democratic Surprises.

Magistrate Hatting and State Senator Cotillo, who is Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, proved surprises. Hatting's choice was considered a recognition of the German-American vote. It was believed that if Cotillo were elected the district organization would name as his successor H. Warren Hubbard, six months ago made head of the Bureau of Purchases.

The Democratic slate as prepared in advance by the Executive Committee went through without a hitch. The voting was stretched to a late hour by the speeches and the subsequent demonstrations for the nominees, but comment of Tammany stalwarts was that everything had moved along in "apple pie order" and with complete harmony among the rank and file.

Besides Gavegan and Bijur, the ticket contains two other present Supreme Court Justices, Proskauer and Mahoney, who are filling unexpired terms on designation by the Governor.

Charles D. Donohue is Assembly minority leader. Aaron J. Levy is President-Justice of the Municipal Court. E. Phoenix Ingraham is a son of former Justice Ingraham of the Supreme Court and the Appellate Division. Edward J. Glennon is District Attorney of the Bronx, and his selection follows precedent, Richard H. Mitchell, his predecessor in the prosecutor's office, having been elevated to the State branch before him.

The meeting was called to order by Herbert C. Pell Jr., State Democratic Chairman, and John Godfrey Saxe was elected Chairman, with Miss May Kennedy and Miss Ryan, his secretaries.

Robert McCurdy Marsh, whom the Republicans nominated, has served in the Supreme Court under appointment from Governor Miller. He was a candidate on the Republican ticket last year for the place he was then filling by appointment, but was defeated with the rest of the Republican ticket in the Smith landslide after Tammany had refused to endorse his candidacy. Before his appointment to the bench he had been a member of the Assembly for several terms, and had been active in the affairs of the Republican organization in New York County.

MY OWN WON'T RACE ZEV AT 1 1-8 MILES

BELMONT ENTERS DISPUTE

Jockey Club Head Takes the Zev Side in Controversy Over International Contest.

Developments in the heated controversy which has arisen over the selection of the American representative to meet Papyrus, the winner of the English Derby, in the $100,000 international race at a mile and a half to be decided at Belmont Park on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20, came with great rapidity yesterday.

August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club and at the head of the committee in charge of the contest between the champion three-year-olds of the two countries, announced that Samuel C. Hildreth, trainer of Harry F. Sinclair's Zev, had changed his mind regarding the proposition for a race against Admiral Cary T. Grayson's My Own to settle the question of supremacy and had agreed to a race at the Aqueduct track next Saturday afternoon, Oct. 6. This is the last day on which the American horse to meet Papyrus can be named under the contract with Ben Irish, owner of Papyrus. Hildreth's offer, however, was conditional. He said that Zev had not reached a point in his training where he could safely run more than a mile and an eighth and that the race must be at that distance.

Mr. Belmont telephoned this offer to Admiral Grayson at Washington yesterday morning. Admiral Grayson asked for time to communicate with his trainer, and later answered that he thought the race should be at a mile and a half, the Derby distance and the distance named for the international race.

Insists on Full Distance.

Last night Mr. Belmont again talked with Admiral Grayson, and the latter emphatically stated that he would not race My Own against Zev except over the mile-and-a-half course. That was the last word, and the Jockey Club committee is as much up in the air as at the start of negotiations.

Zev was injured in the running of the Lawrence Realization at Belmont Park on Sept. 8, cutting off part of the frog of his off fore foot. A bar plate was fitted over the injured hoof and Zev was not thrown out of training. Hildreth, however, has proceeded slowly, with the view of bringing Zev to top form by Oct. 20.

Mr. Belmont in his official statement for the Jockey Club committee last night called it "folly and a crime" to insist upon Hildreth running Zev a mile and a half unless the colt was absolutely fit.

Admiral Grayson and the supporters of My Own in Washington cannot see the matter in that light, however. In his telegram to Mr. Belmont he said:

"Why propose to have an elimination race of a mile and an eighth when the international race to which it leads is for a mile and a half? Neither horse has any assurance that Papyrus would wait for him after a mile and an eighth."

No event in the thoroughbred world in many a year has aroused so much partisanship and controversy. It has been said that Zev's trainer was afraid his colt would be beaten by My Own if they met and that that was the reason he declined to run in the American Trial Sweepstakes or accept any of the offers for a special trial race. There were rumors in Washington yesterday that Zev was lame and could not race in any event. On the other hand, it was rumored at Aqueduct that My Own had gone lame, leaving the field clear for Zev. Admiral Grayson emphatically denied in Washington last night that My Own was lame. As for Zev, his smashing workout at Belmont Park yesterday morning, when he worked a quarter in 0:21 3-5 and three-eighths in 0:33 2-5, tells its own story and shows that he has all his speed.

Letter Causes Feeling.

The letter of Brig. Gen. Mitchell, Assistant Chief of the Army Air Service, to Mr. Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club, has not served to allay the bitterness of the controversy. Mr. Belmont was indignant yesterday at what he termed General Mitchell's lack of fairness in giving out the letter in Washington before it had been received here. The Chairman of the Jockey Club announced that he would answer General Mitchell in due course, adding that the official statement which follows was not affected by the letter.

Belmont's Statement.

Mr. Belmont's statement in full follows:

With regard to General Mitchell's letter, with all due respect to him, while apparently complaining of fairness not being extended to My Own in the selection of an American horse for the international race, he failed to

Swear In Deputies to Oppose His 22,000 Special Police and Guard the Polls.

GOVERNOR SETS NEW DATE

SHARP CLASH AT TULSA

Sheriff Drives Out Executive's Armed Agents and Raises Force of 1,500 Deputies.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Preparations for the opening tomorrow of polls in Oklahoma moved apace tonight, as the hours for an election unprecedented in the history of the nation drew near.

Court action, sustained by armed citizens who volunteered for service under regular county authorities in several instances carried forward the preparations for registering the will of the people as to whether the Legislature shall be empowered to meet to consider the official acts of Governor J. C. Walton without his sanction.

Barred by the Governor through proclamation and hampered by his eleventh-hour manoeuvring of State and County Election Boards to replace members disobeying his orders, the election tonight, nevertheless, appeared to be a virtual certainty throughout the State.

Even Governor Walton's action tonight in calling a new election for Dec. 6, next, failed to halt preparations for the balloting tomorrow. Declaring that he did not want to be Governor if the people "want to amend their Constitution to enable the Ku Klux Klan members of the Legislature to impeach him, thereby removing all legal restraint on lawlessness of the Klan," the Executive reiterated his charge that the election tomorrow will be illegal; but said he is willing to submit the question in "a fair and legal election."

Only the initiative bill empowering members of the Lower House to convene at their own call would be voted upon in the December election.

In his proclamation tonight the Governor said that tomorrow's election would be null and void, that he would refuse to recognize it or its results, and that he would abide only by the vote of Dec. 6.

In reply to this W. D. McBee and other legislators issued an appeal to the people to vote tomorrow as the date set by the Governor, declaring the election will go forward and all the votes will be counted.

Counties Defy Governor's Police.

Earlier in the evening the Governor denied that he intended to use the National Guard to suppress tomorrow's balloting in what he called a "pretended election." But the Governor's special police force was ready to act.

Taking up the challenge of the Governor that he would use 22,000 special police tomorrow to prevent the election, opponents of the executive, with the authority of an official opinion from Attorney General George Short holding the Governor without power to postpone the election, obtained from the State at large today what they termed an expression of sentiment on the part of citizens and officials that constituted a strong denial of the Executive's course.

From one county after another came the report that the authorities ordered by the Governor to prevent the election had announced they would ignore his instructions.

At only one place today was there an actual appearance of any of the Governor's special police. That was at Tulsa, where twelve of the Governor's men, who sought to prevent the distribution of ballot boxes and election supplies, were driven from the court house by 200 special deputies under Sheriff E. D. Sanford.

New Election Boards Enjoined.

The Governor at noon reconstituted the State Election Board, and with two members friendly to his program, constituting a majority, orders were sent to all County Boards to halt the election.

The election machinery apparently was not stopped and the scope of the reorganization was extended to include the County Boards.

Then the courts entered the fight and in Oklahoma City and Ardmore, the Executive's plan was nullified by injunctions restraining the new board members from interfering.

Sheriff Tom Cavner of Oklahoma

First Snow of Season Falls In This State and in Maine

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Snow, the first of the season in Western New York, was reported today from Waterloo. The snowfall, which occurred during the night, was light, melting as it reached the ground. Temperature varied between 40 and 50 degrees.

Other Western counties continued to experience cold, overcast Autumn weather. In Rochester and vicinity the mercury during the past twenty-four hours hovered just below the 50 degree mark.

GARDINER, Me., Oct. 1.—Snow fell here for a few minutes today for the first time this season.

ZR-1 OVER KENTUCKY ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS

Navy Dirigible Is Buffeted by High Winds, Which Put Her Behind Schedule.

BUT MAKES GOOD PROGRESS

Giant Airship Is to Be Named Shenandoah, the Indian Word for 'Daughter of the Stars.'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 1.—The navy dirigible ZR-1 passed over Independence, Ky., southwest of Cincinnati, at 9:10 P. M., Central Standard Time.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—The navy dirigible ZR-1 passed over the downtown section of Cincinnati at 8:43 P. M., Central Standard Time, headed west and flying low.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 1.—The ZR-1 passed over Dayton tonight at 7:43 o'clock, making the trip from Springfield in twenty-three minutes. The giant dirigible was lighted by a huge searchlight from McCook Field, the beams of which followed the craft until it disappeared into the night, headed southwest.

Battles With Adverse Winds.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The first cross-country run of a first line naval dirigible was in progress tonight. Having defeated the adverse gales which attempted throughout the day to hold her to the Atlantic seaboard, the ZR-1 was winging her way westward with St. Louis as her destination.

Radio dispatches from the big airship to the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics, which was in constant touch throughout the flight, told tonight of the improved weather conditions encountered from the time the ship reached the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The constant head winds shifted there and for the first time since clearing from Lakehurst, N. J., the ground speed of the airship exceeded her air speed.

While the big airship was plunging forward through the skies today Secretary Denby announced that she was to be named Shenandoah, the Indian word meaning "Daughter of the Stars." Mrs. Denby, who is to christen the ship at Lakehurst on Oct. 10, recommended this name. If weather permits, Mr. and Mrs. Denby will fly to Washington in the Shenandoah from Lakehurst after the ceremony.

The effect of the contrary winds on the ZR-1's flight today was graphically illustrated by the periodical reports from the dirigible. At Mount Holly, N. J., this morning, her air speed was 41 knots, but her progress over the ground only 17 knots.

The favorable winds showed more distinctly as the ZR-1 passed over Indiana. At Scottsburg, said a radio dispatch, the ground speed of the craft was fifty-nine miles an hour, with all engines going at half speed. The air speed at that point was forty-five miles and the altitude was 3,000 feet.

It was originally planned for the ZR-1 to arrive at St. Louis about 7 A. M. tomorrow and to remain in the city three hours. The delay met in the early flight today may lead to changes in the program, but these had not been indicated in reports from the dirigible to the department tonight.

Gets Away to an Early Start.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 1.—The ZR-1 left the Naval Air Station here at 6:50 A. M. today for St. Louis, where the international air races are to be held this week. If weather conditions are favorable, the ship is expected to arrive at St. Louis between 7 and 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Conditions were not altogether favorable when the ZR-1 took to the air, for there was a thirty-five-mile northwest wind blowing, which served to lessen the ship's speed.

Commander McCrary had originally planned to start at 3 o'clock but, feeling that adverse winds would hinder progress, he sent a radio message to the Naval Air Station at 6:50 A. M., which read:

"On way to St. Louis and return. Flying at 2,000 feet altitude. Speed 44 knots an hour. (Signed) MCCRARY."

More than 400 persons stood on the field and watched the ship's departure. Most of the spectators were the wives and friends of the members of the crew. There are 42 officers and enlisted men on board.

Two Fishing Craft, With Fifteen Aboard, Missing Since Sunday—Two Others Return

Coast guards off Sheepshead Bay, Coney Island, Rockaway and the Jersey coast, with the marine division of the New York Police Department, were anxiously watching last night for two fishing craft that put out from Sheepshead Bay Sunday morning and have not returned.

One of the missing boats is the Gertrude, a fishing smack 50 feet long, plying between Sheepshead Bay and the fishing banks off the Jersey coast. She left her dock at the foot of East Nineteenth Street Sunday morning at 5 o'clock captained by her owner, Frederick Rudiger, 630 Mason Street, Brooklyn, and chief mate William C. Mohr, 1,616 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. There were nine passengers aboard, among them Alexander Diergoski of Boston Street, Stanley Cooks and Joseph Cook of 46 Livingstone Street, and John Silkorski of Boston Street, all of Newark. Also Theodore Drooks of North Arlington, N. J., and Joseph Wojcieszoski of Bloomfield, N. J.

The other missing boat, the Marge, is a 45-foot motor boat belonging to Patrick Sullivan, a member of the Sheepshead Bay Yacht Club. With him were three friends, William Lee Mellwain, a newspaper man, of Emmons Avenue and Batchelder Street, Sheepshead Bay; Frank Smith of Sheepshead Bay, and George Flanagan, address unknown. Two other fishing boats, the Skybolt and the Dora, which had been missing, returned safely.

Special to The New York Times.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Oct. 1.—Captain Harry Peterson, a fisherman, and William Fowler Jr., son of Mayor Fowler of Seabright, last night rescued three fishermen in distress off shore here. The rescuers braved the heaviest surf since last Spring and a forty-mile wind, and had to try three times before they could launch a skiff.

The men rescued were Gus Schring, 268 Amsterdam Avenue; E. Herman, 415 West Thirty-eighth Street, and F. Smith, 1,776 Eighth Street and Neptune Avenue, all of Manhattan. They left Sheepshead Bay in the morning to fish off Shrewsbury Rocks and were forced to anchor when unable to make headway in the choppy sea. Their launch was drifting toward the seawall when the rescuers, after a two-hour struggle, got the fishermen into their skiff.

WEBB IS QUESTIONED ABOUT WIFE'S DEATH; POISON TRACE FOUND

Westchester Prosecutor Examines Husband for Three Hours —Grand Jury Meets Today.

DR. GETTLER MAKES REPORT

Bellevue Toxicologist Says Early Reactions Indicate Corrosive Mineral Poison.

TWO WILLS FILED IN COURT

No. 2 Leaves All to Husband; No. 6 Unsigned, Divides Estate; No. 1 to Be Filed Today.

In consequence of a toxicological report revealing the discovery of a corrosive mineral poison in the viscera of Mrs. Gertie Emily Gorman Webb, District Attorney Arthur Rowland and Coroner Edward Fitzgerald of Westchester County began an investigation yesterday at White Plains in which they questioned Charles Webb, the husband, and two nurses.

Mrs. Webb died last Tuesday night at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club in Rye after an illness of thirty-five days. The circumstances led her physician, Dr. William J. Meyer, to refuse to sign a death certificate and impelled her relatives and friends to demand an autopsy to determine whether or not she had been killed by bichloride of mercury or other poison in small doses.

The action of the Westchester authorities followed a preliminary telephone report, in which Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, toxicologist at Bellevue Hospital, said he had found evidence indicating the presence of an irritant poison, which justified suspicion that Mrs. Webb may not have died of natural causes.

Mr. Rowland said last night that until he received Dr. Gettler's complete report today he could not assume that a crime had been committed. If evidence developed to indicate that there had been murder, he said, an investigation would be started immediately by the Westchester County Grand Jury, which was convened last Monday by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser. Mr. Rowland last night issued a Grand Jury subpoena for Dr. Meyer requiring him to appear in the District Attorney's office today.

Two Wills Filed With Surrogate.

Another important development of the day was the filing in the Surrogate's Court of New York County for probate of the handwritten twenty-line will drawn up by Colonel Howard Thayer Kingsbury, counsel for Webb, and signed by Mrs. Webb on Aug. 25 last. This document left her entire estate, believed to be more than $3,000,000, to the husband and cut off relatives and friends provided for in a will made before her marriage. At the same time another and unsigned will, making bequests to Webb and other relatives and to friends and charities, was filed as a memorandum to show the intent of Mrs. Webb to provide for others than her husband.

Webb's appearance in Westchester County was on invitation of the District Attorney. Mr. Rowland telephoned to Mr. Kingsbury's office, where Webb was in conference with Mr. Kingsbury. The two had been conferring from 9 o'clock in the afternoon. They received the invitation from Mr. Rowland at 3 o'clock and they reached White Plains at 4:40. Two detectives of the Homicide Squad of the New York Police Department were in Mr. Kingsbury's office during the conference and followed Webb and his lawyer to White Plains, though Captain Arthur Carey and District Attorney Jab H. Banton had said they were not active in the investigation.

Says Webb Talked at Length.

Webb was questioned by Mr. Rowland and Coroner Fitzgerald for almost three hours. Mr. Kingsbury and Lee Parsons Davis, former Prosecutor of the county and recently engaged as an attorney for Webb, were in the room, as was a stenographer. District Attorney Rowland said at the end of the conference:

"Webb talked at length. I asked him question after question. A stenographer took it all down."

"Is Webb being held or is he going back to New York?" Mr. Rowland was asked.

"He and Colonel Kingsbury are going back to New York. The whole thing hinges upon the report of the chemical expert, which we expect tomorrow. I have been trying to get in touch all day without success, with Dr. Meyer, whom I wish to interrogate. I sent him a Grand Jury subpoena. I will question him at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning."

"Have you any evidence indicating that a crime has been committed?" a reporter asked.

"We have no primary indication of a crime from any source," replied the Prosecutor. "If a crime has been committed the matter will be presented to the Grand Jury immediately. It depends on what the toxicologist and the experts at the autopsy report. If the report show there was any poison we will proceed immediately to place the case before the Grand Jury."

"We had two other witnesses here today. They were the nurses, Dorothy Dayton and Anna Hersog, who are now on a case in Dobbs Ferry. I questioned them this afternoon."

"Did Webb make any charge against anybody who might have committed murder?"

"He made no charges. There has been no evidence thus far to incriminate or suspect anybody."

Colonel Kingsbury made this statement:

"Webb has given the District Attorney every assistance, within his power, looking toward a solution of the mystery.

but there does not seem to be anything mysterious to me in this case. It would appear, on the other hand, that Mrs. Webb died of natural causes."

The toxicological report which caused yesterday's action by the Westchester authorities was made to Coroner Fitzgerald in the morning by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, who has been analyzing the viscera in the pathological laboratories of Bellevue Hospital. After Dr. Gettler's telephone report Coroner Fitzgerald hastened into immediate conference with the prosecutor. When Fitzgerald emerged from Rowland's office he exclaimed:

"My heavens! This is going to be more sensational than the Ward case. Dr. Gettler has asked me to check up on certain points. You can depend upon it that from the newspaper man's point of view this case is going to be sensational."

Positive Results in Tests.

At the laboratories it was learned that positive results had been obtained in two preliminary tests indicating the presence of a corrosive mineral poison. Other tests, it was explained, would have to be made before it could be established that poison was actually present. The tests which showed positive results were made on tissue of the kidneys. Dr. Gettler said to reporters:

"The analysis of vital organs has shown that there was a certain reaction which indicates that poison may or may not have caused the death. I have found evidence indicating an irritant poison. Several hours more will be necessary before a complete report can be made. I will make that report public in the morning if the Coroner consents."

Coroner Fitzgerald planned not to hold an inquest, it was learned after he had heard from Dr. Gettler yesterday forenoon. It was recalled that in the Ward case he held no inquest, but submitted an affidavit to the District Attorney.

Later it was learned that Mr. Rowland expected to question several persons before proceeding before the Grand Jury, their appearances being called for by Grand Jury subpoenas. Among those who may be called are Judge and Mrs. John F. McIntyre, former Judge and Mrs. Robert S. Johnstone, Mr. and Mrs. Irving E. Burdick, Dr. Davenport West, who attended Mrs. Webb in Roosevelt Hospital, and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hunter, uncle and aunt of Mrs. Webb.

Judge McIntyre Notified Pecora.

It was to Dr. Meyer and Mrs. Johnstone that Mrs. Webb confided her suspicions of the nature of her illness. Mrs. Johnstone, Mrs. McIntyre and Mrs. Burdick were in her room constantly for several days before her death. Judge McIntyre talked with Mrs. Webb twice before she died. As a result of these talks he informed Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora of New York County Tuesday afternoon that Mrs. Webb was dying and requested that Medical Assistant Otto H. Schultze be assigned to attend the autopsy in the event of death. This request was complied with. Dr. Schultze reported evidence of a corrosive substance in the organs.

With developments coming fast, Webb's attorney, Colonel Kingsbury, decided yesterday to file Will No. 2, which left all the estate to Webb, and to submit as a memorandum Will No. 3, which Mrs. Webb declined to sign.

Irving E. Burdick, attorney for Mrs. Webb, who drew up the instrument she signed in February, 1921, two months after her mother's death, and which gave parts of the estate to the Hunters, other relatives and children of former Judge and Mrs. Robert S. Johnstone, was in conference all yesterday with the Hunters and others interested in this document.

It was learned that they planned to file, immediately after the submission of Will No. 2, a list of objections to the probate of Will No. 2. No intimation was made as to the nature of the charges. As Will No. 2 and the unsigned will were filed a few minutes before the closing hour of the Surrogate's offices, 4 o'clock, Mr. Burdick had no opportunity to present the objections.

It is expected that he will file Will No. 1 today as a document bearing out the objections and as a substitute for that filed yesterday on Webb's behalf by Coudert Brothers of 2 Rector Street. No secret was made of the fact that a contest would be entered. At White Plains yesterday Colonel Kingsbury said:

"When I left New York I directed the filing of a will I drew up and wrote out myself, which leaves all the property to Webb. With it was to have been filed a long and elaborate will, also drawn up by me, which makes numerous provisions for relatives and friends and which leaves more than half the estate to charity.

"I sent the signed will to Mrs. Webb on Aug. 25. It had been drawn up Aug. 21. She was then at the club in Rye. I hope to prepare a complete statement tomorrow."

Will No. 2 Gives Husband All.

Under Will No. 2 the entire estate of Mrs. Webb, estimated at being in excess of $2,000,000, including bequests in her mother's will and property received as gifts from her mother during the latter's lifetime, goes to the husband, Charles Webb. This instrument was made out Aug. 21, 1923, and signed that day by Mrs. Webb, then in Roosevelt Hospital. It was written in the hand of Colonel Howard Thayer Kingsbury, cousin and attorney for Webb, and comprised seventy lines. It was written on ordinary typewriting paper.

This is the will concerning which Webb was said to have remarked: "There will be trouble by the others when it is filed." It made no provision for the uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hunter of Devon, Pa., or for others generously provided for in the document executed by Mrs. Webb before her marriage. Everything was left outright in Will No. 2 to the husband. It was witnessed by Colonel Kingsbury and by Wilson Woelfper, real estate employe of the Webbs, at their offices at 280 Madison Avenue.

Will No. 3 was filed as a memorandum, though it bore neither signature of testatrix nor witnesses nor a date. This was the document she declined to sign. It was drawn up by Colonel Kingsbury at Coudert Brothers. It was presented to Mrs. Webb for her signature about the first of last month. She was then in the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club at Rye. This document made substantial provision for the husband, but gave the bulk of the estate to relatives, friends and charities.

Text of Signed Will.

Will No. 2, the handwritten document, was headed "Last Will and Testament of Gertie Elizabeth Gorman Webb." The name "Elizabeth" was a mistake. It was crossed out and "Emily" substituted, the change being noted at the bottom of the instrument. Otherwise, the will read:

I, Gertie Emily Gorman Webb, wife of Charles Webb, of the City of New York, hereby make this my last will and testament.

1. I give, devise and bequeath all my property and estate, both real and personal, including 226 Madison Avenue, in the City of New York, and the sum of $250,000, both of which I have the power to dispose of under the will of my mother, to my husband, the said Charles Webb, in absolute ownership, knowing that he will carry out my wishes in regard to the use and disposal of my property.

2. I appoint my said husband, Charles Webb, and such trust company in the City of New York as he may select, to be my executors of this will and I direct that no bond or other security be required of them or either of them.

In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed my seal this 21st day of August, 1923. GERTIE EMILY GORDON WEBB.

Subscribed, sealed and declared by Gertie Emily Gordon Webb, the testatrix abovenamed, at the City of New York, on Aug. 21, 1923, as and for her last will and testament, in our presence, and we, at her request and in her presence and in the presence of each other, have hereto subscribed our names as attesting witnesses:

(Name Elizabeth changed to Emily before execution).

No. 3 Filed as Memorandum.

Will No. 3, unsigned, undated and not witnessed, comprising fifteen typewritten pages and more than twenty clauses, and presented to the court as a memorandum, was entitled:

"Last Will and Testament of Gertie Emily Gorman Webb."

The document directed that funeral services "be in the same manner as my mother's" and that funeral expenses and debts be paid as soon after death as practicable. It [illegible] give, devise [illegible] real [illegible] dence at 226 Madison Avenue, City of New York, to my husband for life or until he remarries."

On Webb's death or remarriage the premises were to go to Mrs. Webb's children. If she died without issue the property was left to her aunt, Irene S. Hunter, wife of William T. Hunter, of Devon, Pa. The will continued:

"I give, devise and bequeath my real property at Fairfield, Conn. (country home), to my husband, Charles Webb, if he elects to accept the same, in which event I give to my half-brother, S. Jennings Gorman Jr., $20,000. If my husband, Charles Webb, elects not to accept the property within three months after my death, I give said property to my father, S. Jennings Gorman Sr., and if he is not living, to my half-brother, S. Jennings Gorman Jr.

$250,000 for Memorial Staircase.

"I give, devise and bequeath $250,000 out of the estate of my mother toward the erection of a memorial staircase on the land at the east side of Broadway, between 189th Street and 190th Street, New York City, belonging to the Denton Realty Company, of which I own all the stock, in memory of my mother."

The memorial was to be known as the Gorman Memorial. The will directed an appropriate park be made, with large plantings of shrubbery, flowers and trees, and, if the fund permits, for the erection of an appropriate building or buildings for music, meetings and other civic purposes."

For the maintenance of this memorial it was directed that the stock of the 189th Street Realty Company, owner of the property on which the memorial was to be established and owned by Mrs. Webb, be devoted to this purpose. The company owns The Carpenter, a large apartment building at 564 West 189th Street. The will authorized organization of the Gorman Foundation to receive the block of land and to administer the memorial. The will continued:

"I give, devise and bequeath the stock of the Wheeler Construction Company, which owns two apartment houses, the Wheeler and the Van Loo, to the executors and trustees" to apply the net income for life to her husband, Charles Webb, and on his death "to my issue surviving, if any." If there were no issue the bequest went to the residuary estate.

Stocks and Jewels for Husband.

The will gave Mrs. Webb's 124 shares of stock of the Bankers' Trust Company, 3,000 shares of stock of the Brooklyn City Railway Company and her controlling stock of the Gorman Development Company, her pearl engagement ring, wedding brooch, automobiles, silverware, pictures, paintings, furniture, glassware and other household articles to her husband, with the provision that he give to the Metropolitan Museum of Art such pictures and paintings as he might select for that purpose, marking the gift "Bequest of Gertie Emily Gorman Webb."

Mrs. Webb's laces, including her wedding veil, were to go to the children, if any. If there were no children these were to be given to Mrs. Hunter, the aunt. A sealskin coat, other clothing and a ruby ring were left to a friend, Florence Griswold Brown, together with a trust fund of $10,000. Mrs. Hunter, the aunt, the instrument gave "my largest solitaire diamond ring." The will created a trust fund of $250,000 for the father, S. Jennings Gorman Sr., of which $5,000 was to go on his death to his son, S. Jennings Gorman Jr., the remainder reverting to the residuary estate.

A string of pearls, a diamond and ruby lorgnette, a gold mesh bag and a silver fox boa were to be given Mrs. Minnie Pegram, wife of Rush Pegram. Wilson F. Woellper, bookkeeper and accountant for the Webbs, was to get $5,000. Other bequests were $10,000 to William T. Hunter, $5,000 to Edmund A. S. Hunter, a cousin; $1,000 each to Dr. E. A. Middleton and Emily Middleton Birney, cousins; $1,000 to Frances Hill, wife of Colonel Charles Hill; $1,000 to Marie Lewis, wife of Randall B. Lewis, of Paterson, N. J. Mr. Lewis has been engaged as one of Webb's attorneys.

Bequest to Son of Ex-Judge Johnstone.

The will provided a trust fund of $5,000, the income of which was to go during his minority to Mrs. Webb's godson, Edward Livingstone Johnstone, son of ex-Judge and Mrs. Robert S. Johnstone. The principal was to be used for his college education, but if he did not go to college and married before 30, he was to get the principal as a wedding gift.

In the event he neither went to college nor married he was to continue receiving the income of the fund, and on his death $1,000 was to go to his mother, Mrs. Margaret Johnstone, the remainder going to the residuary estate. Similar bequests were made for George H. Taylor Jr., also a godson, except that there was no provision in this clause for Mrs. Johnstone.

Trust funds of $10,000 each were created in this will for the benefit of Irene A. Derbyshire and William T. Hunter Jr. A fund of $5,000 was to be established for Laura Bardwell, a cousin. The will set aside $2,000 for the placing of flowers on the 16th day of each month on Mrs. Webb's grave and on other graves in the family plot in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia. Mrs. Gorman died Dec. 16, 1920. Mrs. Annie L. Crawford of Philadelphia was designated to select the flowers. Jewelry and personal effects not otherwise disposed of were bequeathed to the trustees and executors for distribution among relatives and friends.

Travel Prizes for Yale and Barnard.

The document provides trust funds of $100,000 each for each child left by Mrs. Webb, the principal to go to their issue in each instance. If she died without an issue the money was to become part of the residuary estate. The same clause gave $50,000 in trust to the husband, Charles Webb, the principal to be disposed of among charities in his will.

The residue was to go to Mrs. Webb's children, if any, in equal shares in trust funds, until they become 35 years old. In the event she had no children it was provided that the income of $50,000 be applied each year to a trip abroad by such student of history in each graduating class of Yale College as selected by the history department Faculty. Similar provision was made for Barnard College. In each instance request was made that presentation be made on commencement day by the husband, Charles Webb. It was specified that the winning student would not be required to spend any time abroad in studies or institutions of learning, but was to devote the trip to pleasure "as well as to enjoy the benefits of travel."

The will provided that "not less than four-fifths of the remainder of the residuary estate be devoted to establish and maintain a Fresh-Air Home for Children to be known as the Gertie Emily Gorman Webb Home. The executors and trustees were to select children of New York City who were not otherwise afforded such opportunity and were to erect an institution in the country at whichever place they deared.

The income of the other fifth was to be devoted to the Bide-a-Wee Home for Animals, the Lighthouse for the Blind and such other charities as the executors and trustees selected. In the event of no issue, it was directed that moneys provided for the childen and not otherwise disposed of be given to the Gorman Foundation and applied to charities. The husband and any trust company he designated in writing, other than the United States Trust Company (which administered the mother's estate), were to be made executors and trustees without bond.

Banton Awaits Medical Report.

Dr. Meyer, after a conference yesterday afternoon with District Attorney Banton, said to reporters:

"You must be patient. You must realize that in my position I cannot give out interviews. It might be construed as unethical."

Mr. Banton made the following statement:

"The District Attorney of New York County has not taken any action in the Webb case except to request Dr. Schultze to be present at the autopsy when information was received that the attending physician had refused a death certificate and that an autopsy would be ordered. The District Attorney will take no further action in the case until two facts are established: First, that a crime has been committed, and this will depend upon the report of Dr. Gettler; and, secondly, that it was committed either in New York County or begun here and ended elsewhere.

"If it is revealed that a crime has been committed and the District Attorney of New York County has jurisdiction, the case will be treated as any other homicide case and the activities of the District Attorney will be limited to co-operate with the police in examining such witnesses as the police may request."

GIRLHOOD FRIEND CHARGES MURDER

Mrs. Robert S. Johnstone Tells of Mrs. Webb's Strange Illness.

KEPT DIARY OF LAST DAYS

Wife of Ex-Judge Says Events Will Develop One of the Subtlest of Crimes.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Margaret Johnstone, wife of former Judge Robert S. Johnstone of General Sessions, sketched today at her home, 22 Midland Avenue, the history of her lifelong friendship with Mrs. Charles Webb, which began in 1898, when both were children and attended the private school at 224 Madison Avenue conducted by Mme. Mears, a Frenchwoman then recently arrived in New York. Mrs. Johnstone made her first statement to newspaper men today. Her account was told in the living room of her bungalow home in White Plains, where a log fire was burning brightly.

"We were just two little girls," she said, "we both were 5 years old. She was little Gertie Gorman and I was little Peggy Pollock. We had a very happy time in Mme. Mears's school, in spite of the fact that as I remember the Frenchwoman, she was very severe. And to think that only a week ago tomorrow I held that same Gertie Gorman in my arms.

"I am convinced she was murdered. It would not be fair, it would not be just for me, to name the person I think killed her. But the true facts will develop shortly and then I think one of the most subtle crimes of the century will be revealed.

"Constantly for the last three weeks of her puzzling illness I was with her. For three weeks, she and her husband had told me things so curious, so strange, that I have jotted them down almost in diary form. I shall produce these notes when the Westchester County or New York authorities call for them.

"Gertie died because her kidneys refused longer to function—failed to function, as I believe, because poison had been introduced. Until a short time before her death, poor innocent Gertie did not know she was taking poison, as I and other dear friends believe.

Dr. Meyer became suspicious soon after I had persuaded him to take charge of Gertie. Definite confirmation of these suspicions came to Dr. Meyer, to myself and other close friends before she passed away.

Won't Disclose Suspicions Now.

"What these suspicions were, I am not at liberty to state now, but I will say: That a man close to Gertie talked often to me, talked too much for his own good, talked almost to an extent to convict him as the man who had caused poison to be inserted.

"I shall not accuse this one. But the authorities should act and act quickly. They are welcome to the knowledge I have. This knowledge, I believe, coupled with the trained medical observation of Dr. Meyer and other eminent physicians called into consultation, will be sufficient to point suspicion to just one individual.

"Gertie was married to Charles Webb Nov. 4, 1922.

"He had been a sort of unofficial escort—the soft-voiced type often seen dancing attendance upon women of wealth.

"Before her marriage, we used to motor into the country and have delightful little parties, luncheons, &c. Gertie loved children and she loved animals. I saw her constantly.

"She knew nothing of love, romance and other things of the world, but she was essentially clean-natured. She was healthy and strong and happy. All this until her marriage to this man all of us knew [illegible]. I must speak frankly, none of us liked. I do not want to call him a fortune hunter—that is a rough phrase—but the fact remains that he was poor and Gertie was rich when he married her.

"After her marriage came a sudden change. Last Christmas she sent me a present, but I did not see her once, dear Gertie, who had constantly called and phoned and written to my children and myself.

"I did not see her until last Labor Day, Sept. 3, when her Packard limousine drew up to my door. Webb was with her. I talked to her, her appearance shocked me. She was pasty faced. Her eyes were glassy, she did not seem the same old comrade.

"Next day, Sept. 4, or perhaps Wednesday, Sept. 5, she asked my little son, Edward, to come to luncheon with her at the Westchester Biltmore Club. He went. She fed him ice cream, two plates, and he was entranced.

"She had asked me to come to see her. On Thursday, Sept. 6, we had a talk on the phone. She told me she felt ill and asked Dr. William J. Meyer and I to come to luncheon. We couldn't get to the club for luncheon but we arrived in the afternoon.

"Was Deathly Sick."

"I had introduced Dr. Meyer to her at least a year before her marriage. When we arrived Gertie was downstairs in the lobby. She gasped for breath as she greeted us. I saw she was deathly sick. I asked where her husband was. She said 'Weby,' as she called him, had gone to Bridgeport.

"I took off her clothes. Dr. Meyer examined her. He found evidences of pneumonia in one lung, the left. It was her left eye that was also affected. In addition, there were black and blue marks on various parts of her body, blotches or spots.

"Dr. Meyer took charge. He phoned to a nurses' registry and secured a night nurse, Miss ——. She arrived that night.

"Two days later he succeeded in getting a day nurse also. He gave up his practice in New York and devoted all his time and attention to Gertie.

"Next morning, Friday, Sept. 7, Webby wandered in from Bridgeport. He said Gertie had been suffering from a cold and minimized her condition. He volunteered to take the place as day nurse until the latter, Miss ——, arrived.

"Well, Dr. Meyer worked on the pneumonic condition for five or six days and by the middle of the following week—say about Wednesday, Sept. 12—the left lung was clear of infection, the pneumonia had disappeared and our friend's convalescence should have set in. But it did not. Gertie, apparently, was still a very ill woman. Dr. Meyer could not understand this.

"Then it was that he began to test other organs, and then it was that he discovered that some agency had interfered with the proper operation of Gertie's kidneys. He resorted to artificial means, but to no avail. Then he got from her the story of what had happened to her since her marriage, he learned what had been done to her, also learned this. It is enough to fill a book, but I can't talk about it now. It would not be fair. I shall tell it to the authorities, however, if I am summoned.

"Sufficient to say, Gertie's kidneys seemed to have been atrophied by the introduction of some outside element. Gertie said she had suffered from eye hemorrhage. She did not know why. Dr. Meyer called in an eminent eye specialist and an eminent diagnostician from New York, Drs. —— —— and Dr. ——. These men were equally puzzled. They could not understand her condition, this perfectly healthy woman who had successfully fought off the mild attack of pneumonia, and yet who appeared to be slowly dying.

"So we watched; we watched like hawks. We kept records. We talked to various people. Especially I talked to Charles Webb. He told me many, many things, things enough to hang a certain suspect.

"I am now making a record of these conversations and other things that transpired. I feel I cannot conscientiously talk about them now. But this poor, unsuspecting woman, I firmly believe, was poisoned when she least suspected it. The poison was administered to her deliberately, I feel, and stopped the action of her kidneys.

"Gertie told me many, many things—things that showed her abysmal ignorance of the ways of the world. It is sufficient to say now that I decided that Gertie's friends and Dr. Meyer should take charge of her during her last illness."

"One strange incident occurred during Gertie's last hours. I was the last person she recognized. She constantly called for me, 'Margaret.' She thought Miss —— the day nurse, and Miss —— the night nurse, was 'Margaret.'

"Her illness was painless—a sort of auto-intoxication. She lost consciousness, practically, about six hours before she died. A few minutes before 7 I left the room. No. 287, where she was dying. Sub-consciously, I heard her call my name. Her old father, Mr. Gorman, was with me. I rushed back into the room. Webb was not there. Dr. Meyer and other close friends were. Her head was rolling from side to side. Dr. Meyer told me she was dying. I held her head in my arms. At 7:04 she passed away.

"I felt she did not die a natural death. The authorities should act, and act speedily, before alibis are built up. This is all I shall have to say for the present."

SEIZE DUESSELDORF CHIEFS AND POLICE

French Authorities Hold Them Responsible for Sunday's Outbreak.

SOLDIERS PATROL THE CITY

Paris Government Says It Neither Encourages Nor Discourages Rhineland Movement.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 1.—Ten civilians and two security police killed and 200 wounded, including seven policemen, were the casualties, according to figures collected by the French staff, of yesterday's outbreak at the Free Rhineland demonstration here. The figures admittedly are only approximate. The wounded, for instance, include only those receiving treatment at the official ambulances and hospitals, both French and German. There is supposed to be a large number of more or less lightly injured who had their hurts dressed at home.

Big crowds assembled today around the police barracks, where the security police are under French military guard pending an inquiry to fix responsibility for yesterday's tragedy. The people were finally dispersed by detachments of dragoons.

Official French circles state there is every reason to believe that definite orders were given by the expelled Governor of the Rhineland, Herr Gruetsner, now at Elberfeld, in unoccupied territory, that the Separatists must be dispersed at all costs.

The chief leader of the Separatists at Duesseldorf, Herr Matthes, said this morning that such happenings could not fail greatly to increase the number of his supporters. Already he had received many fresh promises of adherence from people "finally disgusted with Prussianism by yesterday's massacre." Herr Matthes expressed some bitterness toward the French authorities for not intervening sooner. "Had the French placed a few detachments of troops in the vicinity or drawn a cordon across the side streets nothing would have happened," he said.

The Separatist leaders will meet at Coblenz tomorrow to decide on a future course of action.

Curfew Laws Again Enforced.

DUESSELDORF, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—French troops are patroling the streets of Düsseldorf today, having assumed the responsibility of maintaining strict order. A formal state of siege has not been declared, but the curfew law, closing activities from 11 P. M. until 5 A. M., is being rigidly enforced.

These measures have been deemed necessary as a result of yesterday's outbreak at a Separatist meeting, resulting in the killing of half a score of Germans and the wounding of scores of others, the French finally intervening.

This afternoon the French arrested four city officials and twelve members of the Security Police for alleged responsibility for yesterday's disorders. The officials arrested were President Rodde, Chief of Police Haas, Police Inspector Hoffner and Commissioner of Criminal Police Vollemberg. In addition some fifty members of the Security Police are being held in their barracks pending an investigation into the beginning of the affair.

Most of the blue-uniformed police are still being permitted to do duty, but they will have a very unobtrusive task, as the French will keep the work of preserving order in their own hands for some time.

Everything now is as quiet as if the disturbance had never occurred, and no further repercussions from yesterday's fighting are expected now that the Green police have all been disarmed and the Separatist delegations have left for home.

Berlin Version of Popular Feeling.

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—Sunday's sanguinary occurrences in Düsseldorf have provoked the bitter resentment of all classes of the population in the Ruhr, who are convinced that the Separatists selected that city for their rally only because they were assured of the armed protection of the French garrison and because Düsseldorf was the headquarters for the occupying powers, it is asserted in Düsseldorf advices from German sources today.

It is alleged that the neutrality of the French is only camouflage, and the German leaders in Düsseldorf point out that the French troops cleared the streets of the resident population early in the afternoon, reserving the thoroughfares for the Separatist demonstrators, whose "defense guards" are declared to have comprised detachments armed with revolvers and blackjacks. The fatal shooting began, the Germans assert, when the Separatists attacked a German police officer, whose rescue was attempted by a patrol of Green Police.

It is believed in official circles here in Berlin that, despite the fatalities which accompanied yesterday's demonstration, a decisive defeat was suffered by the Separatists, in that they failed to make a formal proclamation of a Rhineland republic. The Government, it is stated, is receiving emphatic assurances from all points in the Ruhr and the Rhineland that the overwhelming majority of the German populace is unwavering in its opposition to the secessionist movement.

French Government Neutral.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The attitude of the French Government toward yesterday's events in Düsseldorf is that the only role of the French was to re-establish order; that the French acted neither for nor against the Rhineland Separatist movement, but simply intervened when German police fired into the defenseless crowd. The Green Police were disarmed and arrested to prevent a repetition of the shooting.

The official position is set out in the following communiqué:

"France has nothing to do with the Separatist campaign. She neither encourages nor discourages it. But she has the duty of maintaining order in the territories occupied by her troops.

"The Germans had advised their compatriots to stay away from the manifestants. This advice was so badly followed that the Security Police lost their heads and fired on inoffensive manifestants. That moment the duty of our men was to restore order. They did so."

POINCARE REPROVES FRENCH EXULTATION

Premier in a Speech at Bar-le-duc Says That Germany Gives Only Words.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Premier Poincaré, in a speech to the General Councils at Bar-le-Duc today, warned against premature rejoicing in the French press over the German surrender in the Ruhr. He said that France had got nothing but words so far "and not very amiable words at that."

"After long months of patience," said the Premier, "after an interminable series of vain concessions, we went into the Ruhr, and immediately there began to be played a most astonishing comedy which several times almost turned into a bloody tragedy—resistance ordered by Berlin, attacks against our troops, sabotage of railroads, the emission of a billion marks, the support of workers in idleness and industrialists at their ease.

"The French did not get excited, but understood perfectly that these crazy demonstrations were powerless, and we said simply that Germany would get tired sooner than we of her resistance plan.

"The outcome which we foresaw has arrived. The resistance has fallen of its own weight, and the Berlin Government, which wished to sell us the inevitable cessation, found it was not able to keep it up. This avowal by Berlin has been surrounded with hostile comments, false accusations and lying assertions, and in doubtful and equivocal terms only has it withdrawn the resistance decrees.

"Whereupon with the best intentions in the world a large part of the French press has cried 'Victory!' and the Government has received from all sides enthusiastic congratulations, and personally I have been swamped by a flood of messages and telegrams, but I have heard my Lorraine friends whispering:

"'Now above all times be careful. It is evidently important that even the grumbling Reich has been forced to renounce its open fight; but is Germany to recommence dishonest manoeuvres? Up to now we have had only words and not very amiable words at that. What we want is acts and realities.

"'Do not let us sing victory too quickly and do not let us worry our Government. How many Ministers, how many statesmen, drunk with apparent success, have become dizzy and led us to disaster? Vanity is a bad counselor. Let us hope that excessive and premature eulogies will not cloud the brains nor weaken the will of those in power.

"This language appears to me to be reasonable and prudent, and I am sure it is your language. Let us work together for the restoration of our devastated communes and for the general good of the country. Our duty is not yet finished, and this is not the moment to cross our arms or loaf on our jobs."

retire again to the arsenal, where they still are at midnight.

It is confirmed here that the Monarchists, dressed as loyal soldiers, succeeded in smuggling themselves into the fortress during the last few days. In the early morning fight the invaders succeeded in getting on the steps of the tower, Colonel Cudovius's headquarters. Two companies of regulars attacked them. The invaders suffered twenty casualties.

The Monarchist troops number between 1,200 and 1,500.

Another battle was staged tonight for possession of the arsenal. A sortie was made by the Monarchists in an automobile. Shots were exchanged between the occupants of the machine and patrols as an attempt was made to dash through the cordon to the outside world for reinforcements. In this encounter the Government troops killed one man and wounded eight.

The situation tonight is as follows:

The invaders are in possession of the arsenal and several points of vantage, as well as big buildings and several streets. The loyal troops have succeeded in driving the invaders from several streets. Although the invaders have the upper hand in the arsenal, the loyal troops have a cordon around the town while awaiting reinforcements. These were expected at 8 o'clock tonight, but they had not arrived at midnight.

A battle is expected at midnight.

Colonel Cudovius, commander of the fortress, talked with a correspondent tonight, declaring:

"The first attempt was made at 6 o'clock at daybreak. The Monarchists, dressed like the loyal army, got to the old town of Kuestrin and marched in military formation against the fortress, containing a considerable part of the city itself, such as the post office, town hall, &c.

"The invaders entered a large part of the fortress and tried to storm my headquarters, when we made a counter-attack and, succeeded in driving them back into the quarter of the fort containing the arsenal. I believe I can bring about a favorable decision with my present forces, but I am awaiting reinforcements. When they arrive we expect the invaders will surrender without causing more bloodshed."

Attacked by Ex-Army Officer.

KUESTRIN, Germany, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Several hundred free-booting insurgents, recruited from Captain Ehrhardt's notorious Baltic Brigade and from nationalistic organizations representing the so-called "Black Reichswehr," this morning attempted to storm the citadel occupied by the Reichswehr garrison with the purpose of seizing arms and equipment.

The attack was repulsed by the local commander, but not until reinforcements arrived from Frankfort.

The attacking party was led by Major Buckrucker, a retired army officer, who, together with several hundred of his followers, was arrested and locked up.

Revolt Put Down, Berlin Asserts.

BERLIN, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The revolutionary movement originated by Nationalist organizations at Kuestrin has been put down, according to a communiqué issued by the Ministry of Defense.

The communiqué says that the commander of the Reichswehr troops, by energetic action, was speedily the master of the situation. The Reichswehr garrison forced its way into the town, surrounded the rebels in the arsenal and arrested several of their leaders.

The situation now is such that the reinforcements which had been called up from neighboring centres need not be sent to the scene.

Meanwhile the censorship has been imposed and is being rigorously enforced and little is known of what is happening. The brief communiqué fails to shed much light on the situation, but it would appear that while the insurgents were principally members of Nationalist associations they probably were supported by Communists.

There are indications that the situation is graver than the communication admits. It is pointed out tonight that the communication does not especially assert that the movement has been suppressed. Unofficially it is stated no blood was shed during the disorders. One of the ringleaders arrested, and who is threatened with the death penalty, is a former Major of the German Army.

Dr. Gessler, the Military Dictator, announced that his forces would not hesitate to fire when the occasion demanded, and his instructions were promptly carried out late this afternoon, when the troops dispersed an insurgent column which attempted to liberate the prisoners locked up in the citadel at Kuestrin.

Minor disturbances were reported today from Walfenbuttel and Halberstadt, where Communist gatherings are said to have been forcibly dispersed.

The censorship imposed on all military news sent from Germany is explained as due to the circulation of alarmist reports on the internal situation. Because of these the Minister of Defense informed the commanders of the various military districts that no news dealing with the troubles in unoccupied Germany, with the exception of official reports, must appear in the press.

Although Chancellor Stresemann would have much preferred to start the month of October with a more auspicious augury than a miniature insurrection, it was said today that the Government views the occurrence as a blessing in disguise, inasmuch as it proposes to make the incident a wholesome warning to other aspiring insurgents by making short shrift of the Kuestrin usurpers.

"Not only do we propose to cauterize this ulcer to its roots but we will also redouble our guard," one Government official declared. He admitted that white heat indignation prevailed at the Chancellery and the Ministry of Defense over the episode, which was looked upon as a stupid enterprise, without menace to the Government, aside from its pernicious effect on the present situation.

BALDWIN ASKS AID OF THE DOMINIONS

ernment, proceeded to put their plan into execution. His Majesty's Government decided that, being convinced of the inexpediency of such action, they could take no part in the execution of the Franco-Belgian measures.

"The German Government, refusing to recognise the legality of the occupation, ordered and organized passive resistance, which has been practiced up till now and has in its turn called forth ever stronger measures on the part of the occupying authorities. His Majesty's Government have had no easy task, while remaining in occupation of part of the Rhineland, in carrying out their policy of neither helping or hindering the action of their Allies, but they dare to hope that they have succeeded in the main in maintaining an attitude of strict neutrality.

"The notes which have been exchanged between us and the French Government since the January conference have more and more revealed an honest divergence of opinion as to the best method of obtaining reparations and of advancing the cause of permanent peace in Europe. That divergence reflects differences of temperament and outlook between the two nations which it would be foolish to ignore, but the last 20 years have shown that they are not incompatible with a whole-hearted co-operation in the face of grave danger. We have strained every nerve to preserve the solidarity of the Allies, and especially the Entente with France. We have done this, believing that any rupture between us might still further postpone the peace which Europe so sorely needs.

"I am aware that the patience we have shown in trying to preserve good relations with France has laid us open in many quarters to charges of indecision and weakness. But at least it has borne witness not only to our wish to act, in the words of Disraeli, as a 'moderating and mediatorial power' in the councils of Europe, but to our ardent desire to preserve our friendship with France.

"At this moment it seems that we are entering on a new phase with the collapse of German passive resistance, which appeared to be imminent when I met the French Prime Minister in Paris not many days ago. How the new situation will develop I shall not venture to predict, but one thing was clear to us in Paris, and becomes daily clearer. It is that only by the closest co-operation and complete confidence of the Allies in each other that we can hope for a settlement of Europe's difficulties."

Praises League on Corfu Issue.

The Premier then said a fuller statement would be made to the conference in a few days by Lord Curzon, and continued:

"Within the last few weeks we have been faced by a sudden crisis in the relations between Greece and Italy, which threatened at one moment to assume serious proportions, but which I am glad to say has now been settled. I do not desire to anticipate what will be said later upon this subject, but I wish in my present speech to call your particular attention to the very useful, and in my opinion effective, part played in this crisis by the League of Nations. I am aware that there are many people who consider that the League has missed a very obvious opportunity of establishing its prestige in quarters where it has hitherto been either derided or ignored. The temptation to treat dramatically and violently such a crisis is one to which a less statesmanlike body than the League Council might pardonably have succumbed.

"I consider that the members of the Council of the League deserve the greatest credit for having placed the permanent interests of peace above what might have seemed the immediate interests of the League itself. And in this moderation they have been amply justified. There is no single person possessing real knowledge of the recent crisis or any settled experience of a similar crisis in the past who does not realize today that had the League not existed and acted as it did, a resort to arms would almost inevitably have taken place and that had the Council of the League not shown a wise discretion, for which in some quarters they have been assailed, the outcome of the crisis might have been very different.

"The League, by its moderation and common sense, may temporarily have disappointed the expectations of its more ardent and impetuous supporters, but the exhibition of these qualities in very trying circumstances has strengthened its hold upon the confidence of reasoning men in all countries.

"I think we have every reason to be satisfied with the part played by our delegations at Geneva in contributing to this result."

Britain's debt to America was the next subject Mr. Baldwin took up. He said:

"Thanks largely to the mutual determination to arrive at an agreement, arrangements have been concluded with the Government of the United States of America for the gradual payment, over a long period, of the sums we borrowed from that Government to insure a successful prosecution of the war. It must be remembered that on our debt we were liable, apart from any question of repayment, to pay 5 per cent., amounting to over $200,000,000 for interest alone. The funding arrangement has reduced the burden for interest and repayment combined to $161,000,000 per annum.

"This burden, despite the various provisions intended to assist us in shouldering it, is very heavy. It amounts to 7d. in the pound on the income tax. It equals three-quarters of our total receipts from that tax before the war. Repayment of this debt is going to call for all our energies, but we considered that funding the debt was the only possible course consistent with the supreme standard of British credit, and that it was an essential preliminary to the restoration of the normal economic life of the world. The debts of great nations must be recognized if the foundations of commercial progress are to stand."

Reminding the conference that at its 1921 session one of the chief subjects was the Anglo-Japanese alliance and its bearing on the relations of the British Empire with America, Mr. Baldwin said the American President's invitation to a conference on disarmament arrived in the midst of the discussion. He continued:

"The Conference on the Limitation of Armament assembled in Washington in November, 1921. I do not think I exaggerate if I say that the results achieved exceeded our most sanguine anticipations. If these were due in great part to the dramatic proposals with which the United States Government confronted the conference at its opening meeting, by general admission they were also in no small degree attributable to the skill, tact and diplomacy of Lord Balfour, ably assisted by the delegates from the Dominions and India. * * *

"I think we may justifiably claim that these results, which are not only a real benefit but also contain promise for the future in the whole empire, are in no small measure due, first to last, to the imperial conference which was so largely concerned in initiating the Washington conference, and, second, to the British Empire delegation, which cooperated so successfully with the United States and other Governments in bringing it to fruition.

"The ratification of the quadruple Pacific treaty has now been completed, and thereupon the agreement concluded between Great Britain and Japan in 1922 automatically terminates."

Urges Limiting Air Forces.

After a few sympathetic words for "our faithful ally," Japan, over her recent calamity, Premier Baldwin took up imperial defense. He said:

"It will be within your knowledge that we have decided, with great reluctance, to add to our defensive air forces. When announcing this increase in our program to Parliament I said, and I should like to repeat here, that in conformity with our obligation under the Covenant of the League of Nations, his Majesty's Government would gladly co-operate with other Governments in limiting the strength of air armaments on lines similar to the treaty of Washington in the case of the navy, and any such arrangement, it is needless to say, would govern our policy of air expansion."

Mr. Baldwin told the Dominion Premiers of unemployment in Great Britain, roughly 1,250,000 being out of work, and explained that one of the remedies the British Government was looking to was to encourage the revival of trade. This led him to speak of the Imperial Economic Conference, which will meet under Sir Philip Lloyd Greame, President of the Board of Trade, and he said: "I am confident that we shall be able to devise measures which will be to our mutual advantage by way of redistributing population, improving transport and the means of communication and generally increasing facilities for the growth of trade within the Empire. The economic condition of Europe makes it essential that we should turn our eyes elsewhere. The resources of our Empire are boundless and the need for rapid development is clamant. I trust that we shall not separate before we have agreed upon the first steps to be taken to create in the not too distant future an ample supply of those raw materials on which the trade of the world depends. Population necessarily follows such extension, and that in its turn leads to the general expansion of business, from which alone can come improvement in the material condition of the people."

Gloomy Over Europe.

Concluding a survey of the world situation, Premier Baldwin said:

"Contemplating Europe as we do today, and comparing what we see with what we hoped for three or four years ago, we can find little to encourage us in our labors. The size of armies and the money spent on munitions are greater than in 1914. Economic solidarity is rent asunder. Is it not amazing that, after an exhausting, world-wide war, all efforts should not be directed to reconstruction, to building up the wealth spent in the war—and the waste—and to re-creation of the economic machinery which the war has put out of joint?

"The only consolations I can draw in the situation, so charged with unrest, are to recall the history of the past and to reflect on the unity of our own empire and the deep and universal desire of our people for peace. All great European wars have been followed by a recrudescence of militarism, and nations have taken far more years to recover the shock of war than the years which separate us from the Treaty of Versailles. * * *

"We have at least the League of Nations, and no one can have studied the transactions of its Assembly at Geneva without becoming aware of the growing international moral sense and the determination to confront the problems of reduction of armaments, difficult as they must be. * * *

"Compared with a century ago, there is a powerful friend of peace in the United States. In this room, on this occasion, it is natural that we should be most conscious of that league of nations in whose name we are assembled—the British commonwealth—that system of States spread all over the world, far greater, as General Smuts once truly said, than any empire which has ever existed, a commonwealth which, he said, would not live for itself alone, and could unite and strengthen its own bonds only in so far as it sought to relieve not only its own difficulties and troubles but those of the distracted world."

Conference to Sit Six Weeks.

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—With all the Prime Ministers of the Empire except Premier Bruce of Australia in attendance, the Imperial Conference opened its six weeks' session at 10 Downing Street today and after sitting for two hours adjourned early this afternoon until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. At that time the program for the procedure of the Premiers will be drawn up and the conference will listen to statements from Lord Curzon, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and the Duke of Devonshire, Secretary for the Colonies, regarding the colonial policy.

The official communiqué issued at the conclusion of today's meeting said that Premier Baldwin in welcoming the delegates reviewed the international situation and that short replies were made by Premiers Mackenzie King of Canada, Massey of New Zealand, Smuts of the Union of South Africa, Warren of Newfoundland, Cosgrave of Ireland and the Maharaja of Alwar, representing India, all of which, it was stated, would be made public later.

observe it in connection with his letter to me.

He wrote it on Saturday, mailed it at 10 o'clock Sunday night (as per the photographic reproduction of the envelope attached), addressed to me at the Jockey Club in New York. It was not received at the Jockey Club until about 11:30 this (Monday) morning. It was sent down immediately to my office, 45 Cedar Street, by messenger, so that I received it at 12 o'clock.

My first knowledge of its contents, and then not in its entirety, was through one of my morning papers, The New York World, which I obtained when leaving Hempstead for New York. I, therefore, have been compelled all this morning to decline over the telephone discussing a communication known to the public through the press, but which I had not received. I shall answer General Mitchell in due course.

The purpose of this statement is the same as would have been made, in any event, on the part of the committee.

The committee met last Friday, Sept. 28, and authorized me to see Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Hildreth, and ascertain whether it would be possible, in view of the improvement which Zev had made in his injured foot and the progress of his training, to run him on Oct. 6, the last day when the choice was to be made by the committee, in accordance with the contract signed by Mr. Tripp.

Mr. Hildreth was to come to my office on Saturday, but owing to a cold, was unable to do so. I therefore arranged to motor over from Hempstead to Belmont Park and meet him at his stable yesterday, (Sunday) morning. Mr. Sinclair was at the stable also when I arrived. I presented the wish of the committee to owner and trainer, to which Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Hildreth responded that they were prepared to do anything and everything to meet our views.

Not Ready for Long Race.

Mr. Hildreth stated that in view of the interruption which had come to the training of Zev following the running of the Lawrence Realisation, he could not, in justice to his charge, [illegible] and a half un[illegible] to negotiate that [illegible] up in his [illegible] to get him [illegible] the condition show his best form over the distance of the proposed test.

The committee and intelligent horsemen will understand that it would be folly and a crime to insist upon Mr. Hildreth running his colt a mile and a half without being absolutely fit for the task, as it might and probably would unfit him for running a good race on Oct. 20, whether chosen or not.

To a question from me as to what he considered the distance Zev would be prepared to run on Saturday, Mr. Hildreth answered, "A mile and an eighth." To the point blank question as to whether they would run the horse on Saturday, Mr. Hildreth replied, "Yes, but the committee would have to take the consequences if anything happened to the horse."

The committee has therefore put itself in communication with Admiral Grayson, asking him whether he would be willing to run his horse that distance, fully recognising that it is not as satisfactory as a mile and a half, which the committee understands My Own is fully prepared and trained to do.

Best Course at Aqueduct.

The best mile and an eighth course in this section of the country is at Aqueduct, the track being superior in quality and the form of the turn better than at any other race course in this vicinity.

The committee put itself in communication with Mr. Street, President of the Metropolitan Jockey Club, the owners of the Jamaica race course, and also Mr. Shevlin, President of the Queens County Jockey Club, owning the Aqueduct track. These two gentlemen are ready to co-operate and arrange for a race at Aqueduct if Admiral Grayson accepts.

In response to a telephone conversation with Admiral Grayson this morning, on the part of Mr. Woodward and Mr. Belmont, representing the committee, Admiral Grayson said he would have to confer with his trainer and would give an answer tonight.

It is regrettable that General Mitchell's letter should have been interjected into this situation to seemingly divert the attention of the committee and possibly throw an obscuring shadow on this statement, which the committee would have made irrespective of General Mitchell's letter.

There has been a great deal said about the Lawrence Realisation and the Trial Sweepstakes, Untidy having run second in both and the condition of the track being practically the same. The comparison is all in favor of the performance in the Realisation, admitting the contention of certain critics of Zev that he was a tired horse at the end of the race. The Lawrence Realisation was run much faster than the Trial Sweepstakes. Zev ran the mile and a half of the Realisation in 2:30 2-5, whereas My Own finished the Trial Sweepstakes race in 2:33 1-5. In the Lawrence Realisation the mile was covered by Untidy in 1:37 2-5, with Zev close up under slight restraint, which is a wonderful last mile, whereas the first mile of the Trial Sweepstakes was run in only 1:39 1-5, a speed covered by horses of all classes. This is not conclusive, but seriously indicative.

In conclusion, the committee is seeking but one result, and that is the selection of the best horse, irrespective of any other consideration.

Grayson's Telegram.

The telegram from Admiral Grayson to Mr. Belmont follows:

Major August Belmont,
Chairman, The Jockey Club,
New York.

On Sept. 15, after My Own won the Elimination Race at Belmont Park, I offered to race him against Zev for a mile and a half at any time at any place and for a purse or without one, the winner to meet Papyrus in the coming mile and a half race for the international cup.

Mr. Hildreth, trainer of Zev, stated at that time and repeated later that he would not race Zev against My Own under any conditions.

This morning you called me on the telephone and told me that Mr. Hildreth has changed his mind and now consents to race Zev against My Own for a mile and an eighth. Why propose to have an elimination race of a mile and an eighth when the international race to which it leads is for a mile and a half? Neither horse has any assurance that Papyrus would wait for him after a mile and one eighth.

My original proposition is open and fair and it stands. I will race My Own against Zev for a mile and a half at any time at any place with purse or without, the winner to meet Papyrus at the same distance.

CARY T. GRAYSON.

CAPITAL EXCITED OVER RACE.

Many Interested in Spirit of Fair Play—My Own in Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Washington is talking of nothing tonight but the dispute as to the plans of the Jockey Club in the international race. Even those who are not interested in racing, and there are many of them here, are interested in the controversy in the spirit of fair play. While My Own is a favorite horse in Washington because of Admiral Grayson, the talk centres chiefly upon the fair play feature of the contest. All kinds of rumors are heard here. Reports come from New York that My Own is lame and cannot successfully enter the try-out race.

"My Own is in good condition," said Admiral Grayson tonight. "My Own was on the track today and made a good record. I am ready to race at any time in a race which will establish which is the better fitted horse to match against Papyrus."

Admiral Grayson, in addition to denying the rumors, tonight issued orders to his trainer to give My Own a workout between races at Laurel tomorrow, so that the public may judge for itself as to the condition of the horse.

PRINCESS GIOVANNA SUFFERS A RELAPSE

Condition of the King of Italy's Daughter Is Again Causing Grave Anxiety.

PARENTS AT HER BEDSIDE

Patient and Her Sister, Mafalda, Attacked by Typhoid Fever a Fortnight Ago.

ROME, Oct. 1.—A serious relapse has been suffered by Princess Giovanna, third daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena, who, with her sister, Princess Mafalda, second daughter of the royal house, was believed to be virtually out of danger after the attack of typhoid with which both were seized a fortnight ago. Grave symptoms of hemorrhage and peritonitis appeared yesterday in the case of Princess Giovanna, and her condition is causing the greatest anxiety.

Giovanna's sound constitution is in her favor and she is putting up a brave fight. After one particularly severe seizure of pain she told her doctors she did not mind the suffering if she could only be cured. The Queen, who was at the bedside, burst into tears at the words of her daughter and sobbed: "I would give my kingdom and everything I possess to save her."

The doctors have been able to check the hemorrhages, but the state of the patient remains most serious. Dr. Bastianelli, the royal physician, and Professor Carle held a consultation today and agreed that there was a slight amelioration in Giovanna's condition. They expressed the hope that an operation would be unnecessary, but are prepared to perform one at once should it be required.

King Victor Emmanuel, who had left for Cremona, to attend a patriotic celebration, was recalled and arrived at the bedside of his daughter last night. Crown Prince Humbert also has been recalled by telegraph and is expected to arrive at Racconigi in a few hours.

Princess Yolanda, first daughter of the King and Queen, has arrived at Racconigi with her husband, Captain Count Carlo Calvi di Bergolo.

The town of Racconigi reflects the air of tension in the castle. The market has been suspended and the streets around the castle are covered with straw to deaden the noise of passing traffic. Even the church bells are silent so as not to disturb the royal patients.

Premier Mussolini has expressed a desire to be kept constantly informed of the Princess's progress.

TURIN, Oct. 1.—Princess Giovanna has developed peritonitis and has suffered a serious intestinal hemorrhage, according to advices from Racconigi. If her condition requires, she will be operated on by Dr. Joseph Bastianelli, physician to the royal household, or by Professor Carle, who, with Professor Augustus Lurri of Bologna, has gone to the castle at Racconigi.

RECORD SEVERE SHOCKS, PROBABLY IN PERSIA

Japan Also Experiences New Violent Tremors—Dead and Missing Now 340,000.

ROME, Oct. 1.—The Seismological Observatory at Faenza at 2:30 o'clock this morning registered a series of violent earth shocks.

It is believed the centre of the disturbance was some 3,000 kilometers distant, probably somewhere in Persia. The shocks lasted for two hours.

HONGKONG, Oct.1 (Associated Press).—A slight earthquake lasting nearly a minute was felt here at noon today.

TOKIO, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—American Red Cross officials engaged in relief work here today estimated that 225,000 persons were killed, approximately 450,000 injured and about 2,000,000 made wholly or partially destitute in Tokio, Yokohama and vicinity by the earthquake. High praise was given to Japanese officials for their co-operation.

Severe earthquakes shook Taito, Formosa, on Saturday, destroying many houses, according to official reports received in Tokio. It is feared the loss of life was heavy. The shocks were continuing when the last report was sent out.

There were severe shocks around Shizukoa, on Hondo Island, about eighty miles southwest of Tokio, on Sunday. The most severe was about 3:30 P. M.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—An official dispatch from Tokio to the Japanese embassy today placed the number of known dead in the earthquake zone at 103,000, the injured at 125,000 and the missing at 285,000. The number of persons who have left Tokio is 1,068,000.

A total of 534,000 houses were destroyed and the total property damage was said to be variously estimated at two and one-half billion to five billion dollars.

If the great number of persons still reported as missing in the Japanese earthquake shall finally be presumed to have died, the total fatalities would reach nearly 340,000.

"How-do-you-play-Ma-Jong?"

Half New York is asking the other half: how-do-you-play-Ma-Jong? Undoubtedly its flexibility must be its fascination. For it seems to be not only a "game of a thousand intelligences," but a sport of as many attractions. History records that it stopped one revolution, but any day now it is liable to start another!

At Ovington's, Ma-Jong sets may be bought from $17.50 to $225.00.

OKLAHOMA COUNTIES DEFY WALTON ORDER

County announced that he would not follow the instructions from the Governor. All day his office was swarming with residents who volunteered their assistance in insuring the election, and tonight 1,300 commissions had been issued, with the work still proceeding.

Corridors of the Court House were thronged with his special deputies when supplies started moving to the polling places. Each was under heavy guard, which is to be maintained until the vote is tabulated.

O. A. Cargill, Mayor of Oklahoma City, issued orders to the police force not to interfere with any voter and to "co-operate with the county officials in the protection of election officials in the discharge of their duties."

Governor Ousts Election Board.

Earlier in the day Judge George W. Clark in the State District Court granted a restraining order enjoining all military and civil State officers from attempting to remove from office any members of the Oklahoma County Election Board.

Representatives of Governor Walton were further enjoined from "excluding the members of the board from exercising the functions of their office," and from "threatening, intimidating or displaying force in the presence of or against the members of the board or interfering in any way whatsoever in their performance of duty with respect to the election."

The injunction also barred them from "destroying ballots or supplies," from "going in or about the polling places" and from "interfering with any voter at any of the polls."

The injunction followed Governor Walton's action reconstituting the State Election Board today and sending telegraph orders to all county boards to halt tomorrow's election.

The Governor filed an executive order with the Secretary of State removing John F. Logan, Democrat, Chairman of the board, and naming in his place Ira Mitchell. C. W. Kelly, Republican member of the board, retained his position, but was understood to have assured the Executive he would support him in the board's conduct. W. C. McAlister, Secretary of the board, is the only elective member. The other two are Executive appointees.

Indicating that new County Election Boards would be named where present members refused to halt the election, George Simpson, Secretary to the Governor, and James Mathers, an attendant from the Executive offices, took several hundred county election certificates and the State Election Board seal from the office of the State board this afternoon.

Simultaneous with the action of the reconstituted board in ordering the election off, Attorney General Short sent this telegram to all County Attorneys:

"The election on Oct. 2 is a legal election. Observe Section 7, Article 3, Constitution of Oklahoma. Advise your Sheriff that it is his duty as well as yours to obey the Constitution of the State."

Mr. Short also made public an opinion rendered by his office to J. B. A. Robertson, former Governor, holding that the Chief Executive had no authority to commission special State police officers.

Ballot Boxes Seized at Waurika.

WAURIKA, Okla., Oct. 1 (Associated Press.)—Defying election officials to hold tomorrow's election here, seven men, headed by J. H. Q. Dillard, a Carter County oil operator, seized the ballot boxes today and declared they would not allow them to be taken to the voting precincts. The men said they were acting under orders from Governor Walton.

1,500 Deputies to Aid Tulsa Voting.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Distribution of election supplies in Tulsa County began this afternoon under guard of more than 200 armed special deputies pressed into duty by Sheriff R. D. Sanford after twelve "armed citizen volunteers" placed on guard at election headquarters by order of Governor J. C. Walton had been ordered out of the County Court building.

Two armed deputies were assigned to each precinct ballot box with instructions to guard it until the vote had been tabulated Tuesday night.

An injunction directed against the entire National Guard of the State and also against all officers operating under authority of Special State Police Commissions restraining them from interfering with the election tomorrow was issued here today by Justice A. C. Hunt in the State District Court.

Sheriff Sanford said there would be 1,500 deputies in service Tuesday, and declared "there will be at least twenty armed deputies sworn in to permit the election to every one of Governor Walton's gunmen ordered to break it up."

Thirty five thousand ballots, printed last night, will be taken to precinct polling places tonight and will be guarded every minute until the election is over, according to county election officials.

A deputy sheriff declared there were five hundred armed assistants in the election headquarters, pledged to support the election.

An Invention in the Art of Corsetry

"Beaulastique"
Reg. Applied For

A NEW corset has arrived—a perfected elastic corset, made possible by a new discovery in the weaving of corset elastic so that it is now as supple as the human form itself.

"Beaulastique" is the new corset success, made of elastic woven in Paris exclusively for Bonwit Teller & Co. and sold at this store only in the United States.

Instead of making corsets from elastic cut from a large piece, Beaulastique is woven and shaped for each individual corset separately, so that a Beaulastique corset is moulded to the human form as if it were woven on the human body.

"Beaulastic" emphasizes the best lines in a woman's body, bestows the straight contour required by the smartest fashions, permits the greatest freedom as if the body were uncorseted!

The smart woman cannot afford to overlook Beaulastique—and to look at it means to wear it!

The Spanish House

announces the opening of a Spanish house which has been built on the Fourth Floor as a background for a fine collection of Spanish furniture and antiques.

The house was designed by a well known New York architect, and consists of four large rooms and a patio, the arches of which are supported by rows of twisted columns.

The rooms have been arranged as a living room, breakfast room, bedroom and dining room. In them are assembled all the characteristic furnishings of a fine Spanish house—massive walnut tables, carved chests, beds and chairs, paintings, iron, brocades, rugs and pottery.

The Spanish House

is interesting as a whole, in all its architectural details, such as fireplaces, windows and wall cupboards. The collection of Spanish antiques which it contains is one of the most important ever offered to the public.

YOUNG MEN'S OVERCOATS

One of the leading tailors of London has made exclusively for us a number of topcoats and great coats which we now present ready for immediate service.

In our own productions in medium and heavy weight raglan and slip-on overcoats we have retained the lines and draping of the English models and have imported for these overcoats the very fine hand-loomed shetlands fleeces, tweeds and homespuns used in the English overcoats.

The sizes range from 33 to 42 chest measure.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1923.

AMONG GOVERNORS.

Governor PINCHOT views his achievement in "settling" the coal strike at the expense of the users of anthracite and pronounces it very good. Eager to extend the benefit, he has asked Governors of States whose citizens are forced to fatten the Pennsylvania monopoly to be vigilant in protecting consumers from "undue and unnecessary increase in price."

At least two Governors haven't shown a meek and docile spirit. The other day Governor SILZER of New Jersey dared to say that Pennsylvania is "not a good neighbor." She lays a tax of 13½ cents on every ton of coal at a valuation of $9. The State Fuel Commission obligingly held that 50 cents may be added to the cost of each ton at the mines to pay the tax and "incidental expenses." Governor SILZER estimates that the New England States, New York, Delaware and New Jersey had to chip in about $4,000,000 last year to pay this tax; and Pennsylvania "openly admitted "that its purpose was to make the "coal consumers pay the running ex- "penses of Pennsylvania." Governor SILZER was brutal enough to suggest that the remission of this tax would take away some of the extra 60 cents a ton abstracted from the consumer's pocket by Governor PINCHOT'S intervention.

In a polite but admirably neat letter Governor SMITH says:

> Your suggestion that the public can be protected against payment of this increase in some way by the action of the Public Service Commission of this State entirely loses sight of the fact that no anthracite coal is produced in this State and no shipments of anthracite originate in this State. The freight rates of anthracite coal are all regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission so far as this State is concerned.

The coal, produced only in a few counties, is a Pennsylvania monopoly. In 1895 the Pennsylvania Legislature gave the United Mine Workers an entire monopoly of labor in the mines. From time to time there is a strike. The coal resources of Pennsylvania are conserved. From time to time the strike is settled at the expense of consumers. Faithful to her thrifty object of making extra-Pennsylvanians pay her running expenses, Pennsylvania has added 50 cents a ton to the price. "Now," as Governor SMITH writes Governor PINCHOT, "the settlement "of the coal strike, giving a further "increase of 60 cents a ton, has made "you assume the responsibility for "those additions to the cost of coal "to the consumers."

If there is any gouging and profiteering in anthracite in this State it will be checked and punished. Governor SMITH has asked the Commissioner of Markets in this city and the men who were County Fuel Administrators last Winter to inquire into supplies and prices and to get evidence of profiteering, if there is any. He will do what he can to prevent consumers from being bilked in this State. But the prime source of bilking is in Pennsylvania.

Governor PINCHOT informed President COOLIDGE that "many operators "could absorb the whole of the 60- "cent increase and still make abun- "dant profits." As these operators, Governor SMITH reminds his Keystone brother, "are wholly within the juris- "diction of your State, it would seem "to me that, in the discharge of the "special responsibility which you say "rests upon you in the matter, some "action should be taken by you and "your State to see that the operators "do absorb this increase which you "say they can absorb, and thus do "not pass it on to the consuming "public of New York and neighboring "anthracite-using States."

This is exquisite irony, even if wasted on so eminently serious a personage as GIFFORD PINCHOT.

MAGNUS AND THE SMALL FRY.

The visit of Senator MAGNUS JOHNSON to New York was not without its comic aspects. Our local leaders of political shock troops, the "romantic rebels," as they have been called, gathered about the rough Swede from the Minnesota farm to feast and to flatter him. Here was perhaps the earth-shaker that they so much need in their make-believe revolutionary business. He had torn things open in Minnesota; might he not be the man they so long have sought, and mourned because they found him not, who would bring about that general convulsion which they will not be happy until they get? So with great curiosity and unconcealed eagerness they buzzed and fluttered about the Western disturber of the conservative peace for a whole afternoon and evening, taking note of him and plying him with questions to discover whether, after many disappointments, they had not at last found a man after their own heart to lead them to the destruction of what they are pleased to call "our rotten social order."

If they sought the presence of MAGNUS despondent, they left it dejected. The fellow has so much to learn, displays such a depressing amount of horse sense! He denied that he was a radical. All that he is bent upon at present is to obtain a measure of what he conceives to be justice for the farmers. For the soft-handed intellectuals who flocked to him in this city, and who toil not, neither do they spin, he must have had an unexpressed feeling of something like contempt. At all events, he was not here to give them aid and comfort. If they wanted to get up a snug little third party of their own, that was their affair; he would have nothing to do with it at present. His first and main endeavor would be to make use of one or the other of the existing parties. If that failed, it would be time enough to talk. Meanwhile he made it plain that he would have neither part nor lot with the little groups of our best thinkers who lunch on the social revolution and dine off the dictatorship of the proletariat.

It is a part of the unconscious humor of our romantic rebels that they are sublimely unconscious of the figure they cut in the eyes of the observant. It is probable, therefore, that they did not give a thought to the spectacle they were making of themselves in groveling before MAGNUS JOHNSON. It was, in fact, the worst possible example of that which they so indignantly attack—the worship of the god of things as they are. Senator JOHNSON had won a great success in Minnesota. That was enough for them. They would hitch their wagon to his star if they could. To be sure, they had long been preaching the doctrine of the need of educated and inspiring leadership, of an enlightened vision of the future, of passionate devotion to the welfare of the wronged and inarticulate masses, but what did all that matter if they could somehow contrive to attach their movement to this rude Orson of the prairies?

Their whole display of themselves was so ludicrous that it did not seem as if any touch were needed to make it complete. But that touch was added by MAGNUS himself in his partly amused and partly scornful turning away from the little credulous band that fancied him to be one who would start out to lead them with a torch in one hand and a bomb in the other.

GERMAN TAX-DODGERS.

It is reported that the German Government is about to adopt severe measures against "tax-dodgers." This is proper enough, but in the circumstances has an air almost grotesque. A well-informed article in the September Fortnightly Review shows what a premium has been put upon evasion of taxes, or delay in their payment, by the mad financial policy of the German Government. According to a recent statement, the revenue from all sources was only one-fiftieth of the total expenditure. Progressive debasement of the mark has made the paying of taxes very nearly a farce. By merely waiting a day or two, the citizen could cut his dues to the Government in half. Indeed, an official report admitted the fact that the entire return of taxes did not amount to the cost of collection. Thus Germany has become a veritable paradise for the tax-dodger.

This is only one evidence of the extremity to which German public finance has been reduced. A member of the Cabinet, Herr RAUMER, recently had the courage to tell the people the truth. His language was:

> At first we lived off the losses which foreigners suffered in consequence of the depreciation of the mark. Then we lived off the capital of the holders of our public debt. Finally we have used up the very reserves of our economic life. No other reserves exist. The only way to change the situation is to stop the issue of paper marks. But that would imply that the budget must be balanced. Now, the fact is that the budget cannot be balanced so long as the struggle in the Ruhr swallows such enormous sums.

Another truth brought home with bitterness to the German people is that they stand alone in the world. This was frankly conceded by Chancellor STRESEMANN in his speech early last month. He said that Germany has no one to aid her in her foreign policy. "She will have no allies until "the time when other nations see "that she has the courage to impose "upon her people the sacrifices nec- "essary to save the State."

THRIFT, KAMELIA, THRIFT!

From the last of a series of articles on the Ku Klux Klan in Maine, written by Mr. A. J. GORDON for The Boston Herald, we learn that such Dirigo women as are willing to pay the regular price for hoods and robes will be allowed to become Klanswomen. The female annex bears the flowery name Kamelia. Portland is to have a chapter, Bangor is to have a chapter, if business is good. According to the organizers or cash-collectors, the object of the Kamelia is "to educate "women in the science of government "and history of the United States, "and to contribute funds to orphan- "ages and similar deserving institu- "tions." A future ornament of the Kamelia waves away tar and feathers, a favorite adminicle of virtue among the Klan doctors. No whipping, no violation of the law! But something mysterious and terrible awaits female persons unsatisfactory to the Kamelia. "We propose, whenever we feel the "need, to bring retribution in a man- "ner which, when it has been publicly "administered once or twice, will "bring the realization that women "have at last found a way of dealing "summarily with the problems con- "fronting them."

The astute gentlemen in charge of the receipts have found a way of dealing satisfactorily with their chief problem:

> It is understood that the initiation fee in the women's organization will be in the neighborhood of $10. The robes, which are to have a little more material than the ones worn by the men, will be sold for about $6 or $6.50 each. These hooded robes, by the way, will also be manufactured by the organization turning out the Klan robes, which is a concern directly affiliated with the Klan. All the profits are thus distributed among the Klan officials. The robes will be white, trimmed with red and blue.

These patriots use the color of the flag, but the color of their dupes' money is what they're after. The scheme is neat. Keep the money in the family! We don't know what the orphanages and so on are going to get out of Kamelia. The Klan manufacturers of robes and hoods are going to get their $6 a head first. Mr. GORDON says that the gods of the Maine manufacturers of hoods, robes and trouble "have turned longingly to Nova "Scotia and the Provinces, where it "is proposed to garner a new crop of "Klan members." They think that Canada is fine territory in which to sell their "stuff."

THE STRONG MAN WEAKENS.

The last act of the tragi-comedy of Corfu is out of harmony with all that went before. MUSSOLINI, having exacted a fine of 50,000,000 lire from the Greeks, gives back 10,000,000 lire to be used for the relief of Greek and Armenian orphans. Thus, according to the Rome dispatches, he shows that the Italian Navy had no evil intentions when it accidentally killed a score or so of orphans in the bombardment of Corfu, and also proves that his action against Greece was not taken for financial profit. To the outer world this indicates that MUSSOLINI has a conscience, or at any rate a sharper ear for foreign opinion than had been supposed. In so far as he is trying to make atonement for the slaughter of the innocents at Corfu, let him by all means be applauded.

That the Italian Navy had no specific plans of aggression against the Corfu orphan asylum may be taken for granted. What that bombardment proved was that Italian naval intelligence was unaware that the fort at Corfu, dismantled for many years, was used as an orphan asylum; that Italian gunners were so unskillful that when shooting at an old fort on a hill they hit a bathing beach at the foot of the hill, and that the Italian naval command was apparently in a general mood of hilarity, inclined to open fire before discovering if there was anything to shoot at, and able to come back to sanity only when it appeared that some Englishmen might have been hit. This is to say nothing of the enthusiastic Italian press which hailed the achievement as a great victory, and denied that any Armenian orphans had been hit for several days after the fact was established to the satisfaction of the rest of the world.

It is probable that when the families of the murdered Italian officers have been compensated and the cost of the Corfu expedition paid, 40,000,000 lire will leave the Italian Government little, if any, profit. But this is not MUSSOLINI'S fault. When he seized Corfu he announced that Greece must pay not only the 50,000,000 lire fine, but the expenses of the occupation; and "next week the price will "be higher." Then he discovered what should have been plain before the enterprise was begun, that England and France did not propose to let him stay in Corfu. He took the 50,000,000 lire because that was all he could get. But if what MUSSOLINI wanted was compensation for the families of the murdered men, he could have got it by ordinary negotiation. There was no need for sending forth fleets and armies and this drumming up of jingo nationalist sentiment which is now left very poorly satisfied.

MUSSOLINI'S strong-arm work, in short, has won for Italy nothing that she could not have got by peaceful methods; but it has aroused a lively fear, suspicion and hatred of Italy in the small nations within her reach; it has caused an unfavorable reaction of public opinion all over the world, and it has shown that Italian diplomacy is short-sighted and clumsy. Where do sensible Italians find any national advantage in this? MUSSOLINI, in fact, is the most dangerous kind of autocrat—a muddle-headed autocrat with an uneasy conscience. His cardinal sin is that he doesn't know where he is going, and next to that might be placed the obvious fact that when he discovers where he has gone his first thought is to save his face. His methods are a good deal more like those of WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN than of CAESAR. A stupid autocrat is an expensive luxury.

ILL-TIMED SEPARATION.

Like most "revolutionary" movements planned on a time schedule, the Separatist uprising in Düsseldorf has come to naught. There have been many similar riots in Central Europe since the armistice, liberally attended by crowds of the curious who had been forewarned that at zero hour a revolt would be staged at a given spot. But all have been abortive, although in this latest instance the casualties seem to have been unusually high. Its principal significance lies in the possible effect upon the Stresemann Government. It was certain that with the giving up of passive resistance the forces of discontent throughout the Reich would try to profit from the resultant demoralization. Hence the wisdom of President EBERT in proclaiming martial law. The probability is that one by one the different groups will cause a stir—a few days ago it was the Bavarian Nationalists; Sunday it was the Rhineland Separatists; yesterday it was the Prussian reactionaries; today it may be a radical group.

Although there may have been a time when France would have welcomed a separate Rhine republic—certain factions during and since the Peace Conference constantly intrigued for it—there is nothing to show that the Poincaré Government was back of the Düsseldorf rioting. France has nothing to gain at present by a separate Rhineland republic. Despite the publicity given in Paris to the activities of Dr. DORTEN, the self-styled leader of the Rhineland movement, there is little to show that France was using him except as a pawn in the diplomatic game. M. POINCARÉ is enough of a realist to understand that if the Stresemann Government is to carry out its policy of fulfillment it must represent the political unity of the German Reich.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

There Must Be More to It.

Wide as are the differences between criminal procedure here and in France, it is difficult to credit entirely the dispatch from Paris which said that a confessed thief had been acquitted there because the $30,000 he stole was taken from a rich American corporation.

Of course, the story was not "made out of whole cloth." Presumably the prisoner's counsel, having an extremely bad case, worked to the extent of his ability on the sympathies and the prejudices of the jury. He may have told them, as reported, that as the young man robbed his employers to supply the needs of a pretty sweetheart they should not regard his crime too harshly; it is not incredible—the consciences of some lawyers will stand a lot of stretching in the service of a client—that he alleged that the American company had so much money that a loss so small would not hurt it, and that of late it had been making big profits at the expense of France by utilising the depressed value of the franc as compared with the dollar.

All this, however, would be so obviously as well as so absurdly irrelevant to the only question at issue that the jury's verdict, one hopes and can believe, had at least in part a better basis. If it did not, the case has a gravity that conceivably might make it a diplomatic "incident" and justify a request by our State Department for an explanation. Surely the French Government would not tolerate the spreading abroad of the impression that American property in France can be stolen with impunity.

Those That Teach by Night.

The Board of Education in its budget for next year has made a request for an increase of $58,500 in the appropriation for elementary evening schools. This is designed to make possible the increase of the amount paid per night to the teachers in these public schools. Their salary at present is only $3.90. These teachers have to do chiefly with the foreign-born wishing to fit themselves for early and intelligent citizenship.

As has been frequently pointed out, however, teachers of foreign languages to native Americans in the evening high schools receive compensation at the rate of $6.50 a night. This disparity would be lessened, though not entirely removed, under the new budget, which the Board of Estimate ought to approve. It is desirable, of course, that our young people should have the opportunity to learn foreign languages, but it is more than desirable, it is essential, that those of alien tongue should have every inducement to learn our own language and every assistance in becoming acquainted with the history, the laws and the civic purposes which are written in it.

Moreover, the constitutional amendment passed less than two years ago makes literacy a prerequisite for voting. It is a moral obligation on the part of the State, having made this wholesome requirement, to see that opportunities are given those beyond the public school age to fit themselves for active citizenship. This item in the budget should stand.

CHURCH WELCOMES FOSDICK INQUIRY

Session of First Presbyterian Congregation Offers to Aid Committee of Presbytery.

ORTHODOXY QUESTIONED

Licensing of Students Who Refused to Affirm Belief in Virgin Birth Is Defended.

The Session of the First Presbyterian Church announced in a letter read yesterday before the Fall meeting of the New York Presbytery that they would do everything in their power to facilitate the work of the Committee of Presbytery appointed to consider complaints against the retention of the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, as special preacher in the First Church. His orthodoxy has been questioned.

The meeting was held in the chapel of the First Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street. The letter, which was signed by Henry N. Tifft, clerk of the session, was read by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, Chairman of the "Fosdick" Committee, to whom it was addressed. It was ordered placed in the minutes. The letter, dated Sept. 27, read:

> The session of the First Presbyterian Church, New York, has been officially notified that the Presbytery of New York has appointed a committee, of which you are Chairman, to act for it in observing the instructions of the last General Assembly based upon an overture from the Presbytery of Philadelphia concerning utterances from the pulpit of the church which they represent.
> "The Session wishes to assure you that it will welcome such inquiries as you see fit to make and is willing to put at your disposal all the information which it has bearing upon the question at issue.
> "Should you so desire, it will be glad to meet your committee in conference and do everything in its power to facilitate the accomplishment of your delicate task."

Dr. Work stated that the committee had held four meetings, two in May at Indianapolis, and two in June. It had held no meeting since as the five members had been scattered on their vacations. "In the meantime," he added, "the committee has been very thoughtful and very prayerful and has gathered available information. But most of all we have been much in prayer."

The report of the Special Committee, appointed last June to defend the action of Presbytery in licensing to preach two Union Seminary students who declared they could not affirm belief in the Virgin birth, was placed in the minutes. After praising the two students, the report said:

> "Their attitude of reverence toward Christian doctrine was particularly marked. In their entire examination no negative note was sounded. Their personal attitude toward Christ strengthened the Presbytery in its judgment as to their qualifications for the ministry.
> "The committee earnestly feels that young men of such evident consecration and spirituality should not be discouraged from preaching the Gospel under the supervision of Presbytery."

The Presbytery unanimously received under its care the Rev. John Nolan Day, and Dr. Evans, Chairman of the Committee on Candidates for the Ministry, stated had been a Roman Catholic priest for thirty-two years. Dr. Evans said that later Father Daly wished to be licensed as a Presbyterian minister. Father Daly is at the Biblical Seminary, 541 Lexington Avenue.

'DRY' CHALLENGE FOR HILL.

Congressman's Beverage Experiments Are Called Illegal.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—A definite showdown between prohibition headquarters and Representative Hill, Republican, of Maryland, over the latter's "labratory experiments" in making cider and fruit juice beverages, is in prospect within a few days.

Analyses made by Government chemists, showing an alcoholic content of more than the 12 per cent. claimed by Representative Hill from his "cellar laboratory" work, and reported by him to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, are to be the basis of action by the Federal authorities. Officials, who will communicate further with Representative Hill, have stated privately that, while the Volstead law permits home manufacture of cider and fruit juices, it makes illegal the manufacture of any beverage which contains more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol.

It is expected that Mr. Hill will be advised formally soon of the alleged violation of law seen in his "experiments." Officials have declared that the law will take "its usual course."

TO WELCOME LLOYD GEORGE

Committee of 400 to Meet Him on Arrival of Mauretania.

A committee of more than 400 representative citizens of New York has been formed to receive Mr. Lloyd George when he lands from the Mauretania on Oct. 5. The Honorary Presidents of the committee are Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mayor John F. Hylan and Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen and Acting Mayor. The President of the committee is Chauncey M. Depew.

Lloyd George will be met at Quarantine by Butler Wright of the State Department, representing President Coolidge; the British Consul General, representing the British Ambassador, and Grover A. Whalen, representing the city authorities.

The United Press has issued invitations to a luncheon for Lloyd George at the Biltmore on Oct. 5.

FIND DIRIGIBLE IN GEORGIA.

Farmers Save Airship That "Escaped" From Belleville, Ill.

WOODSTOCK, Ga., Oct. 1.—A small dirigible balloon bearing the inscription "U. S. A. Balloon No. 1" fell near here today. No one was aboard and farmers anchored the ship. It was slightly damaged.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Oct. 1.—Officers at Scott Field asserted that the small dirigible balloon found near Woodstock, broke away near here yesterday when Lieutenant Dache Reeves of Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., and his mechanic were forced to land because of a heavy wind.

BUNKER HILL MAP IS SOLD.

British Battle Plan Brings £195 at London Auction.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The plan used by the British forces at the Battle of Bunker Hill was sold at a London auction room for £195. The purchaser was an American.

The map is about eight inches square and bears the signature of Major Gen. Sir Henry Clinton.

Hooper Asks Power for Labor Board

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Chairman Hooper of the Railroad Labor Board presented to President Coolidge today recommendations that the Transportation act be amended to give the board more authority in the enforcement of its rulings. The authority asked for, Mr. Hooper said, would be particularly helpful in dealing with railroad managements. He said that the board at present had satisfactory powers over the employes through a rather indirect control exercised by the management in discharging employes who refused to obey its rulings.

OPPOSE AN EXTRA SESSION.

Grangers Tell the President Congress Cannot Right Troubles.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Coolidge heard today another side of the situation concerning the well-being of the farmers. For the past month he has been urged by Senators, Representatives, leading men in farm organizations and others to call Congress in extra session right away, to enact legislation to relieve the agricultural communities of the ills from which they are said to be suffering. The drive has been especially emphasized in the interest of wheat growers, but arguments to the contrary were advanced to him today.

Among the President's callers were members of the Executive Council of the National Grange, headed by S. J. Lowell of New York, Master. The National Grange is the oldest farm organization and claims to have 1,000,000 members. Mr. Lowell and his associates told the President they did not favor an extra session. Their view was that the present troubles of the farmers were due to economic causes which could not be righted by laws.

The Grangers opposed the proposal of Representative Sidney Anderson of Minnesota, endorsed by bankers from the Ninth Federal Reserve District, embracing Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, that the present import duty of 30 cents a bushel on wheat be increased 50 per cent. The Grangers held that this would not have the effect expected of increasing the price of wheat to the grower.

Representative Hoch of Kansas, whose district is given over mainly to farming, told Mr. Coolidge he did not claim to have any remedy for present farm conditions, but he opposed the suggestion of an extra session and the proposed increase of the wheat duty.

T. O. Thompson of Birmingham, Ala., who came to tell the President of a forthcoming conference of cotton growers in Nashville, indicated that the South was not in sympathy with the extra session plan.

FOR BETTER INDUSTRY.

Shientag Tells Safety Council Living Standard Will Be Maintained.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The working men and women of this country will never again return to the lower living standards of other days, and farseeing employers are keeping this fact in mind in planning future operations, Bernard L. Shientag, State Industrial Commissioner, told 3,500 industrial safety experts gathered here today from all parts of the United States, Canada and several European countries for the twelfth annual congress of the National Safety Council.

The congress, held this year in conjunction with the conference of the New York State Department of Labor and the meeting of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons, is regarded as the most important gathering of the kind ever held in this country.

"On the whole, the present standard of living of the working men and women of America is the highest in the world," said Commissioner Shientag. "While this fact must be gratifying to all of us, we must be equally conscious of the fact that in a country as rich and powerful as ours there is still much room for the improvement of that standard. Particularly is this true of certain industries in which large groups of women are employed at less than living wage."

FEAR REVOLT IN HONDURAS.

Domination of Coming Election by Dictator Rouses Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Semi-official advices reaching Washington today from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, say political excitement is reaching the danger point in that country.

The principal daily newspaper, The Cronista, in Tegucigalpa, which has been bitterly opposing the Government candidate for the Presidency, Dr. Arias, has been seized and the offices closed. Its editor, Paulino Valladares, escaped to Nicaragua with a large group of supporters of General Tiburcio Carias, candidate of the opposition or National Party.

In raiding the Cronista office the soldiers fired on the building, killing two small girls and an old woman passing in the street.

The American Minister, Mr. Moreles, under instructions from the State Department, has repeatedly suggested to Lopez Gutierrez, the present dictator, and his candidate, Dr. Arias, that they hold a conference with the leaders of the National Party to seek some common ground or candidate mutually satisfactory and avoid an uprising. President Gutierrez has not signified willingness to accept the suggestion, though the Nationalist leaders have approved it.

LAND FOR GREEK REFUGEES.

New Commission Will Control 1,235,000 Acres.

GENEVA, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The vast humanitarian project of settling almost a million Greek refugees in Greek territory was launched today when officials of the League of Nations explained the plan, made necessary by the displacement of populations following the Greco-Turkish war.

The project calls for a loan of from £3,000,000 to £6,000,000, which is to be floated by the Greek Government with the assistance of the League of Nations, the Bank of England making a provisional advance of £1,000,000. The Greek Government will hand over to the commission, which will be headed by Henry Morgenthau of New York, 500,000 hectares [1,235,000 acres] of land, probably in Macedonia. Interest on the loan is to be guaranteed first by the Greek Government and then by the commission's income from rent paid for the land. Greece pledges herself not to create charges upon its revenues, except to meet external obligations, until exchange has regained its normal rate.

ISAAC COHEN A JUSTICE.

Named by Acting Mayor to Municipal Court Vacancy.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert yesterday named Isaac Cohen a Justice of the Municipal Court in the Ninth Manhattan District. He will serve for the rest of this year in place of Frank J. Coleman who resigned several months ago to resume the practice of law. Former Justice Coleman's term expires on Dec. 31, 1927. Justice Cohen is to be the regular Democratic nominee at the Fall election to fill the vacancy. The salary is $8,000 annually.

It was the first appointment made by the Acting Mayor, who said yesterday that he felt his selection would meet with the approval of Mayor Hylan. The new jurist lives at 136 East Ninety-sixth Street and has long been prominent in welfare work. He is a director of the Beth Israel Hospital.

SUPREME COURT RESUMES.

Justices Hear Motions and Then Call on the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Supreme Court, meeting today for its new term after a recess since last June, found a heavy docket awaiting attention.

Only motions, including those for admission to practice before the court, were in order today, the court after receiving them having decided to adjourn in order to call in a body at the White House to pay its respects to the President.

The court will hear arguments tomorrow, beginning with the first case on the Appellate docket, and it hopes to dispose of the first thirty during the week, several being noted for dismissal on motion by counsel and a number being listed to be submitted to the court without oral argument.

DEAN STONE QUITS COLUMBIA SCHOOL

Head of Law Teaching Staff Resigns to Engage in Private Practice.

PRAISED BY DR. BUTLER

Would Adorn Highest Court, He Says—Professor Parkinson Designated as Acting Dean.

Harlan F. Stone, Dean of the Columbia University Law School since 1910, has resigned to engage in private practice, according to announcement last night by President Nicholas Murray Butler. Thomas I. Parkinson, LL.B., Professor of Legislation, a member of the teaching staff at Columbia for several years, was designated to serve as Acting Dean.

Dean Stone severs connection at once in order to devote himself to his work as a member of Satterlee, Canfield & Stone of 27 William Street and 24 East Sixty-third Street. His resignation, however, was given as not taking effect until the end of the present school year, June 30, 1924. He will be counted as absent from the university on leave in the meantime, it was explained.

In making the announcement President Butler said:

"I regret more than I can say Dean Stone's fixed determination to lay down his distinguished post at the head of the Law School in order to devote himself to private practice. I can well understand the strength and earnestness of the solicitations that have reached him, but we at Columbia shall only be reconciled in case his withdrawal from our company opens the way to his selection for the Court of Appeals or for the United States Supreme Court, either of which he would adorn.

"Great law teachers and great heads of law schools are rare indeed, and Dean Stone is both. Under his guidance and direction the Law School has flourished mightily. The quality of the student body has steadily improved. The spirit of the school and its scholarship are splendid. Dean Stone has been the means of making notable additions to the teaching staff, which is now abundant in the enviable qualities both of youth and of experience. His plans for strengthening the Law School, as well as for developing larger opportunities and facilities for research and to make the school increasingly effective both in its university membership and in its professional relationships, command the earnest support of the trustees.

"To fill Dean Stone's place is one of the most difficult academic tasks imaginable. There are many signs that many aspects of the law are likely to undergo grave modification during the next generation. The chief part of this work will be taken by the highly trained members of the bar and by the Judges chosen from among such. To guide the mind of the bar in the study and development of the law, in order to meet the changing conditions of modern life, is a task not only of fascinating interest, but of the utmost public importance. A most important share in that task will fall to the lot of Dean Stone's successors."

Dean Stone is a graduate of Amherst, class of '94, and took his M. A. at that school in 1897. He was admitted to the bar in 1898, following graduation from the Columbia University Law School. He became a Lecturer on Law in 1899, and was promoted to professor in 1902, becoming Dean in 1910. He has been a contributor to legal publications, is President of the Association of American Law Schools, a member of the New York State Bar Association and of the Legislative Drafting Research Fund.

Professor Parkinson, now Acting Dean, is an authority on the subject of labor legislation. In 1913 he drafted a bill to merge the Workmen's Compensation Commission and the State Labor Department, a measure which appeared early in the "housecleaning" program of the incoming Whitman Administration.

N. Y. TO SEE BIG BOMBER.

Barling, Biggest Plane in World, to Fly Over City Oct. 20 or 21.

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., Oct. 1.—New York will be given an opportunity on Oct. 20 or 21 to view in flight the largest airplane in the world, the Barling bomber. Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, today wired Major William N. Hensley, commandant of Mitchel Field, that the triplane would be available then for participation in the aerial carnival which will be held here then for the benefit of the Army Relief Society. As a consequence, the carnival was postponed from Oct. 14, the date for which it was originally planned.

With the triplane will come the T-2, the monoplane in which Lieutenants MacCready and Kelly completed their record-breaking non-stop transcontinental flight on May 2. Lieutenant MacCready will pilot the T-2 east.

Both machines are at present at St. Louis for the races there, and will proceed thence back to their home station at McCook Field, Ohio. They will fly here probably on Oct. 20, and either on that day or the day of the carnival will fly over New York.

TENEMENT LABOR QUIZ.

Data on Manufacturing in Houses Ready for Hearings Soon.

State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag yesterday announced that an investigation of manufacturing in tenements made under his direction is nearing completion and will soon be made the basis of public hearings. The need for this investigation, said an announcement from the State Department of Labor, was brought to the attention of the New York State Child Welfare Commission by Commissioner Shientag, who is chairman of that commission's Committee of Labor. The investigation was begun in co-operation with this commission and its Chairman, State Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo. The National Child Labor Committee and the New York City Department of Health also participated.

The investigation is intended to disclose conditions of manufacturing in tenements and the amount of child labor thus employed. Announcements of the public hearings will be made by the Department of Labor.

WALES ENDS RANCH HOLIDAY

Promises to Come Again Soon—Entertained in Calgary.

CALGARY, Alberta, Oct. 1.—Playing eighteen holes of golf at the Country Club during the afternoon and attending a little dinner party at the Pallister Hotel in the evening, at which the Lieutenant Governor of Alberta, R. G. Brett, was a guest, constituted the activities of the Prince of Wales yesterday.

The Prince said good-bye to Professor W. L. Carlyle and the other workers of the E. P. ranch at Pekisko. He told Professor Carlyle that he had enjoyed his holiday very much and intimated that he would pay another visit to the ranch just as soon as possible.

He then shook hands with his employes, Jimmy, the Japanese cook, being the last to be so honored. On his way back to High River the Prince stopped at the Bar U ranch for a few minutes to say good-bye to George Lane, his neighboring ranch owner; Alex Fleming, the foreman, and several other ranchers of the district.

To Print More Harding Stamps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The printing of an additional 300,000,000 of Harding memorial postage stamps to supplement the original 300,000,000 was ordered today by Postmaster General New, who said the orginal allotment of the new 2-cent stamp had been found to be insufficient.

BALLARD RUGS ON VIEW.

Great Collection Worth $750,000 in the Art Museum.

With a large attendance of art collectors, connoisseurs, artists, trustees, officers of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and its members, distinguished people in themselves, there was opened at the Museum yesterday the great Ballard collection of rugs, the munificent gift which makes the Museum's collection of rugs the finest in the world.

In the big Gallery of Special Exhibitions these wonderful rugs cover entirely walls and floors. There are 129 rugs in the collection, rugs which cannot now be duplicated and if it were possible to duplicate them it could not be done for less than $750,000, it is estimated by experts. James F. Ballard of St. Louis, the donor, has been collecting rugs for the last thirty years and housing in the great fire and thief proof gallery adjoining his home. He presented the bulk of the collection to the Museum in the Spring of 1922. It was estimated at that time that the collection would be valued in round numbers at half a million dollars. Since then the donor has visited Turkey and there found rare carpets, for which he had been searching for years, and added these to his original gift, making it what it is at the present time. It represents the highest quality and expert knowledge.

It would require volumes to describe the rugs. There is no finer bird—called that for the birdlike figures in the design—rug known than the one from Turkey that is to be seen here. A strange rug with loose strands, yellow and flame color in the centre, is a Zoroaster rug from Persia, illustrating the flames on the altar of the fire worshippers. There are the animal and hunting carpets of the north of Persia, sumptuous garden carpets of the kind which figure in many serious Eastern tales; the so-called Polish rugs with their gold and silver threads, which are also from Persia; Damascus rugs, which show the design to be found in the ancient metal work; Ghiordes and Kula prayer rugs from Asia Minor, beautiful Turkish floral rugs; a small group known as the dragon rugs; Chinese carpets, Turkoman carpets, and from Spain some of the oldest pile knotted fabrics and a few heraldic rugs.

For the collection there has been brought out a catalogue of great charm and invaluable to the rug lover, illustrating each rug in its entirety or a section. It is sold at about cost, $2.

The collection will remain on exhibition through December.

CHURCHES AID BOY SCOUTS.

104,701 New Members Bring Total Enrolment Up to 614,745.

The Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America at a meeting yesterday at the Bankers' Club authorized a new division on church relationships within the Department of Education. It was pointed out that practically all the denominational groups are now actively supporting the Scout movement and that the opportunity for increasing the Boy Scout membership through the churches required special organization facilities under the national office to take care of the work incident to organising new troops.

A new Committee on Publicity and Promotion was created, with Barron Collier, Deputy Commissioner of Police, as Chairman. Upon the recommendation of the Committee on Badges, Awards and Scout Requirements, a new achievement badge was authorized to be

LOUISE SEEKS FUNDS TO BURY MATTACHICH

Runaway Princess Is Considering an American's Offer to Advance Money.

SHE IS ALMOST PENNILESS

But Her Spirit Remains Unbroken as She Tells Newspaper Men of Her Great Loss.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Princess Louise of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and Belgium broke down completely this morning when the body of Count Mattachich, the Austrian nobleman and army officer for the love of whom she gave up everything twenty-seven years ago, was removed from the modest hotel where he died yesterday to the Church of St. Philippe du Roule, whence it will be taken to the cemetery at Batignolles on Wednesday.

The indomitable spirit of the woman who for a score of years defied emperors, kings and social traditions soon reasserted itself, however, and it was a calm, composed woman of queenly bearing who received the newspaper men later.

"What can I say," she exclaimed in answer to their queries, "only that I have lost him who was the whole world to me!"

Alone, forlorn and almost penniless, the once famous beauty, who still retains much of her charm, said she had no immediate plans for the future beyond obtaining the necessary funds to have Mattachich buried in a style befitting his rank.

She expects no aid from her sisters, and the pension provided by her daughter Dora, wife of Duke Ernst Gunther, brother of the late Kaiserin Auguste Victoria of Germany, while regularly received, has dwindled through depreciation of the mark to only six or seven francs monthly.

Jean Dumont of Brussels, who is looking after Princess Louise's interests in connection with the estate of ex-Empress Charlotte of Mexico, has asked Baron Goffinet, former major domo to the late King Leopold and custodian of Charlotte's fortune, for a sufficient advance to tide her over her present troubles.

The Princess also intends pressing the suit she instituted in the Hungarian courts last year against the provisions of the will of her former husband, Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Her divorce, granted in a French court, was never recognized by the Hungarian tribunals, and she contends that as his widow she is entitled by Hungarian law to a share in Philip's fortune, which was left to King Boris of Bulgaria and other nephews.

It is expected that the ban against the return of Louise to Belgium will be lifted now that Mattachich is dead, although the Belgian Embassy in Paris refused her a passport as late as Sept. 10.

The hotel where Mattachich died and where Louise is staying is frequented by many American tourists of moderate means, one of whom has offered to advance the money necessary for the Count's funeral. The Princess has not decided the offer, holding her answer in abeyance until the arrival from Brussels of M. Dumont.

Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach is Chairman of the Patrons Committee. President Coolidge and ex-Presidents Woodrow Wilson and William H. Taft are honorary members of the committee.

Insurance Men Aid Jewish Fund.

Twenty-five New York insurance brokers pledged their co-operation in wiping out the $400,000 deficit in the current $3,500,000 budget of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies at a meeting yesterday at the Harmonie Club, 10 East Sixtieth Street. The meeting was called by Arthur Lehman, President of the Federation.

Daughter to J. M. Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Franklin are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter last Saturday at 9 East Ninety-first Street. Mrs. Franklin was Miss Emily Sloane, and the child is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hammond and a great-granddaughter of Mrs. Henry White.

THE SCREEN

Paris and Parisites.

A WOMAN OF PARIS, with Edna Purviance, Clarence Geldert, Carl Miller, Lydia Knott, Charles French, Adolphe Menjou, Betty Morrissey, Malvina Polo and others; written and directed by Charles Spencer Chaplin.

Our old friend Charlie Chaplin, the world's screen clown, has flung aside temporarily his shapeless trousers and his tiny derby, plucked off his eyebrow mustache, and in a well-tailored suit has graduated into Charles Spencer Chapiln, director par excellence. His first production, in which he does not appear, fascinated an interesting and curious throng last night in the Lyric Theatre.

As a film director Chaplin reveals himself as a bold, resourceful, imaginative, ingenious, careful, studious and daring artist. This effort is called "A Woman of Paris," not an especially original title considering the brilliance displayed in so many sequences of this photoplay. The story is not an unusual one, but the handling of it gives it a marvelous depth of charm, for in this film, which runs for about two hours, Chaplin, the director, has not permitted a scene to be made in a hasty or thoughtless manner. He shows something a little different from the work of other directors throughout in the photoplay. Close-ups are denied the players, and the production also is devoid of the aggravating flash-backs. These eliminations are such a relief. Under Chaplin's astute guidance the acting of the players is stripped of what might be termed "standardized motion-picture acting."

Where there is a café scene—as there are in several sequences in this production—Chaplin has studied his sets and the human possibilities. There is nothing too extravagant, and in his contrasts Chaplin has obtained wonderful effects.

The first scenes of this picture show a dismal little French village, and Marie St. Clair, played by Edna Purviance, turned out of her cottage by her angry father. She goes to the home of her sweetheart, but his father will not permit her to remain there. Hence they go to the little railway station, meaning to take the train for Paris. She waits for Jean Millet, the sweetheart (Carl Miller), who goes back for a bag and finally telephones to him. His father has been taken ill, so the girl in desperation boards the train for Paris alone.

A year later in the French capital Marie's beauty has won for her all the comforts money can buy. Adolphe Menjou plays Pierre Revel, the wealthiest bachelor in Paris, who furnishes the luxuries for the girl, who dines nightly with him. There are many captivating scenes in the French restaurant, and excellent light comedy is worked out by the head waiter.

The gay life in a studio is shown—where a woman of the Latin Quarter, covered in nothing but folds of silk, is gradually uncovered—the wrapping being wound around a fat old gentleman. And so that the censors will not be offended, the girl only shows her bare feet and ankles, and pokes her head from behind a screen. In another sequence the darling Chaplin shows a Swedish masseuse busy on Marie, who is covered with a sheet. When the sheet is lifted one sees the masseuse at her labors, but Marie is out of the picture.

Marie, sick of the continued gayety, refuses to dine with Pierre. Afterward other friends in the Latin Quarter insist upon her joining them. She knocks on the wrong door and finds herself confronted by her old sweetheart. From then on Marie is torn between poverty and love or luxury and gayety. Jean's mother opposes her son marrying Marie, and this begets a tragic ending, handled so skillfully that happiness beams in the last scenes. One sees the smiling Marie sitting on a farmer's cart and passing at the rate of fifty miles an hour in his automobile is the lascivious Pierre. They do not see each other.

There is a picturesque prologue to this film—a scene showing a studio with the artists and women mingling.

Chaplin shows himself by this production to be a sort of O. Henry of the silent drama. The interesting and pleasing touches in the various scenes are like simple words used by an author to give spark and life to his story. This film lives, and the more directors emulate Mr. Chaplin the better will it be for the produeing of pictures.

POLO TROPHY WON BY MEADOW BROOK

U. S. Four Overcomes Hurlingham's 5-Goal Handicap and Takes Waterbury Cup, 14-10.

WEBB AND MILBURN STAR

International Pair Leads American Attack at Westbury—Hopping Plays Well for British.

The polo representatives of the Meadow Brook Club yesterday won the Monty Waterbury Cup, defeating the Hurlingham Club of England in the final game of the series, 14 to 10, on International Field, Westbury, L. I. It was the brilliant work of the internationally famous pair, J. Watson Webb and Devereux Milburn, that was principally responsible for the victory, but as Thomas F. S. von Stade and R. Penn Smith, Jr., the other two members of Meadow Brook's combination, came into prominence, and it was on those occasions that the Meadow Brook four swept down the field and showed the greatest exhibition of teamwork that has been seen on the historic stretch of turf this season, with the possible exception of the American Army four.

Hurlingham was represented by Captain Frederick E. Guest, Earle W. Hopping, Major F. W. Barrett and the Marquis of Cholmondeley, the same quartet which so impressively defeated Tommy Hitchcock's Shelburne four, holders of the trophy, last week. But yesterday, even with a five-goal handicap allowed by Meadow Brook, the British team was unable to hold off the onslaught of the Americans for long. Hopping was at his best and on several occasions broke through, but his efforts were useless in the end, for Meadow Brook steadily gained on the invaders through the first half and the powerful strokes of Milburn caught and passed them in the first few minutes of the second.

Guest Breaks Through.

The game early developed into a question as to whether the Hurlingham defense could withstand the sturdy attacks of Meadow Brook and maintain the five-goal advantage it received at the start of the contest. Milburn kept the British forwards well out of range of his goal during the better part of the first two periods by his powerful drives. Guest, however, broke through on one occasion, but his fifty-yard effort hit an upright and bounced outside.

Webb was the first to reduce the British handicap advantage when he counted the first goal of the first period, but Smith added another to the Meadow Brook total early in the second with a long drive from a difficult angle. Then for the second time the British forwards came down the field. Hopping put the ball in perfect position for a goal, but as Webb rode off Guest, Milburn drove the sphere to safety. However, erratic stickwork on the part of the Americans gave Barrett a clear field and he made good his opportunity.

In the third chukker Hopping regained the original advantage with which Hurlingham started by a powerful effort, bringing the score to 7—2, but before the bell sounded Milburn dashed up the field and sent the ball through with a shot from a dead angle, and Webb added another. The Americans still trailed by 7 to 4 when the period came to a close.

Slowly but steadily the Americans continued their advance in the fourth. Although they kept the ball near the British posts during the entire chukker, inaccurate driving and failure to ride off opponents in order to give a teammate a clear field lost many opportunities. However, Webb finally broke loose near the center of the field, outmaneuvered Barrett, who strove in vain to secure the ball, and with a forehand from the sideboards sent it squarely between the posts. After the gong sounded to end the period but while the ball was still in play, Smith managed to squeeze another past the British line and between the uprights. The Americans closed the gap to 7—6 at half time.

British Defense Collapses.

The Hurlingham defense was being steadily worn down and finally in the second half it cracked and collapsed entirely as the Meadow Brook representatives came back on the field and swept all opposition before them, showing the greatest team work and formation play yet seen in the series. Each man was playing his position as it should be played, Milburn sending the ball up to von Stade, who passed it forward to Webb, who either carried it through or shot it forward for Smith to carry on.

Before this style of play it was inevitable that the British team must go down in defeat. Milburn brought the score level and then with another single-handed attack sent Meadow Brook into the lead. They were never again caught, for Smith, Webb and Milburn contributed as the margin of the Americans steadily increased.

Hopping made desperate efforts to bring his team back on an even footing, scoring once in the fifth and again in the sixth. As Barrett counted another for the British in the opening minutes of the seventh the Americans were momentarily threatened. The score then was 11—10, but again the American drew away, and when the final gong sounded had captured the Monty Waterbury Cup for 1923 for a score of 14 to 10.

Mrs. Jackson Disqualified For Holing Out Wrong Ball

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Harold Jackson of Greenwich, one of the leading players in the metropolitan district, was disqualified by reason of a queer happening on the tenth hole of the qualifying round in the women's national golf championship here today. Playing what she considered her own ball, she holed out with it, but upon lifting it out of the cup discovered by its markings that it was not the ball with which she had started from the tee. Under the rules, therefore, she was automatically disqualified. It was particularly unfortunate in that she had reached the turn in 43 and was almost certain to be among the qualifiers.

JUNIOR CHAMPION WON BY MR. MUTT

Ballot Colt Earns $7,850 for H. C. Fisher in Feature at Aqueduct.

H. C. Fisher's chestnut colt Mr. Mutt, by Ballot—Eden Hall, carried off the first running of the revived Junior Champion Stake at the Aqueduct track yesterday afternoon, beating the seven other smart two-year-olds and winning $7,850 for his owner. It was the first mile race for juveniles in this section this season, and the winner went the distance in 1:38 4-5 over a fast track. Thurber had the mount and brought Mr. Mutt home to win handily by a length and a half from the Rancocas Stable's Bracadale. The latter, coupled with the same stable's Stanwix, was the public choice. Stanwix finished fourth.

The Junior Champion Stake was the feature of the closing day of the Autumn meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club and prospects for good racing brought out a large crowd. L. Fator took the riding honors, having the mount on Sylvan Spring, which won the opening race; and repeated in the second number on Episode.

Only Bonaparte of the Riviera Stable was scratched from the field named overnight for the Champion Stake. The stake was first run at the Gravesend track in 1898 and lapsed in 1900. The revival yesterday carried $5,000 in added money, the weights being seven pounds below the scale.

MISS STIRLING WINS TITLE GOLF MEDAL

Leads Field of 165 in Qualifying Round of National Play at Rye With 84.

MRS. VANDERBECK SECOND

Mrs. Anderson Is Third and Miss Collett, Miss Cummings and Mrs. Barlow Tie for Fourth.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Miss Alexa Stirling, the present holder of the metropolitan women's championship, led the field in the qualifying round of the twenty-seventh annual women's national championship at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club today. Playing over the long course and fighting against a heavy wind that swept off Long Island Sound, Miss Stirling, who has held the women's title on three occasions, completed her round with a score of 84.

This was three strokes ahead of her nearest rival for the medal, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, one of the stars of the Philadelphia district and herself a former titleholder. A stroke behind the Quaker City player came Mrs. J. L. Anderson of Cherry Valley, while the present holder of the national title, Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, and two other stars of the women's sphere, Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Philadelphia and Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, had to be content with fourth place among the 165 starters who teed off in quest of the 1923 championship.

They were followed by Mrs. H. C. Phipps of Piping Rock with a score of 90, and five others with 91—Miss Louise Fordyce, the Ohio State champion; Miss Rosamond Sherwood of St. George's, L. I.; Miss Bessie Fenn of Portland, Me.; Miss Miriam Burns, the 16-year-old star who recently captured the women's Western championship, and Miss Edith Leitch of Walton Heath, England, a sister of Cecil Leitch and the sole British entrant in the tournament.

Two Western women and one metropolitan star followed with 92. They included Mrs. Elisabeth Goss of Baltusrol, Mrs. Melvin Jones and Miss Dorothy Higbee of Chicago, the former ex-Western champion.

The championship field ended at 95 with ten just inside the limits. Most prominent among these were Miss Georgianna Bishop of Brooklawn, Miss Audrey Faust of St. Louis, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Merion and Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, the Wisconsin State champion.

Miss Stirling played exceptional golf after the ninth hole, never taking more than a stroke off par from that point on, and that only on four occasions. Her card:

PAPYRUS PLAYFUL AFTER LIGHT WORK

Breezes Six Furlongs and Finishes in Fine Condition on Training Track.

Papyrus, quite oblivious of the storm centring about the two leading candidates for the honor of opposing him in the $100,000 international race at Belmont Park on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20, continued his light preparation for that event yesterday. The continued cool weather is to the liking of the English visitors, and men and horses are responding to the stimulating conditions.

The English Derby winner, unhampered by visitors, had his regular two sessions of work yesterday at Belmont Park. In the morning Trainer Basil Jarvis increased the exercise over that allotted on Sunday, his horse's first working day. Jarvis sent Papyrus over on the training track, where the going is softer than on the main track, and after his walk breezed the colt for about six furlongs at a two-minute gait. Jarvis was much pleased with the result, as Papyrus pulled up in fine condition and playful, as though ready to start any time now on serious work. It is likely that Papyrus will be galloping regularly before the end of the week.

During the afternoon Trainer Jarvis and Dr. W. Pride-Jones, veterinarian in charge of the physical condition of the English colt, visited the Aqusduct race track for their first glimpse of American racing. There they met many owners and American trainers, but were unable to remain through the afternoon, as they had to return to Belmont Park in time to give Papyrus his walking exercise a little after 4 o'clock.

Last night Jarvis was the host at a dinner given at the Hotel Biltmore to the officers of the Cunard liner Aquitania as a token of his appreciation of the manner in which they had taken care of the famous race horse on the voyage to this country. Among those invited were Captain Sir James Charles, R. D., R. N. R.; Staff Captain J. G. Saunders, R. N. R.; Charles T. Speeding, Purser; Fred V. Jones, Chief Steward; C. J. Fitzgerald, who represented the Jockey Club in the negotiations in England, and a few other officers of the ship.

FIRPO WILL BECOME AMERICAN CITIZEN

Argentine Heavyweight Makes Application for His First Papers Here.

Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, yesterday made application for his first citizenship papers at the Naturalization Bureau in the New York County Clerk's office. Firpo described himself as a prizefighter, 28 years old, white, 6 feet 2¼ inches in height and 215 pounds in weight, hair and eyes brown, and with no visible distinctive marks.

Firpo said he was a native Argentine and that his home was in Junin, Buenos Aires, where he has a wife. He gave his present address as 215 West Eighty-first Street.

GIANTS IN WORKOUT ON YANKS' DIAMOND

McGraw Drills Players for Two Hours at Scene of World's Series Opener.

SEVEN VETERANS IN BOX

Batters and Fielders Also Practice —Large Demand for Tickets— Heathcote Reinstated.

John McGraw led his Giants into the Yankee Stadium yesterday afternoon and put them through an intensive drill in preparation for their coming clash with the American League champions in the world's series, starting a week from tomorrow. It was the first time that most of the world's champions had been inside the gigantic stadium and they inspected the new structure with interest.

The Giants' workout yesterday on the scene of the opening game of the annual classic lasted for two hours, and McGraw kept his players moving at top speed throughout the entire session. Much of the workout was devoted to batting practice, and McGraw gave each of his seven veterans a turn on the mound. Those who appeared in the box were Bill Ryan, Arthur Nehf, Jack Bentley, Jack Scott, John Watson, Hugh McQuillan and Claude Jonnard. The Giants' leader ordered all of the twirlers to put plenty of stuff on the ball with the result that the batters as well as the pitchers had a thorough workout.

In addition to the batting drill the Giants also indulged in an extended fielding session. McGraw started with the regular infield, Kelly, Frisch, Bancroft and Groh. Travis Jackson, who will break into the line-up in the event that any of the regular infielders is injured during the series

GOMPERS ASSAILS RED PLOT IN LABOR

Radicals Also Target of Governor and Mayor as Federation Meets at Portland, Ore.

COMMITTEE HITS FOSTER

Annual Report Holds the Amalgamation of Unions to Be a Communist Scheme.

KLAN SHARPLY CONDEMNED

Workers Are Warned Against Fascisti—Fight on State Going Into Industry Urged.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 1.—"On my honor as a man and as an adopted citizen of the United States, with all sympathy for other people in their struggles toward the realization of an ideal of freedom, I declare that I believe the Republic of the United States of America is the best form of Government on the earth today."

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, thus today declared the faith that is in him in the climax of the stirring keynote speech here with which he opened the forty-third national convention of the Federation.

The voice of the venerable leader rang throughout the Auditorium, and for a moment there was breathless silence as with his hand raised above his head, he solemnly voiced his declaration. Then came clash on clash of applause, deeper and more sustained than even the long roll of cheers that had greeted Mr. Gompers when he first arose to speak.

"We have many grievances against which we are directing our energies to remedy them," he continued, "but as in the United States Government, and best in the world though it is, it is still not good enough for us nor good enough for those who are to come after us, and under the law we are here to contribute our share to the still better and to make America the best and most productive commonwealth in the onward mark to civilization."

Mr. Gompers referred to issues that the convention will deal with during its session. Almost at the outset of his speech he drove straight at the issue of child labor, and referred to Federal injunctions in labor disputes. Of child labor he said:

"This question I regard as the vital question of the hour."

Tremendous applause greeted the reading of labor's announcement that it opposes the Ku Klux Klan, when the report of the Executive Council was presented this afternoon.

"This secret organization promotes discord among our people and strife within the ranks of organized labor; seeks to destroy the cherished American principle of religious freedom and tolerance, and purposely fosters racial prejudices," the report of the council said.

Mr. Gompers devoted emphatic attention in his address to the activities of radicals endeavoring to gain influence in the ranks of organized labor. The report of the executive committee also was devoted to a considerable degree to the "amalgamation" campaign which W. Z. Foster is conducting among the unions. This movement is frankly "revolutionary" the committee said, and preaches the doctrines of the Red International.

Mr. Gompers declared in his speech:

"The labor movement should be a movement of wage earners, for wage earners, by wage earners."

Then, discussing further the efforts of the radicals whom he denounced, he said:

"Those who know me and my attitude know that I am not even pink."

Radicalism was discussed in other addresses of the day. Bishop Walter Taylor Sumner of the Episcopal Diocese of Oregon delivered the opening prayer, in which he mentioned the need of loyalty to Government and faithfulness to contrary to the spirit of radicalism which labor is fighting.

"There is no room for the I. W. W., Bolshevism and other 'isms,'" declared Mayor George L. Baker of Portland in welcoming the convention. He referred to the Federalism as the "safety valve of American liberty."

"The labor unions won their way into the hearts of the American people by their steadfast devotion to American principles," Governor Walter M. Pierce said.

Report Attacks Foster.

The Executive Council of the Federation in its report directs its fire against the campaign for "amalgamation" of trade unions. This propaganda, it declared, "is frankly revolutionary and has for its ultimate purpose not only the destruction of the trade union movement, but the eventual overthrow of the democratic Government of the United States."

"Propaganda in the United States is carried on in accord with the tenets of the Red International, an organization which is completely under the domination and dictation of the Russian Communist oligarchy," the report continues. "The catchword of the campaign in the United States has been 'amalgamation.' In accordance with the program of the Russian Communist leaders an elaborate program for the alleged 'amalgamation' of various international unions has been developed and secret, or semi-secret, organizations have been formed within the international unions for the carrying out of that program."

Speaking of the Federated Press, a news organization serving labor publications, the Executive Council said it appeared to be the policy of the Federated Press "to give as much weight and importance to any protesting minority as to the bona fide trade union movement in the matter of news."

It said that the directors of the Federated Press include William Z. Foster and Arne Swabeck and that "it is apparent that the majority of the present directors would in any test either be hostile to the American Federation of Labor or lukewarm toward it."

Concerning immigration the Executive Council declares it realizes "the seriousness of the situation, and urges that the convention, in the strongest terms possible, point out to Congress the danger to our institutions if immigration is not restricted to a greater extent than is provided in the present law."

Condemn Fascisti and Ku Klux

Discussing judicial decisions and injunctions in labor disputes, the report states that in the last year "injunction writs in labor disputes have been issued in even greater and greater and greater numbers, and each succeeding injunction goes further in its repressive features than the one before."

"Indeed this special form of class legislation by judicial decree," the report continues, "is assuming an enormous proportion, and the wage earners are compelled to suffer under a set of class laws which apply to no other group within our Government."

The Fascisti movement in the United States and the Ku Klux Klan are condemned in the report.

"We believe that no trade unionist can consistently participate in the activities of the Ku Klux Klan or any similar organization, and we unhesitatingly denounce the efforts to supplant organized Government to promote religious intolerance, racial antagonisms and bigotry," the Council says.

The Fascisti movement in this country is condemned as follows:

"We call upon workers of foreign birth to refrain from joining the Fascisti or any similar movement in our country. Foreign workers who come to our shores in good faith come because America offers freedom and opportunity for the individual. To that promote an organization hostile to every institution of American freedom is to trespass on every principle of honesty and to be guilty of conduct which cannot be condoned."

Discussing the relations between the farmer and labor the report states that "the efforts of certain interests to drive a wedge between labor and the farmers have not been successful."

The section on railroad legislation says that "despite all claims to the contrary, the Esch-Cummins law has proved an utter failure and has been the cause of unrest, disturbance and dissatisfaction."

The Executive Council discusses at some length five-to-four decisions of the Supreme Court in constitutional decisions and proposes that "Congress shall have the power to re-enact by a two-third vote any law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court."

Development of an industrial franchise "comparable to our political franchise" must be the next goal of the labor movement, the council holds.

One of the purposes of trade unionism in the future, the report says, must be "the rescue of industry from the domination of incompetent political bodies."

"The largest freedom of action, the freest play for individual initiative and genius in industry cannot be had under the shadow of constant incompetent political interference, meddlesomeness and restriction.

"The threat of State invasion of industrial life is real. Powerful groups of employers and others persons constantly seek the extension of state suzerainty over purely industrial fields. Such ignorant encroachments as the Esch-Cummins act, the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations and the Colorado Industrial Commission act, each a blundering gesture of government acting under the spur of organized propaganda or of political appetite for power, are examples of what all industry has to fear."

2,000 PRESSMEN SEEK INTERNATIONAL CARDS

Former Local Union's Books Refused by Simons—Still Says Charter Was Not Revoked.

A committee of members of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, who were members of the now dissolved New York Web Pressmen's Union No. 25, called on David Simons, former President of the defunct local, yesterday and made a formal demand for the books, bonds and treasury of the dissolved local. The request was refused by Simons, according to Andrew R. Armstrong, a member of the committee, on the ground that the charter of Local 25 had not been revoked. Simons informed reporters he had refused to turn the property over to the committee until he knew that all strikers were reinstated.

The committee consisted of John Lynch, Chairman; Charles Walsh, James Moore, Andrew R. Armstrong, John Maloney and James Maloney.

"The committee was accompanied by Isaac Rosenthal, former Secretary of Local 25," said Armstrong. "Mr. Rosenthal said he would deliver the property when the formal request was made, but Simons refused."

Simons, it was learned yesterday, has not been reinstated as foreman of the pressroom of The Brooklyn Times. He informed inquirers that a meeting of pressmen would be held at Beethoven Hall tonight, "so that those who had not been reinstated might make reports."

The offices of the International Union at 150 Nassau Street were thronged yesterday with pressmen applying for international union cards. Joseph C. Orr, Secretary Treasurer, said that 500 applications were made yesterday and 1,500 on Sunday. The international officers worked under some difficulty yesterday because of the failure of the union committee to get the former local's books so that it might be ascertained which of the applicants were in good standing in the international union.

No witnesses in connection with the inquiry into the handling of the local union's funds were called yesterday. District Attorney Banton said witnesses might be called today.

BEACH POLLUTION WAR.

Methods of Prevention Discussed at Atlantic City Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 1.—Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson of New York City, speaking for acting Mayor Hulbert at today's meeting of the National Coast Anti-Pollution League, defended New York against the charge of polluting the bathing beaches of New Jersey and Long Island by the dumping of garbage at sea.

Mr. Nicholson also stated that the present Administration is building $5,000,000 worth of incinerators, which within the next two years will make it unnecessary for the refuse of the metropolis to be dumped into the ocean.

"New York has been accused of polluting the beaches of the Atlantic Coast by the dumping of garbage at sea," said Mr. Nicholson. "We have asked for evidence to support this accusation, but it has not been forthcoming."

He said that New York has to dispose of 250 tons of garbage daily. "Always," he said, "the garbage scows had been accompanied by Government Inspectors to see that they were dumped not less than eighteen miles from the city.

This was corroborated by Captain P. M. Olmstead, Supervisor of the Port of New York for the War Department, who declared that it was impossible for garbage to drift in to shore from the point where it is dumped, as to do so it would have to overcome the effects of two adverse tides.

The main theme of the first day's sessions was meeting the problem of floating oil. Former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who presided, urged that the steamship interests cooperate in solving the problem.

Colonel H. Hayes of New York, an Attorney for the Standard Oil Company, told the Harbor Problems Group of the conference that the oil companies were desirous of co-operating and were now working on the problem of preventing pollution.

"The Standard Oil Company is trying to obviate pollution," he said. "We now have separators in the harbors, into which the bilge water from the oil tanks is pumped and redistilled."

Andre Brouquet, the French Consulate in New York, is attending in the capacity of an observer. He said his Government is facing the same problems and he hoped he would get valuable data. J. Hampton Moore, Mayor of Philadelphia, was another speaker today.

$100,000 IN GEMS STOLEN ON STREET

Two Salesmen Are Held Up—One Is Forced to Remove Vest Laden With Diamonds.

THIRD MAN IS MADE CAPTIVE

Manufacturer, Halted by Mistake, Is Kept at Pistol Point Until Real Quarry Appears.

Two jewelry salesmen carrying diamonds valued at $100,000 in a vest specially made for that purpose were held up and robbed of their gems yesterday afternoon in Irvington, N. J., by two men who got away in an automobile.

The diamonds were the property of Sigmund Hirschberg of 542 Fifth Avenue, New York City. His son, Henry Hirschberg, and another salesman, Walter Beal, were just emerging from the office of Wiegand & Co., manufacturing jewelers, of 1,082 Springfield Avenue, Irvington, when the robbery took place.

The robbers evidently knew the diamonds were being carried about and were waiting for them, for fifteen minutes earlier, in the same spot, they held up and searched another man, holding him prisoner until Hirschberg and Beal appeared. This man was Walter Fletcher, President of the Irving Machine Company, who was stopped at the point of a pistol as he was descending the stairs from the office of Wiegand & Co.

"He's not the guy," exclaimed one of the robbers in disgust at their failure to find the expected diamonds.

Mr. Fletcher said the robbers held him for fully ten minutes before Hirschberg and Beal were heard coming down the stairway. As these two reached the doorway the robbers covered them with a gun, discovered at once that it was Beal who was wearing the diamond-laden vest and ordered him to remove it. Both gem salesmen were unarmed and helpless. As Beal took off the vest the robbers snatched it from his hands and raced away across a vacant lot opposite the building to a large red touring car, in which, the police believe, a third man was waiting with engine running.

As the robbers ran, Hirschberg and Beal dashed up the stairs, got a pistol and shouted a shot through the upper window. None found its mark, and the automobile disappeared around a corner.

An alarm for the thieves was sent out to all surrounding communities, and within two hours seven men in two automobile were arrested in Jersey City by Michael Sweeney of the Hudson County police, who followed them from the Newark Turnpike. The three passengers gave their names as Charles Paglino of 116 Chrystie Street, Israel Horowitz of 945 Aldus Street, the Bronx, and Thomas Pascale of 90 Elizabeth Street, all of New York City.

They were taken to the Oakland Avenue Police Station in Jersey City, where they were questioned later by Chief of Police Kirkbride of Irvington. Paglino, the owner of the automobile, said that he had been at the Park Garage, in Madison, N. J., about a half hour before the time of the robbery, to see his mechanic. At the garage this was confirmed.

Neither Fletcher nor the two diamond salesmen could give the police an adequate description of the robbers and no one was able to identify the three prisoners as the gold-seekers. Pending investigation, however, they were held in Jersey City charged with being disorderly persons.

BISHOP SAYS OFFICIALS VIOLATE THE DRY LAW

Schrembs Tells Catholic Women Every One Knows in His Heart Prohibition Is Not Enforceable.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Government is spending millions of dollars to enforce the prohibition law, "which everybody in his own heart knows is non-enforceable," Bishop Schrembs of Cleveland today told the National Council of Catholic Women.

"I notice," he added, "that the very men high in Government positions who are saying that they have got to enforce this law are breaking it before they say it, or immediately after."

Recalling the "great agitation in Detroit about prohibition" during his pastorate at Bay City, Mich., the Bishop declared:

"They say it is settled now, but there are more private stills in the country today than there were public distilleries in those days."

Bishop Schrembs, who is Chairman of the lay organizations of the Catholic Welfare Council, delivered a message to the delegates from the Catholic hierarchy of America, which met here last week, assuring the women's organization of the prelate's sympathy in its work. He also urged that all members of the National Council take part in a national novena of prayer, Oct. 24 to Nov. 1, for the establishment of peace, happiness and good-will among nations.

Secretary Davis of the Labor Department urged the establishment of free employment bureaus, Americanization work and education for immigrants. He lauded the work of the Catholic women in behalf of immigrants and advocated legislative action to prevent aliens not eligible to enter this country from leaving their native lands. The Secretary also criticized the issuance of passports by foreign Governments when they had information that their quotas under the present immigration law had been exhausted.

HELD ON DRY CHARGE.

Seven Are Accused of Counterfeiting Labels.

Federal indictments returned yesterday charge George Bambury, Pasquale A. Giascone, Anthony Triolo, Frank McDonald, Hyman Barnett, Charles Hoffman and John M. Barry with counterfeiting and selling export strip stamps and conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. The indictments are the result of a raid of the basement at 199 East Seventeenth Street.

The defendants, with the exception of Barry, pleaded not guilty before United States District Judge John C. Knox, and were released in bail ranging from $2,500 to $5,000.

The trial of Emanuel H. Kessler, Morris Sweetwood, Morey Birnbaum and nearly a score of others charged with conspiracy to loot the Republic Warehouse in West Thirty-fourth Street of thousands of cases of liquor, will be set by Federal Judge Knox today.

An attempt to dance a new waltz, described as the Prohibition Blues Waltz, was ended by James Daly, 18, of 316 West Ninety-sixth Street, and Peter Boland, 21, of 185 West End Avenue, when they glided over the brink of a twenty-foot declivity at Seventy-second Street and Riverside Drive early yesterday. Daly, after leaving Knickerbocker Hospital, was held in $500 bail by Magistrate Oberwager in West Side Court on a charge of disorderly conduct. Boland is still in the hospital, a prisoner.

Asks Delay in 3-Mile Limit Case.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Government asked the Supreme Court today to give it until Oct. 8 to file a brief in opposition to the application of Charles E. Albury and others to have the court review a decision of the Federal courts in New York which held that the Government had jurisdiction under the customs laws to seize foreign vessels outside the three-mile limit engaged in the sale of liquor.

Rail Engineers and Firemen Serve Demand For Return to Wage Scale Prior to 1921 Cut

CLEVELAND Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—Wage increase requests for restoration of schedules in effect before the 12½ per cent. reduction handed down by the Railroad Labor Board on July 1, 1921, were being presented to many railroads throughout the country today by representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, whose contracts expire Oct. 1. Joint action was being taken in many instances.

This became known today with the announcement by Warren S. Stone, President of the engineers, that a circular of instructions had been mailed to the general chairmen and secretary-treasurers of all general committees of adjustment of the engineers brotherhood instructing them to "serve the required thirty days' notice on their respective managements at the expiration of the present schedule."

The engineers' circular of instruction reads in part as follows:

"At the time you serve the required 30 days' notice of your desire to open your schedule, present the following articles:

"(1)—That all rates in effect under decision No. 2 U. S. Railroad Labor Board, effective as of May 1, 1920, and applicable to locomotive engineers, be restored in their entirety.

"(2)—In all classes of service the earnings of engineers from mileage, overtime and other regulations applicable for each day's service performed, shall not be less than eight dollars per day."

The instructions conclude:

"Where ever you are working jointly with firemen or have a joint schedule, we would recommend that you take the matter up with their general committee and general Chairman and work in conjunction with them."

With the engineers joining in the increased wage movement all four transportation brotherhoods have initiated movements for wage increases. The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors took joint action here last week favoring a request for an increase ranging from 12 to 15 per cent. This action followed a referendum vote of members of the two brotherhoods. Circulars of instruction to general chairmen of these two brotherhoods will be mailed out this week and the requests presented to the railroads throughout the country on Oct. 10.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen sent out a circular of instructions on Sept. 11 to chairmen of its general grievance committees, instructing them to present requests as contracts expire, for restoration of the 12½ per cent. cut handed down by the United States Railroad Labor Board on July 1, 1921.

ALIENS BROUGHT IN WITHOUT ANY RACE

Ten Ships Enter at Fixed Intervals With October Immigrant Quota.

CURRAN PRAISES METHOD

Passengers Number 13,146 in All, of Whom 7,781 Were in the Steerage.

Ten steamships arrived in New York yesterday bringing 13,146 passengers from all parts of Europe for the October immigrant quota, of whom 5,365 were in the first and second cabins, which entitled them to land at the piers if they passed the health officers and the immigration inspectors. The remaining 7,781 in the steerage had to wait on board for their turn to be taken to Ellis Island.

Owing to the plan suggested by the twenty-six companies belonging to the Transatlantic Passenger Conference and approved by Immigration Commissioner Henry H. Curran, the racing into Quarantine that took place on the first of the three previous months was eliminated. The six liners, Polonia from Libau, Presidente Wilson from Naples, George Washington from Bremen, Paris from Havre, Carmania from Liverpool and Mount Clay from Hamburg, which were assembled outside the Ambrose Channel Lightship before midnight on Sunday, started in at ten-minute intervals with the Polonia in the lead.

Commissioner Curran, who watched the ships from the observation post at Fort Wadsworth, said that it was very orderly and put an end to the desperate scrambles of previous months.

In a letter to the Passenger Conference Mr. Curran congratulated it on the success of the new arrangement.

Only 1,400 immigrants were taken to Ellis Island yesterday from the steamships Polonia and Presidente Wilson and it will be about a week before all are examined. The customs officials had a busy day, as they had 5,365 cabin passengers landed on the piers and had to keep inspectors and appraisers crossing the Hudson in motor launches.

RIVER PIRATES SEIZE $11,000 IN PLATINUM

Tie-Up Crew and Customs Officer, Rifle Safe and Flee in Motor Boat.

What was described by the police as one of the most daring acts of river piracy that has taken place in years occurred early yesterday, when fifteen men boarded the steamship Bridgetown at the foot of Main Street, Brooklyn, tied up eleven members of the crew and a customs officer and stole three boxes said to contain more than $11,000 worth of platinum after burning off the hinges of the vessel's safe with acetylene torches.

The police believe the thieves were after gold in bars that the vessel carried from South America. This was removed shortly after the ship arrived on Friday. The first news of the robbery was received at the Poplar Street Station when the third officer of the vessel asked for help. Detectives Neggesmith and Clare were sent to the boat.

They were told by the crew that the thieves boarded the vessel from a motor boat. They overpowered the men on watch and thrust them into the cabin of the first officer. With revolvers in their hands they then rounded up the rest of the crew and took them to the same cabin. They fastened the twelve captives with rope cut from the davits of the lifeboats and opened the strongbox.

After the thieves fled in their motor boat one of the crew worked free from his bonds and released the others. The thieves were on board the vessel more than an hour, but worked so noiselessly that nobody on the pier heard them.

ROYAL TOMB OF 500 B. C. IS UNEARTHED IN CHINA

Bronzes, Pearls, Vases and Jade Ornaments Valued at $500,000 Are Found in It.

PEKING, Oct. 1 (Associated Press).—The skeleton of what is believed to be a royal personage, surrounded by bronzes, vases, jade ornaments and other relics, the value of which is placed at $500,000, was unearthed by soldiers excavating a mound at Sincheng, Honan, yesterday, according to General Wu Pei-fu.

Carl Bishop of the Freer Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., who was invited by General Wu to examine the find, estimated that the grave dated back to 500 to 1000 B. C.

The skeleton, which was found without a coffin, apparently was preserved by a vermilion preparation, which impregnated the bones. The skeleton, it is said, is probably that of a member of the royal family of the ancient feudal State of Cheng.

The bronzes included a war chariot, four large bells, wine pot, inscribed to the royal family, and bronze tripods. Pearl beads and fragments of a jade coronet were also found.

The tomb was found by soldiers digging a well, and was opened at the order of General Wu. Other mounds in the vicinity will be opened immediately, with Carl Bishop co-operating, General Wu announced.

CHARGE HARRIS & CO. BUCKETED ORDERS

State Obtains Restraining Order Against Firm Expelled From Curb.

NO IMMUNITY GRANTED

Information on Which Complaint Is Based Was Furnished by Curb Examination.

Charged with bucketing orders, a restraining order was issued yesterday against Harris & Co., stock brokers, of 25 Broad Street, by Supreme Court Justice Vernon M. Davis. The partners, Sylvan I. Waitzfelder and Charles L. Herzig, were ordered to appear in Part 2, Special Term, on Oct. 4 to be examined about alleged frauds.

Harris & Co. were expelled from the New York Curb Market Association some time ago. The minutes of an examination of Waitzfelder by Arthur Myles, Chairman of the Curb Law Committee, were submitted to Justice Davis by Deputy Attorney General Abraham Rosenthal as part of the petition for an injunction. Mr. Rosenthal declared in his petition that Waitzfelder had admitted trading against his customers' accounts, and had used customers' stock to make deliveries.

Deputy Attorney General John J. Dwyer, in charge of the New York office of the Attorney General, said that the injunction would not prevent criminal prosecution if any cause for such was found. The Martin law, under which the injunction was obtained, grants immunity to brokers whose books are examined by the Attorney General. In this case, however, Mr. Dwyer pointed out, the Attorney General got the injunction through the curb market records, without examining the brokers' books.

The proceedings against Harris & Co., Mr. Dwyer added, grew out of a Martin law injunction granted against Epps & Co., brokers, of 25 Broad Street, several weeks ago. During the inquiry Mr. Dwyer learned that Epps & Co. occupied the same offices as Harris & Co., and began an investigation of the latter firm.

CITIZENS GIVE LAND FOR NEW YORK PARKS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 1.—The formal announcement of gifts of thousands of acres of land to be added to the State parks was made by Governor Smith today. The Governor has just concluded a series of visits to the parks. In two instances new reserves are created by the gifts, among which is a tract on Prospect Mountain, Lake George, given by George Foster Peabody of Saratoga Springs, and one on Tongue Mountain, Lake George, given by Mrs. Stephen Loines of Brooklyn and Bolton Landing, Lake George. These two create a new State park in the Lake George region.

Vanness R. Masters of New York City has also made a present to the State of many acres at Copake Falls, which will be used for a tri-State park, where New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts join. Massachusetts has purchased a large adjoining acreage, and Connecticut is expected to do likewise. The Governor has also announced the gift by Robert E. Treman of Ithaca of Buttermilk Falls to the Finger Lakes Park.

As the last session of the Legislature appropriations of nearly $1,000,000 were made to be used in extending the State park system. An additional $500,000 was appropriated to the Palisades Interstate Park Commission.

It would not have been possible to acquire the new park on Lake George or in the Copake Falls region unless these gifts had been made, as the appropriation made at the last Legislative session limited the expenditures from the fund to already existing parks.

With the acquisition of new lands at Saratoga, sanctioned at the time of the Governor's visit, the Lake George project well started and the many other park plans authorized at the last session of the Legislature under way, New York State will soon have one of the finest park systems in the country, unexcelled even by the Western States. It will extend practically from Montauk Point to Buffalo, taking in a new park to be acquired on Long Island, Palisades Interstate Park, the Saratoga Reservation, Lake George, Taconic Park, Enfield Falls, Finger Lakes and Watkins Glen Reservations and Allegany Park.

CANDIDATES SELECTED.

Both Parties Nominate Men for Congress From 24th District.

At Congressional Conventions, held Saturday night, the Republican and Democratic organizations of Bronx and Westchester named candidates for Representative from the Twenty-fourth Congressional District to succeed the late James V. Ganly, who was killed in an automobile accident last month.

The Republicans nominated former Congressman Benjamin L. Fairchild of Pelham, who already has served two terms in the House of Representatives. The Democrats named Edward R. Koch, a lawyer residing in the Williamsbridge section of the Bronx, who has not, so far, held public office.

SAY FULLER SOUGHT STONEHAM'S HELP

Brokers in Jail Wanted Money for Keeping Quiet, Witnesses Assert.

REQUESTS WERE REFUSED

Prisoner Is Quoted as Saying That Hayward Wanted His Aid "to Get" Stoneham.

Witnesses before Referee Harold P. Coffin in the Fuller bankruptcy proceedings yesterday testified to apparent attempts by E. M. Fuller and W. F. McGee, while they were in Ludlow Street Jail, to get money from Charles A. Stoneham in return for keeping quiet about the alleged connection of Stoneham with Fuller & Co. Lee J. Bondy, former attorney for Fuller and McGee and later counsel for Stoneham, testified to these attempts, as did Edgar P. Feeley, who has an office with Bondy. Feeley said Harold Norris told him that Fuller and McGee wanted $100,000 or $150,000, but Norris denied this. Norris is a bond broker and has an office with former Sheriff Thomas F. Foley.

The testimony about the alleged efforts of the brokers to get money out of Stoneham was elicited when Mr. Bondy was questioned about a telephone call he had received from Fuller after the latter had been sent to jail. Fuller, he said, told him he had an important message for Bondy if the latter would go to the jail. The witness testified that he sent Feeley to find out what Fuller wanted.

Bondy was asked to repeat the message delivered to him by Foley. He refused, but Referee Coffin directed him to answer.

Bondy then said:

"Either Fuller or McGee told Mr. Feeley that they needed money, as efforts were being made to induce them to tell things about Mr. Stoneham, that they had no idea of telling anything and felt Mr. Stoneham would help them. Feeley said he replied that if any story they told was truthful it would not be harmful to Mr. Stoneham and he would be satisfied."

Feeley was then questioned. He told of going to the jail, at Bondy's request, to see Fuller. He said he had talked first with William F. McGee, the broker.

"McGee said," Feeley testified, "that Tom Foley hadn't treated them just right, their friends had deserted them, they were broke and that was why they decided to plead guilty."

Feeley quoted McGee as saying: "Hayward [United States Attorney Hayward] wants Fuller to talk. He can't get me to talk, but I don't know about Fuller. Hayward wants to indict Stoneham for using the mails to defraud."

Afterward, Feeley said, he went upstairs and saw Fuller, who was sick in bed. He quoted Fuller as saying: "Hayward wants to get Charley Stoneham for using the mails to defraud. If I tell my story and it involves Stoneham, Hayward said he would have the indictments dropped."

Feeley denied that either Fuller or McGee had made any threat against Stoneham if he failed to help them.

According to Feeley, he went from the jail to the office of former Sheriff Foley, where he found Bondy and reported. Then he repeated it to Foley, Stoneham and Norris in an adjoining room.

"I think them," Feeley testified, "that I thought Fuller and McGee wanted Stoneham to pay them a considerable sum of money to keep their mouths shut."

Feeley quoted Stoneham as saying: "Well, I won't give them a damn cent. If they think I am going to keep tonight they are mistaken. They can go straight to hell."

He quoted Foley as saying: "That's a fine way to treat a friend. It's a fine way to act after the help they have received."

According to Feeley, Norris said he had seen Fuller and McGee in jail, and the brokers had discussed $100,000 or $150,000 as their demand if they did not tell what they knew about Stoneham.

Norris came to the stand to the stand. He admitted that he had talked with Fuller and McGee in the jail, and that they said they had been told they could walk out free if they told what they knew, but he denied that they had asked him to help them or get any money for them.

Feeley and Norris were told to return for further examination at 2 P. M. on Oct. 15, and Bondy on Oct. 8 at the same hour. Foley and Stoneham, who were present at yesterday's hearing, were told to appear for questioning at 2 P. M. on Oct. 22.

Fallon and McGee, the lawyers, yesterday received a week's extension of time to file briefs in the contempt proceedings pending in the United States District Court. Briefs were to have been filed yesterday.

SAYS MUSIC PROVES EUROPEAN WAR LOOMS

F. A. Stock Sees Spell of Tragedy in Its New Weirdness and the People's 'Fidgets.'

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Europe is on the verge of another general war, according to Frederick A. Stock, Director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, who has just returned from a tour in search of new compositions.

Mr. Stock bases his prediction upon the character of the new music of Europe, which is swift, hysterical and indefinable; the weird frenzy of the new dances, the vivid coloring and daring of new clothing worn by women, all of which, he said, indicates that the people of Europe are "fidgety" to the point of nervous collapse, and restless and frenzied to the point manifesting the advent of a great tragedy.

"In Germany I found the most dreadful evidences that the people are suffering cruelly," he said. "Austria's great industries have passed into foreign hands, and the balance of power has slipped from the hands of England to those of France and England does not dare protest, for she is unprepared, while France has acquired a tremendous air fleet and a huge army. England is feverishly at work trying to catch up. It appears that all Europe is headed for another revolution."

FORD CUTS PRICES OF CARS.

$40 Reduction on the Sedan, Less on Other Makes.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—A reduction of $40 in the price of the Ford four-door sedan and reductions in the prices of the runabout, touring car, coupe, chassis and one-ton truck were announced today by Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company.

The reductions are:

Runabout, $4, with starter and demountable rims, $14; touring car, $3, with starter and demountable rims, $14; coupe, $5; four-door sedan, $40; chassis, $5, and one-ton truck, 10.

The new prices apply to cars bought on the Ford weekly purchase plan. Persons enrolled under the plan who have not yet taken delivery of their cars benefit by the reduction. The last price reduction by the Ford Company was made one year ago.

The price of the Fordson tractor is increased $25. No change is made in the prices of Lincoln cars and none is said to be contemplated, the Fords considering the present prices fair.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, September 29, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.00 cents to 26.00 cents per pound and averaged 15.94 cents per pound.—Advt.

Ward Hearings and Trial Cost $70,000 in Two Years

Attorney General Carl Sherman denied yesterday that the Ward trial had cost $100,000. He said the expense of the Ward case this year was only $30,000, compared to $40,000 last year, when there was an investigation but no trial.

Mr. Sherman estimated the cost of the trial itself at $15,000, which would be paid by the State. An appropriation of $15,000, voted by the Westchester County supervisors for investigation expenses before the trial he said, had not all been spent.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The Ward trial did not cost the State a cent, it was said today at the Attorney General's office here. Under a provision of the Constitution, when the Governor directs the Attorney General to supersede the District Attorney all expenses incident to the trial are placed on the county in which the trial is held.

QUEZON STAKES ALL ON ELECTION DAY

GENERAL HAS HELD ALOOF

Took No Part in Campaign, Despite the Coalitionist Attacks and Democratic Support.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, Oct. 1.—Though only local, the election tomorrow in the Fourth Senatorial District, comprising Manila and Rizalin, Laguna and Bataan Provinces, marks the culmination of the hardest fought and bitterest political campaign since the American occupation.

Manuel Quezon and his combined Nacionalista and Collectivista factions have presented what they call a national issue, maintaining that the result of this election will determine whether the people of the Philippines stand behind the Cabinet and the State Councillors in their recent wholesale resignations.

The Democrata candidate for Senator is Juan Sumulong, former member of the Philippine Commission, and the Quezonites have as a candidate Ramon Fernandez. Their slogan has been "Wood vs. Fernandez."

If Fernandez should lose the Quezonites claim that the people of the United States will regard Governor General Wood's position as supported by the Filipino people; and there is some truth in the contention, as the Democrata Party all along has maintained that General Wood has meddled within his constitutional prerogatives, and the Cabinet members erred and showed cowardice in resigning before presenting the issue to the courts.

The Democratas on the other hand have based their campaign arguments on the record of Manuel Quezon and Sergio Osmena and the Nacionalistas during the Harrison régime, when millions were lost through the maladministration of the Philippine Bank, compelling the imposition of a heavy bonded indebtedness upon the country.

By raising the patriotic issue the Quezon coalitionists have doubtless gained thousands of votes in this normally Democrata district, but many political observers believe the struggle will be close, and some even maintain that the Democratic will win. Should this be the result, General Wood will have received the virtual endorsement of his policies from a large part of the Filipino public, and naturally there would result from that a decided slump in sentiment for immediate independence. Of that there can be little doubt, as Señor Quezon has left no stone unturned to conduct his campaign on this basis.

Quezon has had in his favor virtually the complete control of the native press and a powerful political machine, a long established organization which closely resembles Tammany Hall. This machine has been in power nearly two years. He has overtaxed himself by his vigorous campaigning and has broken down. Should a large proportion of the electorate go against him and this election dissipate his efforts despite his advantages, the result should be regarded as a significant test from the standpoint of future American policy toward the Philippines.

It is generally believed that Señor Quezon acted rather hastily in selecting Ramon Fernandez as candidate as Señor Fernandez was a Director of the Philippine Bank when most of its unsound operatioons occurred, and his companies were among the chief beneficiaries of these transactions. The Democrats have lost no opportunity to take advantage of Fernandez's personal record.

General Wood has painstakingly avoided taking sides in the campaign, although he might have been justified in supporting the Anti-Quezonitas, as Señor Quezon has personally directed the fight as one against General Wood, and has bitterly agitated his removal. General Wood's only interest has been to insist on order during the elections, and has made preparations to use the constabulary and army and navy forces if necessary tomorrow.

Never before has partisanship in a local campaign been so unbridled and passionate, but nevertheless there is no reason to believe that blood will be shed, General Wood, however, thought it advisable to prepare for all eventualities, and issued public warnings against violence.

The result of this election can in no wise alter the political alignment of the Legislature, as the Coalitionists already have a safe recorded majority in the Senate and control about two-thirds of the House. In the last few days there have been rumors that three or four Coalitionists will join the Democratas when the session opens Oct. 16, which may prevent the Coalitionists from commanding the two-thirds majority necessary to override the Governor General's veto when the real clash occurs, as it most probably will upon General Wood's presentation of his legislative program.

As an additional precaution against disorders, all sales of alcoholic liquor have been prohibited for tomorrow.

MRS. ADAMS ASKS $250,000.

Sues Colonel James on Ground He Staged a False Marriage With Her.

Colonel Samuel L. James, racing man and sportsman, was named yesterday as defendant in a suit for $250,000 damages brought by Mrs. Mildred Adams of 308 West Eighty-fourth Street. The plaintiff assert that on May 10, 1918, she and the Colonel went through a marriage ceremony before a person she believed to be Magistrate Peter Barlow, who has since died. Later, she said, she learned that the defendant was already married.

The contemplated suit came to public attention some months ago when Mrs. Adams accused William J. Fallon and Eugene F. McGee, lawyers, of failing to turn over to her present attorney, Isidor Ginsburg, legal papers she had deposited with them, which included an alleged marriage certificate of Mrs. Adams and Colonel James.

QUESTION LOANS MADE TO GOV. M'CRAY

Charges Are Made That Executive Coerced State Concerns Into Accepting Irregular Notes.

GRAND JURY TO INQUIRE

But Postpones Investigation Till Friday, as He Declares He Won't Resign.

STATE COMMITTEE CONFERS

But Governor Declines to Discuss His Financial Affairs With Republican Party Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 1.—While the Republican State Central Committee was in session here today, discussing the charges of financial irregularities made against Governor Warren T. McCray, and the latter was repeating his declaration that he would not resign his office, Judge Collins of the Criminal Court fixed next Friday as the date for the Marion County Grand Jury to begin its investigation of the Governor's transactions with State banks.

According to charges made to the State Committee, Governor McCray borrowed $1,259,882 from Indiana banks, some of which were coerced into lending him the money because he had the power to withhold State funds from them. Many of these loans are said to be secured by "farm land" notes issued by the Governor to himself over the signatures of employes on his own farms.

Governor McCray borrowed $241,509 from seven Chicago bankers, making his total indebtedness to banks $1,491,382.

Witnesses will be summoned from all over the State, Judge Collins declared.

THE PLAY

By JOHN CORBIN.

A Hero Dry-Cleaned.

WARNISH, a play in three acts by Gilbert Emery. At the Belmont Theatre.

Josephina Lee Tevis.....Mrs. Russ Whytal
Mrs. Healy.....Mrs. Jacques Martin
Pauline Stutts.....Marion Lord
Letitia Tevis.....Ann Harding
Emmett Cairn.....Tom Powers
Adelaide Tevis.....Albert Gran
Nettie Dark.....Fania Marinoff
Angie.....Mildred MacLeod

In his new play, as in "The Hero," Gilbert Emery shows a very considerable power of recording the frailties of human nature, especially those frailties that verge upon the sordid and the mean. And once again he reveals, in the case of a chosen few, strange glints of decency, even of nobility. If he had kept to the plane of steady-going realism, "Tarnish" might have been a thoroughly reputable comedy, however painful.

Unfortunately he has had recourse to a considerable number of theatric prearrangements and dramatic coincidences. Moreover, with holly wreaths, midnight chimes, tin horns and good resolutions, he has spread over the whole something of the self-willed optimism of a Dickens Christmas story. "Men are a bad lot," says the philosopher of the evening, "and dirty; the main thing is to pick one that cleans easy." Hence the title of the play. The young hero is an admirable candidate for dry-cleaning; the prognosis is that, however often he is morally furbished up, he will turn out almost as good as new.

The one high light of the evening, a character that is neither tarnished nor varnished, is the young heroine, played by Ann Harding with a rare combination of winsome girlishness, unforced sincerity and poignantly emotional power. She is no paragon, either. Her nerves have a very human breaking point and in her love for the tarnished hero, as in her tenderness for her flabby and self-pitying parents, she is touched time and again with inordant irony and intelligent contempt. The only hard thing to believe is that so much courage and transparent honesty could have arisen in such an environment. Like the play as a whole, though in a lesser degree, the character strikes one as an admirable conception strangely and distressingly out of focus.

The cast as a whole is admirable—quite worthy of the play that might have been. Mrs. Russ Whytal and Albert Gran are the girl's parents, a vain and feeble aristocrat married to an amusingly kind and futile dotard of common clay. One sees at a glance how they have come down from the social pinnacles to the flat in 180th Street, where their daughter supports them as a stenographer.

Fania Marinoff and Mildred MacLeod are, respectively, a manicurist and a vaudeville artist—at least in odd moments, when unemployed in the oldest of professions. The central scene takes place in the manicurist's tawdry flat, where our young hero, on the preceding New Year's Eve, has been occupied in taking on tarnish. Marion Lord is a bootlegger's bride, the term, like "manicurist" and "vaudeville artist," being an euphemism.

Tom Powers is the hero who, unlike the leopard, seems warranted to change his spots. He plays with a touch so sympathetic and sincere that Mrs. Jacquest Martin, as an old Irish servant, seems more pessimist than optimist in praising him as a candidate for frequent decarbonizing.

MITZI FINE IN NEW ROLE.

Original and Tuneful Music Pervades "The Magic Ring."

THE MAGIC RING, a musical comedy in a prologue and three acts. Book and lyrics by Zelda Sears; music by Harold Levey. At the Liberty Theatre.

Rebekah.....Madge North
Josephine.....Josephine Macaulay
Andullah.....Warthe Faulkner
Henry Brockway.....Sydney Greenstreet
Phoebe Brockway.....Janet Murdock
Mrs. Bellamy.....Phoebe Cigsby
Iris Bellamy.....Jeannette MacDonald
Tom Hammond.....Boyd Marshall
Policeman.....J. M. Wakefield
.....John Livens
Polly Church.....Mitzi
Max Bernheimer.....James B. Carson
Stella.....Estelle Birney
Specialty Dancers.....Carlos and Inez

Mitzi returned to town last night in a rollicking new and tuneful show that gives her ample opportunity to be on the stage and act her familiar self the greater part of the evening. If this fact means what it has meant in the past, "The Magic Ring" at the Liberty will not lack for customers.

Miss Zelda Sears's book, bearing in mind the memory of her "Clinging Vine," is less than might reasonably have been expected. Little Miss Cinderella is again invoked, this time in the shape of an orphan, an organ grinder by profession, whom the son of the wealthiest of the Chicago packers summons to the benefit of clergy at the final curtain descends. A not particularly happy or novel twist is given the play by a prologue in which an Egyptian slave, as sentence for a moment's peccadillo, is destined to the service of a magic ring until he find a worthy wearer, in kindness and cleanliness of heart and mind. Musical comedy experts in last night's audience were not surprised to find that Mitzi was it.

Mr. Levey's music is, every bit of it, first-rate. All of his twelve contributions are tuneful, original and of the type destined to be played, as the saying goes, this coming Winter in the cafés, restaurants and dance halls. Better yet, it differs from the ordinary effort of its class in that it has not been played in the city's restaurants and dance halls these many Winters past.

Mitzi is still her glorious self. Here is a sweetness that is not sugary and a pertness that is not insolent. She is the Fritzi Massary of the American stage—with more than enough of the American manner acquired during her years here to enable her to fit jarr-lessly into the stage picture.

Among the other merits of the evening must be listed the appearance and voice of Jeannette MacDonald and the tenorable manliness of Boyd Marshall. Sydney Greenstreet got the utmost out of a queerly overwritten rôle. Carlos and Inez were the customary specialty dancers. David Bennett, as usual, provided effective and lively chorus dancing. James B. Carson was not funny in an offensive caricature.

Mitzi and Mr. Levey's music alone make up more than the total of the average musical comedy's delights.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Cymbeline," with Sothern and Marlowe, opens at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theatre tonight.

The new Capital Theatre in Albany opened last night with "Blossom Time" as the attraction.

Violet Kemble Cooper, Louise Closser Hale and Dorothy MacLean have been added to the cast of Somerset Maugham's "The Camel's Back," soon to be produced by the Selwyns.

"The Courtezan," the new musical play in which the Shuberts will star Shylock, will open in New Haven next Monday night.

Edna Leedom, recently in vaudeville, will be a principal in the new Ziegfeld Follies, which will come in the New Amsterdam Theatre on or about Oct. 15.

Effingham Pinto has been engaged by John Lambert Stewart for "The Gift," a new play by Julia Chandler and Alethea Luce, which is scheduled for November production.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Verbrugghen Quartet, holding a record of membership intact for twenty years, will open the local chamber music season with six concerts starting tonight and covering the next ten days at Aeolian Hall.

Free chamber music concerts provided by the Society of Ancients at Hunter College will be resumed on Thursday night, when the New York Trio will play the Opus 1 of Beethoven and Op. 23 of Arensky.

Rehearsals for the Mozart festival at the Manhattan Opera House began at that theatre yesterday under the direction of Josef Stransky. Added singers for these performances called from Germany today.

"FORBIDDEN" IS MILD.

Sydney Rosenfeld's Comedy of a Convent Girl With "Ideas."

FORBIDDEN, a comedy in three acts by Sydney Rosenfeld. At Daly's Sixty-third Street Theatre.

Roger Carlyle.....Cyril Keightley
Orgsby.....Roy Cochrane
Rachel.....Nellie Callahan
Miss Ailes Carson.....Mary Young
The Mother Superior.....Lillian Kingsbury
Frederick Titus, M. D.....Harry Minturn
Virginia.....Josephine Stevens
Hastings Westover.....John Daly Murphy
Mrs. Westover.....Rose Winter
Peter.....William Leonard

The story of a convent girl who "began to have ideas" and ran away and of the subsequent efforts of her uncle and a woman friend to straighten out the young girl's affairs is the story of "Forbidden," a comedy by Sydney Rosenfeld, which came to Daly's Sixty-third Street Theatre last night.

Throughout the three acts there were frequent moments when it seemed as if the play were to become very naughty. It remained very mild, however, and the final curtain saw the nieces regularly betrothed to the right man and the uncle and his woman acquaintance—thrown into his arms in the first act by an automobile accident—sending telegrams to themselves to kill off a fictitious wife and a fictitious husband. It was of such thin stuff that most of the situations were made.

Cyril Keightley, playing the uncle, had the most to do. Miss Mary Young did well with the part of the interesting woman acquaintance, and Miss Josephine Stevens as Virginia, the niece, was attractive. The honors of the evening, however, fell to Miss Lillian Kingsbury as the Mother Superior.

BONELLI TO CREATE ROLES.

American Baritone to Sing in Two Operas New to France.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Richard Bonelli, American baritone, last year with the San Carlo Opera Company, has been engaged to create in Monte Carlo in March two rôles—to be done for the first time in France—Prince Igor in Borodine's opera of that name and the name part in "Faust," seldom-heard opera by Robert Schumann.

Pauline Cornelys, American soprano, will appear also among the concert artists in Monte Carlo this Winter.

"La Forza del Destino" Sung.

Signor Gallo's San Carlo Grand Opera Company began their third week at the Century last night with a well-filled house to hear Verdi's old favorite, "La Forza del Destino." In the cast were Gaetano Tommasini in the well-remembered Caruso rôle of Don Alvaro, with Mario Valle as his partner in the famous duet. Maria Luisa Escobar appeared as Leonora, singing with such good style and such devotion to her part that she made that impossible tragic lady seem almost real. The fine choruses in this opera, except for the third act scene before the convent, left something to be desired, just as the camp scene and the "Kat-a-pian" song left Miss Pagel a little out of breath.

Receives $800 for Dog Bite.

A consent award of $800 was granted yesterday in the Hudson County Circuit Court at Jersey City to ten-year-old Achilles Daniel of 538 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, for injuries received May 5 in an attack by a German police dog. Henry Kirschner, the defendant, is proprietor of a confectionery store at 631 Newark Avenue.

New Anti-Saloon League Official.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, announced last night that the Rev. Arthur C. Lincoln, former pastor of the First Congregational Church of Buffalo, has been appointed Associate State Superintendent of the League.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The tropical storm has moved rapidly northeastward during the last twenty-four hours and its centre was immediately south of Newfoundland Monday night, Fort Abasque reporting a barometer reading of 27.79 inches and a wind velocity of sixty miles an hour from the northeast.

The weather will remain generally fair without material change in temperature in the States east of the Mississippi River during the next two days.

New England and Eastern New York—Fair and continued cool Tuesday and Wednesday.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and District of Columbia—Fair and continued cool Tuesday and Wednesday.

Western Pennsylvania and Western New York—Fair Tuesday and Wednesday; little change in temperature.

FARCE OF ALL VARIETIES.

Laughter in Quick Changes of "What's Your Wife Doing?"

WHAT'S YOUR WIFE DOING? a farce in three acts by Herbert Hall Winslow and Emil Nyitray. At the Forty-ninth Street Theatre.

Gerald Warner.....Glenn Anders
Hawkins.....Harry Lillford
Officer Corrigan.....J. Edward O'Malley
Edith Somers.....Isabella Leighton
Burr Shrewsbury.....Joseph Bell
Judge Somers.....Norman Hackett
Christopher Skinner.....Louis Simon
Beatrice Skinner.....Dorothy Mackaye
Lyman Webster.....Hal Munnis
Bellamy Warner.....Shep Camp
Samuel Peabody Skinner..George Pauncefort
Detective Magee.....George Spelvin
Detective Moriarty.....Frank Emmett

Glenn Anders's venture toward stardom in "What's Your Wife Doing?" got its genuine laughs at the Forty-ninth Street last evening midway in five quick-change scenes of the new piece by Herbert Hall Winslow and Emil Nyitray, of which Arthur Klein was for the first time a producer. One of life's little compromises, or repeated attempts at compromise, of a perfect lady for her temporary divorce, provided at that point the "makings" of farce of all varieties, Yankee, Yiddish, Wall Street, and Western, triangle and crook.

Dorothy Mackaye in the mix-up did neatly the lady lag, who betrayed "experience" in going as wrong as everything else in the premises of poor confiding Jerry Warner, engaged to another girl. Mr. Anders single-handed carried the opening scenes of a lovesick financial lamb's shearing.

A Texas cattle uncle, humanized by Shep Camp, was among the gods in the machine who brought back the $10,000 of bread cast on troubled waters for the finale. Isabelle Leighton was easy to see as the "other" girl, and among the rest were Louis Simon, George Pauncefort, Norman Hackett, Harry Lillford, J. E. O'Malley, Hal Munnis and Joseph Bell.

MARY LEWIS IN OPERA.

Former Member of "Follies" to Sing Prominent Roles in Vienna.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 1.—Mary Lewis of last year's Ziegfeld "Follies" has been engaged for the coming season of the Vienna Opera, it is learned here. She will make her début as Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust" on Oct. 19. On Oct. 26 she will be heard in the rôle of Mimi in "La Bohème" and on Oct. 29 as Micaela in "Carmen."

All the performances will be conducted by Felix Weingartner.

Tito Schipa Wins Plaudits.

Tito Schipa, the tenor who, is biding the time in concerts between the closing of the Summer opera at Ravinia Park, Chicago, and the opening of that city's Civic Opera Company, sang for a large audience in Carnegie Hall last evening. The program included several operatic airs and shorter pieces in a variety of moods and languages. In the former the powerful emotional quality of his voice with its vibrancy of tone was displayed at its best, as was a great beauty of phrasing and clarity of enunciation. The audience manifested its enjoyment with sincere applauding and floral gifts. Susanne Keener, soprano, of the Metropolitan Company, gave a group of songs by Hageman, Samuels and Saint-Saëns and an air from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Another Day of Unimportant Fluctuation in Stocks—Foreign Exchange Lower.

Yesterday added another to the series of purposeless stock markets which have reflected either the financial community's uncertainty as to what the future will bring forth, or else belief that it will bring no change such as could reasonably be reflected in prices. Most people have given up the attempt to read the psychology of the market; indeed, one rather frequently hears the querulous comment from outside observers that the stock market must have lost its prophetic faculty. But the experience is not entirely new.

Stationary markets, even when the dullness is prolonged, make no great impression on the memory; but they have occurred at reasonable intervals, and it has usually turned out that they had foreshadowed a more or less prolonged period of stationary conditions in general trade. Of yesterday's stock market all that need be said is that it declined irregularly at the start, recovered irregularly afterward and ended the day with some stocks a trifle higher and some a trifle lower, but probably with the majority of prices fractionally above last week's closing.

European exchange was weak; whether because of doubt over the efficacy of Germany's plans for reparations and currency reform or because of misgiving over the "demonstrations" in Germany itself did not appear. At one time the German mark fell to a new minimum, at which 370,000,000 were required to buy a dollar. But even the mark recovered most of the day's loss before the closing, and the disposition among the people best acquainted with European institutions and traditions was not to take the Bavarian and Rhineland incidents very seriously and to "discount" liberally predictions of their extending further. The surrender of passive resistance in the Ruhr is, after all, not exactly on a political parity with the surrender of everything in November, 1918.

With the Government's October forecast of the yield on the calendar for today, it might possibly have been supposed that yesterday's cotton market would have moved expectantly. But it did not move at all—perhaps, like the stock market, indicating an even balance of favorable and unfavorable opinion. When "private estimates" vary a million and a quarter bales from one another, a speculative market is not to be blamed for awaiting official forecasts. The one market which moved to some purpose yesterday was wheat, which crossed $1.07 for the December delivery, thus reaching the highest mark of the present crop. That is hardly a sensationally high price, but it is 11 cents a bushel above the season's lowest.

Most people will admit that wheat has been selling unreasonably low, and the recovery may be automatic return to something normal. Whether the pressure on the Government to help fix a higher price has influenced the speculative attitude may be debatable. But even a speculative farmer would not be likely to buy wheat futures on expectation of the "stabilized price" of $1.75 prophesied in some of yesterday's Washington dispatches. That kind of stabilization could be quite as well attained by the Government's making a present of 50 to 75 cents to every farmer selling a bushel of wheat at the market.

MONEY.

MONDAY, OCT. 1, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was firm. Payment of foreign Government loan served to contract available supply, and after opening and renewing at 5¼ per cent., later accommodation was had variously at 5½, 5¾ and 6 per cent., last reached in last hour and highest since Sept. 13. Time money, dealers reported, was slightly easier at 5½ per cent. for both classes, all dates, though amount of funds loaned at this figure was small, as demand continued slight.

SEES FORD AS RIVAL OF STANDARD OIL

Wall Street Hears That He Plans to Retail Gasoline and Motor Oil.

Reports were current in Wall Street yesterday that Henry Ford planned to enter the oil industry in a large way, and would make the retailing of gasoline and motor oil a part of Ford service at the 5,000 or more agencies under his control in the United States.

No announcement of his intentions has been made, but it is known that Mr. Ford recently called to Detroit the heads of three or four of the largest independent oil companies, known to have large surpluses of gasoline on hand. None of these officials would admit yesterday that he had talked business with Mr. Ford.

It is reported that the plan under consideration by Mr. Ford and the Ford Motor Company officials would be to purchase the excess supplies of independent companies, probably through a subsidiary to be organized later, and to ship this surplus to concentration points, from which it would be doled out to Ford dealers to be retailed from established agencies. That Mr. Ford is looking at conditions under which the fuel which operates automobiles is sold was indicated when it became known that he was having three test oil wells drilled by A. J. Dalton of Huntington, W. Va., in the Pond Creek, Pike County, Ky., field.

It is known that Mr. Ford thinks the present system of distribution of gasoline to be inefficient, and that there is too great a spread between the cost of production and the cost of the fluid to the consumer. The Oil Trade Journal, in its issue of yesterday, said:

"If Henry Ford makes the retailing of gasoline and motor oil a part of his Ford service in the United States we may expect to see profit margins in the marketing business considerably narrowed." The Journal adds: "Once in the retail marketing business, it is hard to tell how far Mr. Ford would go if he devoted his ingenuity to working out more efficient and economical methods of handling gasoline and motor oil. It is quite certain that he would force all other marketers to meet his prices. This would cut deeply into the profits of the big Standard Oil marketing organization, as well as the large and small independents."

ACCUSE TARAFA OF TRICK.

Sugar Companies Declare New Bill Does Not Meet Objections.

Officials of American sugar companies in Cuba are aroused over what they contend is a violation of the agreement between them and Colonel Jose M. Tarafa bill, which was passed by the new Cuban Railroad Consolidation bill was to have been drawn to meet their objections to the original measure. It became known yesterday that the Tarafa bill which was passed by the Cuban Legislature last week and is now with President Zayas for his signature, is not the revised bill, copies of which were sent to attorneys for the sugar companies for their endorsement.

This explains why the sugar companies have again protested to the State Department, according to one of their spokesmen yesterday. He declared that except for the elimination of the 15-cent tax per bag of sugar against those companies shipping through private ports the new Tarafa bill is as objectionable as the original one. Not only does the new bill retain the monopoly of the Cuban railways through its consolidation feature, but, it is asserted, the bill now sets up a monopoly of the sugar mills as well as of public warehouses.

BONUS PROBABILITY SHADES LIBERTIES

Washington Reports Say Bill for Soldiers' Compensation Will Pass.

Reports from Washington that the soldiers' bonus bill was sure to pass the Senate and House has caused steady and relatively heavy selling of Liberty Bonds, according to explanation advanced by bankers yesterday when asked the cause of recent activity in the Liberty Bond group in the open market. This selling, bond dealers say, has been mainly for the accounts of large institutions.

The passage of the bonus bill would force the Government to obtain money to pay the compensation thus voted, and while sales, taxes and other expedients have been mentioned, it was assumed by many Liberty Bond holders that new Government issues would have to be floated.

A feature of the selling has been the steadiness in price. Buying has been mainly for the British Government and for the sinking fund of the United States Government. The British Government is said to have purchased, since June 15, $45,000,000 of Liberty Bonds in connection with the payment due Dec. 15 of $62,000,000 to the United States Treasury on its war debts and the Government's sinking fund calls for the absorption this fiscal year of nearly $300,000,000 of Liberty Bonds, of which about $65,000,000 have been purchased.

Pennsylvania Car Loadings Fall.

Cars handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad for the week ended Sept. 22 were 176,449, against 180,225 in the same week of last year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Irregular Market.

Stocks again were irregular yesterday, but the majority managed to finish the day with a small advance. There were a few noticeable advances in three or four of the specialties under pool control, but these were offset by equally sharp declines in the automobile and tire stocks and in some of the chemical and fertilizer issues. Trading was on a particularly small scale and the market appeared to get nowhere in particular, the day's activities merely representing the "milling about" of professional operators anxious to make a profit and not particular on which side of the market it was made. The strongest issues on the list were Burns Brothers stocks, Davison Chemical and some of the tobacco issues, while actual weakness cropped out in Chandler Motors, Studebaker and in practically all of the accessory shares. The advance in call money to 6 per cent. in the final dealings was nothing more than a reflection of the demand for month-end funds and had little effect on the market one way or the other.

Weakness in the Motor Shares.

Automobile men and the banking and brokerage houses associated with them are at a loss to understand the rather drastic liquidation which cropped out in some of these issues yesterday in consideration of the fact that practically all of the big companies have broken all previous records for this season of the year. The bankers for the companies pointed out that in practically every case sufficient profits were rolled up in the first three-quarters of the year to permit the maintenance of dividends at the present rate for the balance of the year, and all of them professed to believe it very unlikely that any dividend changes, so far as motor stocks are concerned, are imminent. Nevertheless, the liquidation in Chandler, Studebaker, Hupp Motors and in the "accessories" (which naturally follow them sympathetically) was rather severe yesterday. Probably some of the selling arises from the fact that it was currently reported in the trade that additional price cuts are to be announced soon in order to stimulate fourth-quarter business.

Soldiers' Bonus Again and Liberty Bonds

The statement by the Legislative Committee of the American Legion that the Soldiers' Bonus will carry in the House of Representatives by an eight to one ratio and that there will be a majority of fifty votes in the Senate had a very considerable effect not only on the stock market but on the bond market yesterday, according to dealers and bond brokers. The First 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds sold at 99.6, a new low price for the year, while there was some rather heavy liquidation, in large blocks, of the Third 4¼s, which yielded only fractionally, however. Bankers express the opinion that some sort of bonus legislation is very likely to go through at the December session, but they are also of the belief that it will not be of a character which will in any way disturb the market value of the present outstanding "war issues," and most of them are inclined to characterize the current liquidation in Liberty bonds as due to an entirely different reason, it probably being institutional liquidation for business purposes.

Tightening the Reins.

Reports were current in the financial district yesterday that a sharp revision had been made in the loaning basis on certain Stock Exchange issues by the banking institutions. In one case in particular it was said that the borrowing value of the stock had been cut down from 65 per cent. of market value to 40 per cent. of market value. This was taken to be a consequence of the sudden smash in one of the tea stocks last week. The revision, which affected the shares of some of the motor accessory companies, caused some nervousness and liquidation in those issues.

Call Money Rate Stiffens.

Although by no means unusual at this period of the month, the stiffening yesterday of the call money rate to 6 per cent. was attributed to factors which lent possibly more than the usual interest to the manifestation. In addition to regular month-end requirements, it was suggested by some money lenders that the refunding operations covering $60,000,000 of Argentine bonds which matured yesterday tightened the market temporarily. In a day or two it was suggested, the money involved in the transaction would find its way back to its previous channel.

Cleaning Up "Stale" Bonds.

Virtually all of the larger new issues recently brought out which failed to sell quickly have by now been placed, according to reports current yesterday in the Wall Street district, and investment bankers in several instances ventured the prediction that a livelier market will be observable the rest of this year. The sharpest revival reported thus far is in the municipal group and following the absorption at lower prices of the two big bonus issues that were offered some time ago a keener demand for other State and municipal issues has developed. The dissolution of two big syndicates in the last few weeks has also served to remove an artificial strength from dealings, which, while resulting in temporary reactions in prices, has by now placed dealings on a normal basis.

Increasing Popularity

The Investing Public is realizing more and more the advisability of including among their holdings a fair percentage of Electric Light securities. For a generous and dependable income we are recommending the purchase of several Electric Preferred Stocks whose dividends are being earned by a wide margin of Safety.

Beginning March 22, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1923 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Character In Bonds

BONDS, as well as men, have character. The Straus record of 41 years without loss to any investor testifies not only to the safety of the bonds we sell, but defines the character of the House. Write today for circulars on new offerings in $1000, $500 and $100 denominations, yielding 6 to 6-½%. Ask for

CORN AND OATS RUSH TO GRAIN MARKETS

Give Wheat a Needed Lift in Heaviest Trading the Pit Has Seen in Some Time.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—A bull market was on in corn and oats. Trade was the heaviest in some time and, with reinstating of long lines of corn recently sold out on the belief that there had been bulge enough, with buying on stop-loss orders, prices moved up rapidly to a new high for the season on the May and to within ¾ cent of the best figure on the December.

The close was within a fraction of the top, with gains of 1⅝@2¼ cents, December closing 1¼ cents over the May, against 2 cents under recently, and at the outside price was 9 cents over the recent low.

Buying by the leading bull interest quickly absorbed the surplus in the pit and prices advanced nearly 3 cents from the low on December. Cash corn sold up to 94¼ cents on No. 2 yellow and closed there, or 20 cents over the December, against 19 over Saturday, with an excellent demand. There were 65,000 bushels of No. 2 Yellow sold in store at 93 cents, or three cents more than could be obtained at the close Saturday.

Prospective legislation was an outstanding factor in the wheat market and, with the strength in corn, prices moved up and closed ⅝@1¼ cents higher, in the face of a heavy undertone in the Northwest.

Minneapolis closed 1⅛@⅞ cent and Winnipeg ½@⅝ cent higher, with considerable increase in hedging operations.

Record Output of Hudson Cars.

All records for production will be broken in 1923 by the Hudson Motor Car Company, with an output of 91,000 cars, according to figures made public yesterday by Dominick & Dominick. Sales will aggregate approximately $93,000,000 as compared with $68,000,000 in 1922. Officials estimate the earnings to be approximately $7.50 per share.

Business Failures Decrease.

Failures in the United States for the third quarter numbered 3,775 and involved liabilities of $98,543,559. There has been a reduction in business mortality in each quarter this year, according to Dun's Review.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Rates Substantially Lower; Heavy Selling Causes Deep Cuts in Recent Gains.

In the subjoined table the quotation on sterling represents dollars and decimals of a dollar; all others represent cents and decimals of a cent. Quotations preceded by the decimal mark indicate a price measured in fractions of a cent.

Bondholders to Take Over Road.

No action has been taken to refund the Keokuk & Des Moines Railway Company 5 per cent. bonds, which expired yesterday, it is stated by representatives of the bondholders. The lease of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company on the Keokuk & Des Moines will expire on Dec. 31, 1923, and it is generally understood that the lease will not be renewed. The bondholders' committee already has prepared plans for taking over the railroad.

COTTON MARKS TIME PENDING U.S. REPORT

Prices Gain 5 to 11 Points as Trades Are Evened Up—Average Guess 49.4 Per Cent.

Cotton markets marked time yesterday pending receipt of two Washington reports today, one on ginning and the other giving crop indications. The volume of trading proved slightest in some weeks with fluctuations confined within unimportant limits. The average guess of 100 Exchange members was 49.4 which would indicate a yield of about 10,950,000 bales on the department acreage. The average of fifteen private reports, running from 47.8 to 52.3, has been 50.3. The ten-year average for Sept. 25 is 57.5, while the condition last year was 50, or the lowest on record with the single exception of 1921. Prices gained 5 to 11 points.

Scattered selling in December opened that month below 28.20, 10 points from Saturday's closing and 60 points or more from high figures of Friday.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

CHANGES IN DURANT BANK.

Downs to Succeed Cronhardt as Head of Liberty National.

Changes in the personnel of the Liberty National Bank, organized by W. C. Durant, were confirmed yesterday, but it was explained that full details could not be given at this time. Formal announcement of the complete slate of officers will probably be made tomorrow or Thursday.

A. F. Cronhardt, organizer of the Durant Bank and temporary President, has resigned and Carroll Downs, President of the Star Motors Company, recently organized by Mr. Durant, will be his successor. This change does not mean a reorganization, it was explained, as Mr. Cronhardt merely took the Presidency to complete the organization.

Growing Favor for Flannels.

Flannels in either plain or novelty textures are coming to the fore strongly for sports wear for Spring. Mills which have been showing them report great interest, and large individual orders have been placed. Printed flannels in the intermediate and light shades and checked in dark colors are receiving most attention in both the high grade and popular priced cloths. A notable interest is being shown in broadcloths. It is predicted that the coming season will see much increased use of these weaves, formerly considered only staple cloths, for semi-sports purposes.

Gray Goods Have Quiet Day.

Gray goods had rather a quiet day here yesterday. With the Federal report on the cotton crop due today, first hands did very little trading of consequence. Some second-hand sales were put through, however, at figures more or less under the market. Most of this business was for October delivery. It included sales of 39-inch 68-72 printcloths at 11¾ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¾ cents. First hands sold some 39-inch 72-76s at 12¾ cents. In the sheetings second hands were again the leading sellers. They disposed of 36-inch 4.15s at 8 cents, for instance, and of 1.65s in the same width at 9¾ cents.

The Order Was Not an Order.

An interesting incident of mis representation of a resident buyer was related here yesterday. The buyer in question ordered four expensive dresses for one of his clients. At the time he did it he intimated that a nice reorder would be forthcoming promptly if the merchandise was fully up to sample. The dresses were shipped to the retailer. Two weeks later the manufacturer got them back with a note to this effect: The four dresses are herewith re turned to you as we just want to point out that the style show was a tremendous success. We thank you for your co-operation." What the manufacturer had been led to believe by the resident buyer was an order was really only a loan of the dresses for a style display the retailer had staged.

More Sales at Yokohama.

The first official cable quoting prices on raw silk at Yokohama was received here yesterday by the Silk Association of America from the Sericultural Association of Japan. It said there were "outside" sales of 200 bales on Sept. 29, to which the quotation for Kansai No. 1 was 2,120 yen, that for "Extra," 2,150 yen, and "Double Extra A," 2,230 yen. The first price is equivalent to $8.47½ a pound here, according to a local importer, who said that he had received word of further advances of 20 to 30 yen a bale. A message was received from D. E. Douty, Vice President of the United States Testing Company, which stated that no shipments of silk were possible beyond the quantities saved, and that normal receipts from the interior would be considerably delayed. He added that local agents at Yokohama were prohibiting shipments from other ports.

Prices Unsettled at Fur Sale.

The irregularity of prices was one of the features of the resumption of the fur sale in the Masonic Hall here yesterday, with the principal advances shown in broadtail, silver fox and the better otter skins. Otter did better than had been expected, and the prices paid for Northern and Eastern pelts averaged 10 per cent. over the April sale levels. Otter from other trapping sections showed no change. Silver fox went up 25 per cent., as compared with the Spring sale, and a similar rise was seen in broadtail. Pelts in the lamb group were unchanged, and no comparison was made on caracul. Wolverine and gray fox dropped 10 per cent. from the April averages, while declines of 25 to 30 per cent. respectively were seen in shiras and krimmer. Due to slow bidding on many of the lots offered the day's selling schedule was again uncompleted, and several collections were set over until today.

Retail Gains in August.

Ready-to-wear and piece goods departments of stores throughout the country showed consistent gains during August, according to the Controllers' Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. In the former the average percentage of increase in leading items for August over that month last year was: Coats 15, suits 9, skirts 8, dresses 13, furs 16, misses' goods 13, juniors' and girls' garments 12, blouses 1, sweaters 1 and millinery 19. For the first eight months of this year the percentage increase over 1922 in the same groups were: Coats 25, suits 26, skirts 16, dresses 18, furs 18, misses' garments 20, juniors' and girls' clothing 12, blouses 9, sweaters 10 and millinery 8. Dress goods sales increased 25 per cent. in August, and 19 per cent. in the eight months' period. The cover of silks and velvets for the same periods gained, respectively, 11 and 21 per cent. Ribbon sales increased 19 per cent. during August.

Road to Take Back Strikers.

So far as possible the Lehigh Valley Railroad will take back its striking shopmen, it was stated at the offices of the company yesterday. The shopmen who left the employ of the railroad on July 1, 1922, voted over the week-end to return to work on terms which were, according to the company, identical with the offer made them when they went on strike.

"Hitch Your Wagon to a Star"

BUILD YOUR HOME where good people have already built in such numbers that the locality is assured—at Forest Hills.

Pay more, if necessary, to get your lots where the surroundings are good, where the streets and curbs and sidewalks are in now; where people live now; where the transportation is good now.

BUT WHY PAY MORE if you can get such lots at your own price at public auction, perhaps as cheap as raw lots would cost elsewhere?

Forest Hills is fixed, determined and settled; it is the highest grade of suburban property. Beautiful houses—beautiful views—splendid improvements—the Lawn Tennis Headquarters of the country! ON

if you subscribe now

We can afford to sell at record low prices because experience has taught us that the great bulk of our readers renew their subscriptions again and again. Once they get acquainted with THE WORLD'S WORK, COUNTRY LIFE, GARDEN MAGAZINE or RADIO BROADCAST, they remain subscribers for years. The important thing for us to do is to introduce the magazines of your choice to you—that accomplished, we will let the magazines speak for themselves.

That Custom-Tailored Effect

A distinguishing mark of D'Andrea Brothers Ready to Wear clothes is their Made to Measure look. And this desirable effect is obtained only because D'Andrea Brothers Ready to Wear clothes are designed, finished and individually fitted by tailors of long experience in the Made to Measure business.

That is why you can always depend upon obtaining a genuine custom-tailored effect in any garment you buy here, whether Made to Measure or Ready to Wear.

Ready to Wear, $75 Made to Measure, $125
